MOTOR NOTES, NEWS AND VIEWS

ON THE ROAD IN AUTUMN.

The Charm of Autumn Drives : Meeting Cattle on the Road : Licensing Pitfalls.

September, so generous in sunshine, so balmy in atmosphere, and with almost an entire absence of rain, was certainly one of the most delightful months of the year for motorists. Up to just a week ago we still had with us the trees, dappling the roadways with sunshine and shade; the gorse-covered mountains, the hedges, and the landscape arrayed in their pristine summer verdure. We regret its passing; yet without contrasts, change of seasons, and variety of outlook what a dull thing existence would be.

It was only a week ago that the charm of early autumn came and cast its spell over the whole countryside, clothing valley, mountain-side and woodland with tints and colouring beautiful to behold. The motor car has brought all these delights and many more within an hour or two's journey to their owners, and I cannot imagine a more delightful experience, as well as a tonic, than a trip at this particular period of the year through the countryside in the keen October air. Because of its mild climate and scenic beauty, the County of Wicklow just now is a perfect picture. The tints and colourings are wonderful to look upon, and either a trip to Woodenbridge, via Bray, Greystones, Wicklow, Dunganstown, Redcross and Avoca, returning by Rathdrum Mills, Glenealy and Ashford; or to Glendalough, via Milltown, Stepaside, the Scalp, Enniskerry, Tinahinch Bridge, Longhill, across Calary Bog to Roundwood, Annamoe, and Laragh, returning by the summit of Wicklow Gap, Poulaphouca, Blessington, Crooksling, Tallaght and Templogue will give intense and greatly varied pleasure to lovers of changing nature, for whom, during the next couple of weeks, the whole countryside will hold pictures incomparable in design and treatment.

MEETING CATTLE ON THE ROAD.

One or two hints on the subject of negotiating a drove of cattle on the highway may be of assistance in smoothing the path of motorists who find this problem annoying. The cattle or other stock of the farmer has as much right to the road as the motorist, and by bearing that in mind it will considerably help. On meeting a flock or herd the best plan is to stop at the side of the road and allow the drover to urge his charge past your car. If you attempt to drive through an oncoming bunch of animals it is ten chances to one that some of the animals will break back the way that they have come, causing endless trouble to the drover and the holding up of your car still longer.

Overtaking is a different matter. Drop into first gear, for several stops may be necessary, and proceed past the rearmost animals on one side of the road. Hoot several times before your approach. Avoid at all costs getting into the centre of the bunch, for trouble will undoubtedly ensue. A little patience and a series of hooting will get the animals to move en masse to one side of the road, and you will then get an opportunity to slip by, thus avoiding, it may be, the trouble, inconvenience and expense for a claim for injury to an animal.

LICENSING PITFALLS.

The purchaser of a new car must obtain a licence and a registration book from the local authority. The licence duty is payable on the first of January of each year, although part-yearly licences at something more than proportionate rates can also be obtained.

Many owners think that they are allowed by law fourteen days after expiry in which to renew their licences. That is not so. Purely as a matter of grace local authorities do not prosecute if the licence is renewed within fourteen days of the expiry. If it is not the council has power to prosecute, and the fine for the offence is generally at least the sum of the licence, whether he is going to use his car or not.

In the case of the quarterly licence-holder, if he wishes to drive before he has renewed the licence, the safest course will be to post a cheque for the full quarter's duty, and if he is held up by the police before he has received the new licence a prosecution will rarely follow. Some motorists are under the mistaken impression that if they do not use their car for part of the time they need not pay licence duty. If a car is used for one day in each quarter a year's licence duty must be paid. Therefore, anyone who drives on one day in January, April, July and October is liable for a full year's licence.

When the owner sells his car he must hand over the registration book to the new owner, and also send particulars of the car and the new owner's name and address to the local authority, and the new owner must insert his or her name and address in the book and send it to the local authority, who will return it to him in due course. If a licence becomes faded or defaced or lost a duplicate will be issued at a nominal charge if it was the owner's fault. Otherwise it will be issued free. Number plates must be unobscured either by mud or luggage.

THE PARIS SALON.

A correspondent writes me: Paris is almost motor mad. The Champs Elysee, the most beautiful motor sales boulevard in the world, hums with "secrets" that will be disclosed at the Car Salon opening in the Palace of Justice on Thursday. There will be no "freak" cars, but there will be notable changes. The most notable will be the distinct tendency to make small cars big, and big cars much bigger.

Citroen, now producing in Europe 500 cars a day of the four and six-cylinder types, will be making 800 cars a day by the end of January next, and 1,000 cars a day by the last day of June, 1930.

His astounding initiative is such that he had in use in his Paris works special patented machine tool marvels before the leading manufacturers had them in Detroit. He has eight factories in and around Paris.

THE PRINCE OF WALES.

SOLDIER AND SPORTSMAN.

THE biographers of the Prince of Wales, in a foreword to their book, deplore the fact that in writing any comprehensive survey of His Royal Highness's life they feel that everything already is known about him. Even the most ardent collectors of tales about the heir to the Throne, however, hardly can know one quarter of the stories that W. and L. Townsend have packed into close on three hundred pages.

From the days of his infancy, when the only dissentient voice in the chorus of welcome to the little Prince was that of the parliamentary "bad fairy," the late Mr. Keir Hardie, he has stood forth in the glare of light that illumines every public action of an heir apparent. The writers of the book have covered with painstaking elaboration every stage of his career from his cradle—nursery, school, the Royal Naval College, Dartmouth, Magdalen College, Oxford, then the great upheaval of the war. There was no young man in all the combatant nations to whom the war could have made such a difference as it did to the Prince of Wales, because from the time when the many objections raised to his taking any active part in the fighting were set aside he might be said to have been for the first, and probably the last, time in his life on an equal footing with other men. No matter how effective were the efforts of competent staff officers to hedge him round with such precautions as were possible, "there was a war on," and the efforts often were futile. He managed to wrest for himself a certain amount of freedom of action and independence that he had never known in those days of peace that hold so little of that commodity for the eldest son of the King of England.

The Prince's grandfather is credited with having pointed to him once and said: "There goes the last King of England"; but a great deal of water has run under the mill since King Edward made that remark. With a post-war Europe echoing with the falling of thrones the British Commonwealth of Nations is happy to allow its hard-working Royal Family their place in the sun.

* * * * *

Emphasis is laid on a trait in the Prince's character which must have counted heavily in assuring him that place in the affections of the people that has been accorded him. Arising out of a speech made to the students of a Lucknow College during his Indian tour, the book says: "The wisdom of a man can often only be gauged by his utterances. The Prince has shown ever since those far-off Oxford days an uncanny wisdom with regard to the psychology of youth. It is the secret of his youth which seems loth to leave him. He will never 'grow up' in the sense that King Edward grew up into a genial oncle. The Prince had studied youth—its aims, its ideas, its failures. He is passionately interested in youth, and is probably the greatest non-academical expert on the subject."

The general public, the writers remark, credits the Prince with a lack of ambition in any particular direction—"his position," they argue, "prevents him from having ambitions. But why should it? His ambitions may not lend themselves to definite classification, but the end of them all is the desire to be of use, both to himself and to the people." After the Armistice this fact became more apparent than ever. The Prince's intercourse, restricted though it may have been, with working men at the front, made him keen to learn something about the conditions under which they lived in normal times, and he took every opportunity of so doing. In his world tours he has gained first-hand knowledge of the customs of almost every race. He is a born sportsman, and there are few games at which he has not tried his hand, including many not usually practised in his own country; but as the biographers state, "it is not the games which the Prince plays, however, that count. It is his basic sportsmanship."

* * * * *

His early dislike of publicity or the laying of any undue stress on his exalted position has perforce given way to the knowledge that such things have to be accepted as part of his duty to the nation. In his college days, when on one occasion he found himself being called on for a speech, he promptly quashed the unnecessary formality by standing up and, when silence had fallen, requesting them not to make such a fuss. Another time after a meeting with some American ladies, he remarked ruefully that they "Princed" him so much he felt like barking; but he makes no attempt nowadays to shirk his public responsibilities.

The Prince's popularity, wide as it has been, has reacted on him in the best way possible; it has fixed his determination to be worthy of it and to use it for great achievements. He has shown himself neither sickened with adulation nor flattered by it, only reassured that, whatever he may attempt, he has behind him the confidence of the people.

"THE DUBLIN MAGAZINE."—The October-December issue of this excellent quarterly contains a valuable essay by Professor Edmund Curtis, entitled "How Earl Strongbow took Dublin." A vivid picture of the conflict and of the chief protagonists is afforded. Another valuable historical paper is from the pen of "Sean-Ghall." It examines Mr. P. J. Webb's book on "The Guilds of Dublin," and adduces hitherto neglected evidence that proves that the Guilds were not, as commonly is assumed, English in origin and membership. There are poems by F. R. Higgins and Michael Bernard, and a fragment of a poetic play by Austin Clarke.

DISRAELI REDIVIVUS.

COLLECTED CORRESPONDENCE.

IT is probable that the reading public always will be interested in the career of Benjamin Disraeli, Earl of Beaconsfield. He touched the life of his time at so many points; shared in historical events, if he did not make them historical, on such important occasions, and was, on the whole, such a glittering personality that human curiosity always will be whetted by the man. He may be ridiculed as he was on that famous occasion in 1837 when he made his maiden speech on the Irish election petitions, but he figured so prominently in the history of England and Europe during the nineteenth century that he cannot be ignored. Biographies and critical estimates of the man and his career come from the press in a steady stream, and the eyes of romantic biographers seem to be attracted by the man irresistibly. From 1826, when he startled London with the first part of "Vivian Grey," until his death in 1881, at the age of 77, he practically dominated the literary and political life of England. Novelist, Prime Minister, maker of an Empress, Royal favourite, derided and loved: how could such a man escape the cupidity of a time when, if ever, "the proper study of mankind is man"?

In the two large volumes which were published last week by Messrs. Benn are collected the letters which Disraeli wrote to the famous sisters, Lady Chesterfield and Lady Bradford, daughters of Lord Forester, between 1873 and 1881. Three hundred of these letters were used in the great biography of Disraeli which Messrs. Buckle and Monypenny published over a period of several years, and which is now available in two handy volumes, so that the greater part of the contents of the two new volumes will be completely unknown to the reading public. The collection is edited by the Marquis of Zetland, who is probably better known to the world at present as Earl of Ronaldshay, author of many books of Eastern travel and politics and the biographer of the late Lord Curzon. He has brought to this work a mind steeped in the politics of the time, no less than a knowledge of the East, which is of the utmost value in understanding such a personality as Disraeli, who was as much of the East in his mentality as of the England of the nineteenth century in his practical politics.

* * * * *

For filling in detail and giving life to his picture the historian, says Lord Zetland in his introduction, "will seek less formal documents, and, above all, the private letters of persons who, from the accident of their position, have been able to bring influence to bear upon the progress of events. To such documents there attaches a special value; for of all contemporary records they alone are likely to possess in a high degree the value of spontaneity. Of such a kind are the letters which form the subject of this book." Ireland, the Suez Canal purchase, the creation of the Queen Empress of India, the Congress of Berlin, Afghan and Zulu Wars, depression of trade, and the publication of "Endymion," all come within the years covered by this vivacious and revealing correspondence. "As a rule," wrote Disraeli, "male society is not much to my taste." And again, "I require sympathy; but male sympathy does not suit me, and I am fastidious as to the other sex."

To Lady Bradford he confessed in 1874 that he felt fortunate in having a female sovereign: "I owe everything to woman; and if in the sunset of life I have still a young heart, it is due to that influence." In 1872 Lady Beaconsfield died, and there was left vacant the place which that rich partner had taken in his life since his marriage 33 years earlier. On his own confession, he required female sympathy; so he turned, naturally, to the two ladies who had been his friends for many years. One of them, Lady Chesterfield, was a widow; the other was still happily married, and both were grandmothers at the time when the correspondence printed in these volumes opens. These two ladies were, says Lord Zetland, "noted beauties in their day; the eldest, Anne, married to the Earl of Chesterfield; the youngest, Selina, destined to become a little later the wife of the then Lord Newport, afterwards Earl of Bradford. Yet, delightful though he found the society of these two ladies in those early days, little can he have foreseen the intimate part which, at a much later date, they were to play in the fiery sunset of his life." In 1868, when he had at last achieved the Premier ship, "climbed to the top of the greasy pole," as he said himself, he asked Lord Bradford to resume, under his leadership, the office of Lord Chamberlain, which Bradford had filled capably enough under Lord Derby. Five years later, when Lady Beaconsfield had been dead some months, the relations of Disraeli and the Ladies Chesterfield and Bradford "were suddenly lifted on to an entirely different plane."

* * * * *

The existence of this strange romance has been long the knowledge of the world; the full story has already been told in Mr. Buckle's volumes, but, as Lord Zetland says, "in sentences so measured and so restrained as scarcely to bring home to the reader its truly remarkable nature." At the most busy times Disraeli found time to write long letters or notes to Lady Bradford and Lady Chesterfield: "I am only out for five minutes for food; but I write to you," or "Only a hurried mem. scribbled on my hat in the House of Lords." Always envelopes and paper alike were heavily edged in black, of which a specimen is given in the second volume. "It is strange, but I always used to think that the Queen, persisting in these emblems of woe, indulged in a morbid sentiment. And yet it has become my lot, and seemingly an irresistible one. I lost one who was literally devoted to me . . . and when I have been on the point sometimes of terminating this emblem of my bereavement, the thought that there was no longer any being in the world to whom I was an object of concentrated feeling overcame me and the sign remained."

It remained until the day of his death; but always the reader will persist in asking: "Would he have continued his emblem if the Queen had ceased to use it?" These two personalities, each dominating in their own sphere and in their own way, a Queen and her Premier-admirer, reacted upon each other in the most curious ways. No one who has ever read any life of Disraeli can forget those primroses which he sent to the Queen, his Faery Queen! "Am very sorry indeed that you will not be visible to-day," he could write innumerable times to Lady Bradford. "To-morrow at 3 I go to the Faery. We shall meet at dinner, at any rate, if not before." "I am overwhelmed with affairs, but shall not be able to manage or control them if I do not see you. Therefore, don't think that a waste of time. I shall call at half-past two with the hope of seeing you for a moment; if I only see you as yesterday, it is something." Clearly he was infatuated; and if he proposed marriage to Lady Chesterfield, it was well understood, as Lord Zetland points out, in the family circle that he did so mainly with a view to having a definite claim on the younger sister's society. So he haunted the doorstep of the Bradford house "with the persistence of an infatuated suitor." With some truth did the Duke of Richmond say to Lord Cairns in 1876: "Lady Bradford seems to know everything, down to the most minute details of everything that passes." All the time Europe was in ferment.

* * * * *

Gladstone did not fail to make effective use of the stories of atrocities perpetrated by the infidel Turk upon the gracious Christians of Bulgaria. His Fiery Cross was at least as brilliant as Disraeli's Fiery Sunset, and much more useful in politics. Disraeli was not convinced by the Russian concern for Christianity in Bulgaria. "The Emperor of Russia," he told Lady Chesterfield, "cares as much for the Christians as you do for Spurgeon; and he and all his Court would don the turban to-morrow if he could only build a Kremlin on the Bosphorus." So "the Russians shall not have Constantinople," brought Disraeli to the peak of his political career, when, fresh from the Congress of Berlin, he was invested with the Order of the Garter and made a Freeman of London.

So elated was he that he could write: "Public affairs are so grave and pressing that I can hardly command my mind to write a private letter—even to you. I am now going to the Faery, who has much to make her disquieted. Bismarck is playing the game of old Bonaparte. Then I must go to the House of Commons and blow into the air the conspiracy of the Liberals, the Fenians, and The Times newspaper, their organ, to discredit and eventually destroy H.M. Government." Bismarck and Ireland were the shadows across the Fiery Sunset, and he had not long to wait for the success of the "conspiracy."

His Queen's smile was more to him than his Garter and his Freedom of London. Then came the great initial success of "Endymion" to crown his closing months. "'Endymion' is only published to-day, with this remarkable circumstance—the publishers have no copies left; the whole edition, I believe 10,000, having been bespoken. This never happened before," he could write to Lady Bradford on 26th November, 1880, adding that he had received a cheque for £10,000 for the work. These letters will add nothing to the statesman, but they will add considerably to the knowledge of the complex man, Benjamin Disraeli, and Lord Zetland is to be congratulated upon so excellent a piece of editing.

RECENT FICTION.

MR. WALPOLE'S NEW TALE.

IN his latest book Mr. Walpole reminds us of a skilled cricketer having a jolly game with schoolboys, and enjoying it thoroughly. Though the work of a skilled writer, the book lacks the seriousness of many of his former stories. Hans Frost, a celebrated author, still hale and hearty on his seventieth birthday, is an imposing figure. He has married a beautiful widow, whose great object in life is to be a personage in society. Frost is so surrounded with conventionality, and so managed by his wife Ruth that his genius becomes stifled, and he cannot rouse himself to fulfil the dream of his life by writing a great book; though its evanescent beginnings crowd into his mind, always led by "The One-Eyed Commander." Then Nathalie Swan, a girl of nineteen, his wife's niece, comes on a visit, and in her "Uncle Hans" finds the sympathy and understanding that has been lacking in his life, and he realises that he is virtually a prisoner. Nathalie falls in love with Vladimir Sharkin, a young Russian, but because she mistrusts him, goes off to earn her own living. Hans follows and finds her, and also finds his own freedom, and we leave him at last alone with Martha in a small cottage by the sea, sitting down to write his great novel. "Martha, the notorious dachshund," her master's constant companion, is a great character, reminiscent of one of Mr. Galworthy's dogs, "The Spaniel John."

MR SINCLAIR admits having first written this book twenty-two years ago in the form of a four-act drama, which never was produced. The writer was foreshadowing things as they would exist in the year 2,000, and he congratulates himself for having anticipated aeroplanes and wireless telephones. Other writers, however, had anticipated these things before him, and, when he was recasting the work, he might have introduced a few other inventions, which since have become everyday affairs. Other writers, too, have imagined the rebirth of society from a handful of the survivors of a world cataclysm—and have handled the idea with immeasurably more skill. Mr. Sinclair calls his production a "comedy farce." Admirers of "The Jungle," "Oil," and other works from his pen will be inclined to regard it as a tragedy. The characters are the crudest of puppets, the situations are preposterous, and the dialogue absurd—in fact, there is an immaturity about the whole work which would place its origin back further than twenty-two years.

"The Millennium." By Upton Sinclair. T. Werner Laurie. 7/6 net.

A gallant knight errant is Rapidan, good friend and honourable enemy, and round him Mr. Jackson Gregory spins one of his most rousing yarns. From the time when he aids young Terril, wrongly accused, to escape the pursuing law, and jogs, well pleased with life, in his ingenious house on wheels into the Spanish hacienda and the hub of his own fate, Rapidan knows crowded hours. The Southern pride of race is all that stands between him and the girl whom he loves, lovely Senorita Vega Alarcon, and the wonderful turn of Fortune's wheel that removes the obstacle is a stroke of genius.

"Rapidan." By Jackson Gregory. Hodder and Stoughton. 7/6 net.

Miss Goolden's new novel is a fragment of commonplace life, seen through eyes of understanding that penetrate the inner meanings of human actions. The central figure is Lou Ridley, awkward, inarticulate, idealistic—and eighteen. Lou's mentality hinges upon his adoration of a fascinating mother, and when she outrages the conventions in her grasp of happiness he still remains stoutly loyal; but his life for a space lies in ruins, and not even the idyllic love that has sprung up between himself and seventeen-year-old Drusilla can escape the general devastation. The author ends, however, on a note of promise.

THE WORKS OF VIRGINIA WOOLF.—A uniform edition of the books of Mrs. Virginia Woolf is to be published by the Hogarth Press. GRAMAPHONE RECORDS.

RECITALS AND THEIR LIMITATIONS.

RECORDS THAT WILL NOT BE HEARD.

Gramaphone owners in and about Dublin are looking forward to the series of recitals to be given at the Theatre Royal next week. The Gramaphone Company ("H.M.V.") and the Columbia Company both will provide two recitals, and the Irish Gramaphone Traders' Association, which has organised "Gramaphone Week," will provide a recital of popular records of other makes. For all the recitals attractive programmes have been arranged, and they will afford to gramaphone owners a means of gaining knowledge of the best things in the record lists. It is likely, also, that they will give us some ideas with regard to improved reproduction.

Entertaining though they will be, such recitals can merely open the door to the pleasures and advantages of the gramaphone, such as are known to those who have been accustomed to explore further. Only brief samples of the many kinds of music, entertainment, and instructive matter now represented in record resources can be included in the programme, and several kinds must be neglected altogether in the arrangement of the programmes. Chamber music, for example, is excluded because it does not make its due effect in a large theatre. To give an idea of the pleasure there is in listening to chamber music by means of a gramaphone in the quietness of the home, I know no better single choice than the record of the London String Quartet playing the "Nocturne" movement from a string quartet by Borodin.

LARGER FORMS.

Again, the necessity for giving variety to the recital programmes forbids indication of splendid resources available to amateurs in music in the shape of complete recordings of large works, such as symphonies, concertos, ballets and operas. Some of the best records in existence are to be found among those included in the "H.M.V." albums of Gilbert and Sullivan operas. Sometimes I take down my "Yeomen of the Guard" album, and find it almost impossible to break off before playing the complete opera.

Another great record publication that is not likely to be represented in the recital programmes is the Columbia set of records giving a Bayreuth performance of "Tristan and Isolde." The three volumes of the set must be a treasure for any Wagnerian; they contain not only the records, but the text, in German and in English, with notes by Mr. Ernest Newman, and two of the records give little lectures by Mr. Newman explaining the composer's use of typical themes.

To this kind of gramaphone resource the recitals can afford no clue; nor will they reveal what is available in educational material—most notably, the language courses, such as the H.M.V. "Colloquial French," which enable one to take lessons at one's own pace from the best teachers and from native speakers.

UTILITY.

Recitals, again, cannot illustrate effectively the practical usefulness of the gramaphone in providing music for small dances, and for school marching and physical exercises. In mentioning the latter, I am thinking of the records issued lately by the Columbia Company of marches played in strict time and at indicated speeds by the Grenadier Guards Band, records yielding sound in big volume, as would be required in a large schoolroom.

Hear the recitals, if possible—I know most of the records that are included in the programmes, and can promise that they will afford the greatest pleasure to all listeners—but do not suppose that they will suggest one-half of the value of possession of a gramaphone, having regard to the variety of interests served by the various record lists.

OCTOBER ISSUES.

A Delius festival will be held in London later in the present month. Gramaphone owners can have their own Delius festival at any time; some records of the music of this composer will be reviewed in a later article. The October "H.M.V." issues include two of his orchestral pieces, and also the Sonata No. 1 for violin and piano, played by May Harrison and Arnold Box.

Vocal and organ recordings made for the first time in St. Paul's Cathedral are represented in the H.M.V. list for October. The choir of nearly fifty men and boys are heard in unaccompanied singing of "Hail, gladdening light" and "Angels ever loving," while the organ works performed by Dr. Stanley Marchant include a Bach Fugue.

The Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra of New York, whose playing of Haydn's "Clock" Symphony, mentioned here last week, is represented by a brilliant performance of one of the most popular of orchestral works, "The Sorcerer's Apprentice" (Dukas). Toscanini is the conductor.

Most interesting and satisfactory of all the records in the new list, from the point of view of educated musicians, is that of Gota Ljungberg singing the dramatic Finale of Strauss's "Salome" to the masterly playing of the Berlin State Opera Orchestra under Dr. Leo Blech. Excellent also are the records of a scene from "Parsifal," done by the London Smypheny Orchestra, under Albert Coates, with Gota Ljungberg and Walter Widdop the vocalists.

A YIDDISH TENOR.

Among the best of the first Decca records was a twelve-inch giving the "Bell Song" from Delibe's opera, "Lakmé," sung by Olga Olgina, whose name is new to me. Her voice is agile and pleasing. Some ten-inch records by Solomon Stramer show him to be a tenor capable of fine dramatic singing. Like the rest of his songs, his "Sonny Boy" is sung in Yiddish. Frank Titterton sings (in English) "None shall sleep to-night," from "Turandot," and "Let her believe," from "The Girl of the Golden West." 'Cello solos by Hans Kindler are well recorded. Decca issues include comics and dance music; "Ambrose and His Orchestra," at the May Fair Hotel, supply the best of the latter.

IRISH RECORDINGS.

The Parlophone catalogue has included Irish names for some time past; now a long list of recordings made in Ireland is presented in the new Irish supplement. Local singers and instrumentalists in Cork, Limerick and Tipperary, as well as in Dublin, have made records, most of the subjects being of the kind which is deemed to be popular here. Irish dance tunes, ballets and humorous efforts (by Jimmy O'Dea and others) are included, and the Civic Guard Band provides band selections.

TOWN-PLANNING IN OLDEN TIMES.

(By T. P. STUART).

IF we compare Speed's map of 1610, several points may be noted as to the growth of Dublin from his time to that of Brooking—more than a century. Taking the south side first, we find that Speed shows Trinity College as the last building to the east—of course, outside the walls of the city proper. This fact is commemorated by the words "juxta Dublin," on the College seal. On the west, Speed ends at James's Gate, and on the south with St. Kevin's street. North of the river, St. Michan's Church is about the last building to the west, and St. Mary's Abbey is the most eastern.

In Brooking's day the city had grown very little to the west; the "City Bason," the Poorhouse, Steevens's Hospital and the Royal Hospital were, in effect, all the additions. On the other hand, the spread of the streets eastwards and northwards was very considerable. To the north, Bolton street and the Linen Hall were about the limit, while, to the north-east, the happily named World's End lane, off Mabbot street, was the termination. Southward, St. Stephen's Green stands out, but not fully completed on the southern side. On the south-east corner of this enclosure, where we now find Leeson street, is marked "Sucsey street"; but, doubtless, this is the engraver's shot at the draughtsman's bad writing, as there are six letters in both proper names. A score of years later, in Roque's map, we find the four sides of this open space named as follows:—Beaux Walk (N.), Leeson's Walk (S.), French Walk (W.) and Munk's Walk (E.). Going down Grafton street—then newly made, and called after the natural son of Charles II., who was killed at the siege of Cork—we reach the river by a narrow passage, bisecting Fleet street, on the site of which Westmoreland street was made in 1801.

MR. BOWDEN, TOWN-PLANNER.

In making these remarks I have relied principally on Brooking's plan of the city, which is set out in the original, underneath the pictorial view that forms the subject of this article. As regards the slow growth of the city to the west, to which I have drawn attention, I shall quote the opinion of an English visitor to Ireland in the year 1791. It is from "A Tour in Ireland," by Charles Topham Bowden, Esq. (Published by W. Corbet, No. 57 Great Britain-street, Dublin), and is as follows:—

> "From Castle-street, I walked through Skinner-row to the Tholsel, a wretched looking fabric, whence I proceeded to the Royal Hospital, at the western extremity of the city. This hospital is similar to Chelsea, and stands in a most delightful situation. I am astonished at the want of taste in the Irish nobility and gentry in not making this end of the town their residence, instead of accompanying a huge custom-house, to the mouth of the harbour. I have remarked that the principal gentlemen of all the capital cities of Europe, Dublin excepted, choose their habitations, remote as they conveniently can from the harbour; tho' they have not the endowment of a more beautiful piece of scenery than that which lies deserted, I may say, by the Irish gentry. The eastern side of Dublin should be occupied by the merchantile classes; instead of which it is all laid out in elegant streets for the reception of the nobility and gentry. . . . I proceeded to the Circular Road, and walked on to Summer-hill, absolutely astonished at the succession of charming views and beautiful scenery. Italy itself cannot boast anything superior. If both sides of the road were planted with trees at equal distances, as I observed on the Grand Canal, I do not believe there would be so fine an environ in Europe.
> This quarter of the metropolis surpasses infinitely the rest for improvements. In its vicinity alone, there are as many streets laid out as would form a little city. These streets, when completed, will be so great an addition to Dublin, that it is to be apprehended Ireland will resemble a rickety child, by having a head too large for its body. When London did not contain more houses than Dublin does now, in the reign of Elizabeth, one of the most profound politicians and abest statesmen that ever guided the British helm, procured an act to be passed for the prevention of new buildings within three miles of its gates. Amsterdam is at present under a similar restraint. In Paris there were obelisks erected, beyond which no house could be built, though it is the capital of thirty millions of people. . . . I had the honour of dining in company a few years since, with the late Lord Annaly, at the Earl of Chesterfield's in London. Doctor Johnson, Captain Topham, a near relation of mine, and several other literary Gentlemen were present. We had some conversation relative to Dublin, and it was his Lordship's decided opinion that it ought to be improved, but not extended."

If Dr. Johnson had read Bowden's book, we can imagine his saying, "Sir, this seems a sensible fellow." The doctor, it will be remembered, declined Boswell's suggestion of a visit to Ireland—this was after the Scottish tour that they made together. "But would you not like to see Dublin?" said Boswell. "No, sir," said the great man, "Dublin is only a worse capital." However, to balance this, we must also recollect that Johnson on another occasion said: "Sir, the Irish are an honest people—they seldom speak well of one another." As regards Bowden's ideas of town-planning and regional development, I think (writing from memory) that he had a good deal in common with the views of Professor Patrick Geddes, of Edinburgh, who made the first serious effort to stir our imaginations as to what might be done for Dublin by taking thought for the future.

SWIFT IN GRAFTON STREET.

Since I wrote the above, I have found an earlier date for Grafton street than that given in his book by my valued friend, the late Rev. Dr. McCready—viz., 1728. Gilbert, in his "History of Dublin" (vol. III., p. 196), states that there is a printed official reference to this street in a Statute of the year 1708. He further states that Grafton street had been even partially formed some years before the close of the seventeenth century. A portion of it then was wheat land, let at the yearly rent of half-a-crown an acre, and part of it was known as "Crosse's Garden." Mrs. Rebecca Dingley, Stella's chaperone, for whom Swift had a great esteem, lived in this street until 1743, at the house of Mrs. Ridgeway (the daughter of Mrs. Brent, the housekeeper at St. Patrick's Deanery); and after the death of Stella, Swift often visited here and stayed to dinner. It will be remembered that the "Journal to Stella" dealt not only with Mrs. Johnson, but also with Mrs. Dingley and her peculiarities.

The numbers in the explanatory table in the corner of Brooking's view appear to be somewhat mixed. No. 6 is called The Tholsel, but it is St. Werburg's; No. 9 is given as Christ's Church, but it is The Tholsel, certainly. Christ's Church is numbered 8, but this number in the table is "St. Warburgh's." These, however, are only spots in the sun, as it were. We must be grateful to the admirable Mr. Brooking for his splendid map; and may justly say, as Stevenson wrote to Sir J. M. Barrie—"All the brethern in Corinth salute thee."

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY.

Poppy Day : Cockles in Clontarf : Book Borrowers : A Dublin Octogenarian. Chrysanthemums : Points of View : The Unemployed. The Public School.

The Young Unemployed.

Apart from the adult unemployed in Dublin, there appear to be a remarkable number of youths seeking in vain for work. A sixteen-years-old lad of my acquaintance saw an advertisement the other day to the effect that a tailoring firm wanted a messenger boy—applicants to call at 10 a.m. He put in an appearance at 8.30—and found seventeen other boys already waiting. At ten o'clock the first three were called in and one of them appointed. Two days later, in reply to a furniture firm's advertisement, he arrived outside the works at 7.30 a.m.—to find over a score of applicants already queued up.

Book Borrowers.

Most book-lovers, I should think, have suffered at times from the activities of those people who borrow favourite volumes and omit to return them. Sometimes, indeed, a worse thing happens; for a friend of mine who has an extensive library tells me that he has occasionally purchased some of his missing books at secondhand book stalls. My friend finds it difficult to refuse the loan of a book, and is too generous to be seriously disturbed by the frailty of borrowers, but the last time I was in his library I noticed framed in a prominent place the following pungent sentence from Montaigne:—

"The reason why borrowed books are so seldom returned to their owners is that it is much easier to retain the books than what is in them."

A Loss to Irish Rugby?

The announcement that Mr. R. M. Byers is leaving Belfast and going to reside permanently in London will be read with great regret by all followers of Rugby football in Ireland. His absence from the North of Ireland Club's team will considerably weaken that combination, for which he has played so many strenuous and brilliant games. If, as is rumoured, he intends to give up the game entirely, the loss to Ireland's team in the coming International matches will be sorely felt. Mr. Byers first figured in an International as a member of the Irish team in the famous match against Scotland at Murrayfield in February of last year, and since then he has appeared in four other internationals. He was "capped" against Wales in the 1927-28 season, and against England, Scotland and Wales last season; so he has only missed the match against France last season since he gained his entry into International ranks. He is one of the most brilliant wing three-quarters in the game.

MR. R. M. BYERS.

The cause of the rumours is the fact that Mr. Byers was married in July of this year, which may account for his determination, as suggested, to abandon football. Residence in London need not of itself be a bar to his continued participation in a game that he so obviously loves, as many Irish players, such as Stephenson, Cagney and others, play regularly with London clubs. It is probable that professional duties may be the cause of the abandonment, if there be such abandonment at all. Every follower of Irish Rugby will still hope that R. M. Byers will continue to play.

From Aldershot for Belfast.

Lieutenant-Colonel Denis J. C. K. Bernard, C.M.G., D.S.O., who this month will leave Aldershot to take up charge of the station at Belfast, is the son of the late Mr. Percy B. Bernard, J.P., D.L., of Castle Hacket, County Galway, and is a relative of the Earl of Bandon, who is the head of the Bernard family.

Colonel Bernard, who was born 47 years ago, was educated at Eton, and went on to Sandhurst for his military studies. He took up a commission in the Rifle Brigade in 1902, and reached his captaincy ten years later.

He rendered distinguished service in the European War, and in 1927 held the command of the 1st Battalion of the Royal Ulster Rifles. From 1915 until the close of the war he was a General Staff Officer. He received the D.S.O. in 1917 and the C.M.G in 1919

The Chrysanthemum.

The chrysanthemum has arrived, and the florists' shops are gay with the beautiful blooms. It is remarkable how successful the culture of the chrysanthemum is in Ireland, and within the past number of years new varieties have been introduced by horticulturists all over the country. The popularity of the flower is due chiefly to its beauty and its lasting properties, as those arranging the chrysanthemums for the house or table decoration find them most satisfying of all flowers, and they are most economical at a season when the flowers are an expensive item in the house. It is strange that the chrysanthemum, which is associated with Japan, should be so successful even in the out-of-door gardens in this country; for the many coloured blooms are now seen in all our cottage gardens, and are as much an Irish flower as of the country of Pierre Loti's heroine.

German Eagles.

It would be interesting to know what builder or architect was responsible for the stone eagles displayed on the roofs of so many houses a few miles south of Dublin. The buildings upon which these birds perch appear to be fairly old, and are solid affairs in comparison with the average modern bungalow. In every case the eagle is alert, with wings half stretched as if for immediate flight, and in most cases the bird's head is turned to one side, as though something had alarmed him just as he had alighted there. I noticed two of these stone eagles on Kingstown houses the other day; there is a very conspicuous one on the roof of a large house not far from Ballybrack village, and another on a house near Shankill. Is the same builder responsible for all of them, and was he a German?

Cockles in Clontarf.

A correspondent writes:—With reference to your remarks respecting cockles in Clontarf, I would venture to claim priority in this respect for the broad sands stretching from Ringsend to Merrion. In between these points lies Sandymount, from time immemorial the paradise of the cockle-hunter. It used to be a familiar sight long ago to come across vendors of this succulent shell fish along the Strand road, carrying their wares in baskets usually decorated with dripping sea-weed. I fear, though, that even in its best days the Sandymount cockle business could never be reckoned a luxury trade. It flourished in the era when a horse tram drive from Nelson's Pillar to The Tower was a whole time bank holiday excursion, and it has found its laureate in a small way. I recall a little book of verse, "Jingles and Jars," by H. J. Holmes, more popularly known as "The Wobbling Bard Philander" of the Irish Cyclist. In this he describes, in graphic terms, how—

The ruthless hunter wanders
With a weapon in his hand,
To scoop the toothsome cockle
From its quarters in the sand.

It is about time a new edition of "Jingles and Jars" was issued for the present generation.

Eighty-four.

Before the month of October is very far advanced, Sir John William Moore will have reached his eighty-fourth year, and to many he will cause surprise by reason of his activity and almost youthful buoyancy. The son of a noted Dublin surgeon, Sir John was born in October, 1845. He was educated at the High School and at Dublin University, and has been in practice as a physician since 1868. Sir John holds numerous distinctions, and is consulting physician to many of the city hospitals. He is one of Dublin's keenest meteorologists, and when other people are asleep he is to be found on the roof of his house in Fitzwilliam square gazing heavenwards through an efficient telescope. Sir John is regarded as the father of the Meath Hospital, where his breezy disposition and kindly nature are as good as a tonic to some of the patients.

Law and Language.

Mr. George A. Moonan, who spoke on the economic position of the Gaeltacht at the Celtic Congress at Glasgow, is a member of the Irish Bar. He is an Irish speaker, and has for a great many years taken a keen interest in furthering the development of the Irish language, especially so in regard to literature. He is also one of the Professors at the Leinster College of Irish, an institution with which he has long been connected. He was called to the Irish Bar in Michelmas Term, 1911, since when he has practised on the Midland Circuit and in the Dublin Courts.

MR. G. A. MOONAN.

The Public School.

I see that Dr. Cyril Norwood, the Headmaster of Harrow, in a study of The English Tradition of Education has put up a notable defence of the much criticised Public School system, avowing that, while Continental schools may be all that is claimed for them intellectually, they still lack an essential something which is to be found in the character-building power of the English method. More and more stress is being laid abroad upon athletics. The modern produce is plucky and fit, and the spectre of bullying has been laid by the improved environment of the pupil. He tells some good stories of the plagosus Orbilius of an older era. An Eton headmaster found a group of boys about his door, promptly took them inside and beat them forthwith. Still they stood; and, being asked why they did not go, they ruefully replied: "Please, sir, we're the Confirmation Class." This reminds me of the famous flogger of Christ's Hospital, John Bowyer, of whom one of his victims said, on receiving news of his death, that it was lucky that he would be escorted by cherubs, who, being but head and shoulders, afforded no point of attack for the rod.

Post Offices.

It may be an example of new brooms sweeping clean, or a gesture in recognition of the centenary of St. Martin's le Grand; at any rate, the British Postmaster-General has set afoot a practice of more frequent cleaning and painting and furbishing up in the post offices. St. Martin's le Grand no longer is the General Post Office, but its dark pile lives in the memory of any who have visited London. It had not been long occupied before Rowland Hill, in the teeth of official conservatism, inaugurated his epoch-making innovation in the postal services. One of the sights of London used to be the setting out of the night mails by coach from that centre, a spectacle which on the Royal birthday became a veritable pagent; for the coaches, lit up and decorated, made procession through the City, West End and Hyde Park, before setting out on their long journey to the finger tips of the country. Our post offices, at least at the main points, are mostly imposing buildings, but the example of the new head office might be copied and an attempt made to brighten up the rather dingy interiors. The gilt of a fine facade is forgotten when the pens for public use have bad nibs, and the ink in the wells is a murky pulp. One has a peculiar affection for the village sub-offices, those distributing stations of local intelligence; and while one has little belief in the legendary post-mistress busy with a steaming kettle at the envelopes, it is a piquant myth and a boon to the story-teller.

Poppy Day.

My friend, Major Tynan, asks me to appeal for volunteers to sell Flanders poppies on Armistice Day. The British Legion is doing excellent work for distressed ex-Service men in Ireland, and deserves all the assistance that can be given to it. Indeed, much more by way of relief comes back to the Free State than is actually subscribed on Poppy Day. Last year £9,852 1s. 6d. was collected, but £16,342 was disbursed in the relief of necessitous ex-soldiers and sailors.

MAJOR J. J. TYNAN, D.S.O.

Volunteers should communicate with British Legion Headquarters, Harcourt street, Dublin.

Doctors.

We have a respect for doctors in this country which is not to be matched elsewhere. Some have held that we produce the finest members of that profession, and attribute their supremacy to the surroundings in which much of their work is done. In the crowded tenements they have to exercise all manner of initiative and improvisation, working under difficulties of place, and impeded by the unhappy and the curious who cannot be excluded from apartments which are virtually public. The Schools of Irish Medicine never lose sight of the Hippocratic, or clinical, side; the patient is ever an individual. Indeed, a country dispensary doctor is a family doctor to all in his area. On the other hand, the school of Galen, the scientific side of medicine, is represented by the great specialists of the Capital. Some have thought that the day of the general practitioner is done, and that by means of the hospitals the patients of the future will pass from one specialist to another, as his needs may be. It is, however, certain that the personal touch in the art of healing, the intimate knowledge of the patient beyond the immediacy of his complaint, can never be dispensed with if the best results are to accrue. For those who take an interest in the work of the doctor and the oblique effect upon it of the various threads which make up civilisation no better introduction can be found than Dr. A. J. Brock's recent publication, "Greek Medicine." They will be astonished at the number of points of contact between the ancient and modern, from tads of dieting to the "Hippocratic Oath," which is the ethical charter of the modern practitioner.

The Point of View.

I suppose that the practice of any profession will colour its followers' views of their fellow men. The soldier will find little good in a man of whom a soldier could not be made; the schoolmaster thinks in terms of pedagogy; to the lawyer men are good or bad witnesses, to the policeman potential malefactors. I was driving in a car one day with a doctor of my acquaintance, when we overtook a young fellow walking. "Do you see that chap?" said he to me; "interesting boy that, very; I had a tube right through him once." The same doctor was summoned one evening to visit the servant of an elderly and nervous couple. He knew them well, and realised that they were apt to lose their heads in the face of anything out of the ordinary. He examined the patient, made the necessary prescription, and then, calling her master and mistress, he said abruptly:—"That girl's got jaundice. She will probably turn yellow in the night; and, for heaven's sake, don't send for me."

"The Picture of a Girl" : Judge's Criticism of Holiday Posters : Fruit-Growing : Armagh's Big Crop of Apples : Silence on the Lagan : Effect of the Shipyard Strike.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Thursday.

THERE are many important subjects to be considered when the Northern Parliament meets a month hence in Belfast, and there are already broad hints that the Nationalists intend to drop a bombshell into the Unionist camp regarding what they allege is a grave miscarriage of justice, in regard to a youth who was sentenced to three years' imprisonment for an offence which, it is said, another man has since confessed that he committed. A strong agitation is being set in motion to have the evidence reviewed in the light of the fresh facts which have been produced. If the man is innocent, he should be set free, no matter whose serenity is disturbed; but, on the other hand, the authorities may have good reasons for silence. An official statement would help to clear the air.

JUDGE CRITICISES POSTERS.

An interesting controversy has arisen regarding the best means of establishing the fame of Northern Ireland as a holiday resort. The Ulster Tourist Development Association, since its formation a few years ago, has published three different pictorial posters for distribution in other countries, the first of these having been produced by a local lithographic firm, the second by Mr. William Conor, the well-known artist, and the third by a woman. There is nothing very remarkable about any of them, and although they are attractive enough in a simple way, they do not give an impression of the scenic beauties of the Six Counties.

Judge Thompson, Recorder of Belfast, has severely criticised these productions, in every one of which a girl is the chief characteristic, and asks if there are no cliffs, loughs, waterfalls and other scenes of splendour for which the province is famous, which could be introduced. "Why can no other medium be thought of for advertising the numerous attractions of our province than a picture of a girl?" he demands, adding that "we have had grinning girls, mincing girls and skipping girls," finally suggesting that the girls should get a rest for a while. It does seem strange, as another critic has said, that with scenery and coastline unsurpassed the world over for varied effects, poster girls should be selected as typical of an ancient and historical province. The Tourist Association is now offering a prize of £15 for the design of a new poster for next year.

THE APPLE INDUSTRY.

Splendid crops of apples are reported from certain districts in County Antrim, the result of up-to-date methods of culture. Experiments in spraying the trees during the early summer months with the Bordeaux mixture have proved highly successful. At a demonstration given this week the County Instructor in Horticulture said that they had overcome the worst of disease, and attention must now be given to marketing on proper lines if the industry is to be developed. It is of importance for growers to remember that they are in open competition with Canadian, American, Dutch and German apples; and it is, therefore, essential that the grading and packing shall be done in a scientific and attractive manner in order to obtain the highest prices.

The future for fruit-growing in the province appears to be much brighter than it has been for some years past, and with the improved methods now being introduced the owners of orchards should do well. The production of clean fruit, marketed honestly and carefully, will amply repay growers for the extra trouble involved. A convenient market is, of course, an important consideration, and it is, therefore, gratifying to learn that it is hoped to have a new canning factory established in Portadown in the near future. It will be recalled that the Ministry of Agriculture is in favour of this project, and has promised to give a grant towards it. There are hundreds of tons of apples in the Northern orchards available and suitable for canning. Experts state that they are equal to the best imported brands, and enterprise in this direction is certain to bring its own reward.

HUMAN LIFE CHEAP.

"Human life seems to be the cheapest commodity in Belfast to-day." This startling statement was made by Alderman Midgley, at the meeting of the Belfast Corporation on Tuesday, when the proposed by-law prohibiting motorists from passing stationary tramcars on the inside, for the protection of passengers, was rejected. The question was raised on the minutes of the Police Committee, which has charge of traffic control in the city. It was stated that the regulation was not to be proceeded with at present, while it was also intimated that a deputation from the local branch of the Royal Automobile Club had contended that the by-law would increase traffic congestion and add to the risk of accidents. It has even been stated that in the event of the by-law being passed, motorists would either race the tramcars for the stopping-places or attempt to pass on the offside, with possibly disastrous consequences, and that is the argument which appears to have settled the problem.

In the meantime the roll of fatal accidents is steadily increasing, and there seems to be some little semblance of truth in Alderman Midgley's assertion. The coroner is kept busy, and he has publicly drawn attention to the perils of the streets and the need for more stringent safeguards. It is now the duty of the municipal authorities to introduce some other method of control which will curb appreciably the enthusiasm of worshippers of speed who bring the great mass of careful motorists into disrepute. Neither driver nor pedestrian wants to be involved in an accident, and, if the ordinary courtesies of the road were observed, there would not be so much cause for complaint.

A GLOOMY OUTLOOK.

The latest information available regarding the shipyard joiners' strike is far from reassuring. The rejection by the men of the suggested arbitration proceedings has caused much disappointment, as it was thought that work would be resumed at once, but a settlement appears to be as distant as ever. Several other sections of workers in the yards have also been affected owing to construction being held up, and, instead of the cheering industrial symphony, there is virtual silence on the Lagan. The stoppage has already caused heavy financial losses, in addition to the dislocation of labour. Moreover, work on the Brittanic and other vessels awaiting completion is being delayed, the total number of men now idle being close on five thousand.

AMERICA CUP PROSPECTS.

Much interest is being taken in Northern yachting circles regarding next year's races for the America Cup. The challenge was issued by the Royal Ulster Club, and there is a feeling of optimism regarding the ultimate result under the new conditions which have just been published. Sir Thomas Lipton's new challenger is being laid down by Messrs. Camper and Nicholson at Gosport, and it is expected that the new boat will mark a big advance on all the former Shamrocks. Both challenger and defender will be Bermudian rigged and of 76 feet rating by the New York Yacht Club's rules. The match will be decided by the best four out of seven races, and an unfinished event, or one resulting in a tie, will be repeated until one of the yachts is declared the victor. It is also provided that, if in any race neither yacht finishes the course in five and a half hours, that race will not count and must be re-sailed. There will be no time allowances, the yachts being required to compete on equal terms.

The first race will be sailed on the 13th September, 1930, and the course will be off the Brenton Reef light-vessel, near Newport, Rhode Island, instead of off the Ambrose light-vessel, Sandy Hook. With the exception of Sunday, the races will take place on successive days, weather permitting, and the first race will include fifteen miles to windward and back, or vice versa. For the second event the course will be triangular, every leg to be of ten miles with, if possible, the first leg to windward; and the remaining races will be alternately to windward and triangular, the first yacht to finish being the winner. Should Shamrock V. secure the most winning flags, the coveted trophy—the premier distinction in the yachting world—will find an honoured resting-place at the Royal Ulster Clubhouse, Bangor.

EDUCATIONAL LEGISLATION.

Lord Charlemont's statement at the Armagh Diocesan Synod that the proposed amendments to the Education Act would not be introduced into the Northern Parliament until next summer will largely clear the air for the coming autumn session. He pointed out that, while some of the alterations recommended by the united Churches and the Grand Orange Lodge were being dealt with, the Ministry had also thought it well to ask the Regional Committees if they had any proposals to put forward with regard to administration.

A certain amount of co-operation is to be allowed the clergy, but the Government does not wish to weaken unduly the powers of the committees, who, as Lord Charlemont acknowledged, have ruled wisely and well. The committees are opposed to any curtailment of their powers for the advantage of the clergy, and are in no way prepared to agree to the more important of the proposals put forward.

IRISH INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT.

At the meeting of the Irish Industrial Development Association (Incorporated), of 102-3 Grafton street, Dublin, the Council elected Senator the Dowager Countess of Desart to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the President, Senator Colonel Sir Nugent T. Everard, Bart. Mr. W. E. Shackleton (Lucan) was unanimously elected Vice-President of the Association.

A letter was read from the Dowager Lady Everard acknowledging the Council's resolution of sympathy on the death of Sir Nugent Everard.

In response to a request received from the Sligo Civic Week Committee, the Council presented the Committee with medals of the Irish Trade Mark for the two best dressed windows containing only goods of Irish manufacture in the Irish section of the Window Dressing Competition of Sligo Civic Week.

An Australian firm applied to register the device and word "Shamrock" in conjunction with the wording, "A little bit of old Ireland. None genuine unless bearing this trade mark," in respect of soil. In view of the character of the mark and the wording upon it the Council instructed their solicitors to obtain an assurance from the firm in question that the word "Shamrock" will be confined to genuine Irish soil.

"PADDY" AND "ERIN" TRADE MARKS.

The Council considered correspondence from their solicitors regarding the registration in London of the word "Paddy" in respect of precious metal and jewellery. The question of the word "Erin" on push pins and picture suspenders made in London was also considered, and instructions were issued to the secretary in the matter.

The secretary reported that she had communicated with the Department of Lands and Agriculture regarding the registration in London of the trade mark "Saorstat Eireann" in respect of agricultural produce.

Messrs. Shackleton and Kapp were nominated to represent the Council on the Industrial Exhibition Committee of Aonach Tailteann, set up in connection with the proposed all-Ireland Manufacturers' Exhibition to be held in 1931.

Unemployed relief schemes, totalling over £280,000, were sanctioned by Middlesbrough Corporation Committees yesterday for submission to Whitehall.

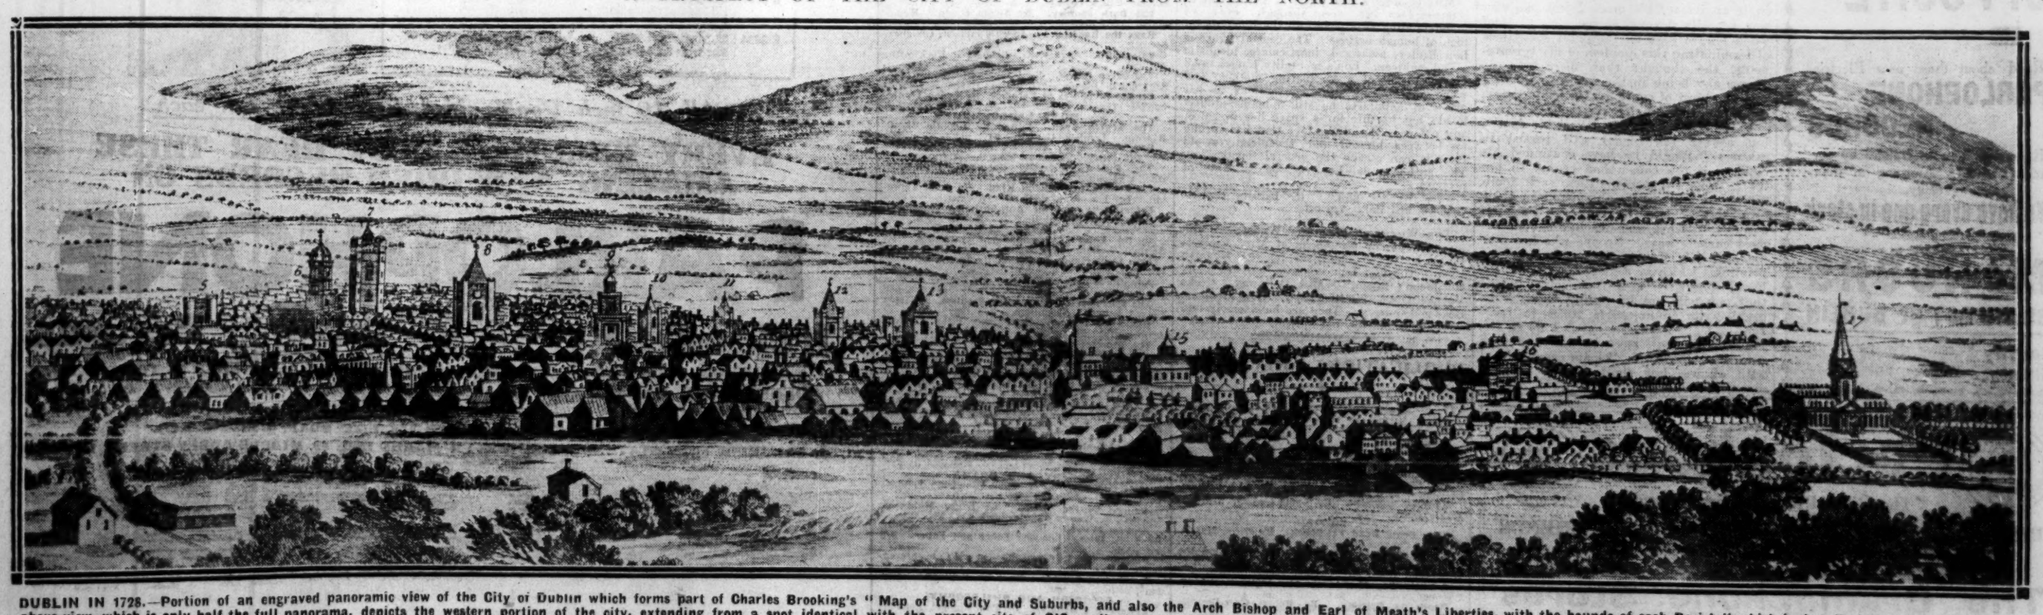
"A PROSPECT OF THE CITY OF DUBLIN FROM THE NORTH."



DUBLIN IN 1728.—Portion of an engraved panoramic view of the City of Dublin which forms part of Charles Brooking's "Map of the City and Suburbs, and also the Arch Bishop and Earl of Meath's Liberties, with the bounds of each Parish," which is described on this page. The above view, which is only half the full panorama, depicts the western portion of the city, extending from a spot identical with the present site of O'Connell street to the Royal Hospital, Kilmainham. The numbers shown on the map refer to the more important buildings, and are described as follows in a key which forms another portion of the map:—5, The Castle; 6, The Tholsell; 7, St. Patrick's Church; 8, St. Werburgh's; 9, Christ Church; 10, St. John's; 11, ———; 12, St. Luke's, 13, St. John's, in Thomas street; 14, St. Catherine's; 15, St. James's; 16, The Poor House; 17, The Royal Hospital. The left-hand portion of this map, which depicted the eastern portion of the city, appeared, along with a descriptive article, on this page yesterday. By joining up the two sections there can be obtained a full panoramic view of the city, from Ringsend to Kilmainham, as it was in the year 1728.

A COUNTY GALWAY GRIEVANCE.

NEED FOR HOSPITAL IN BALLINASLOE.

FROM OUR SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE.
BALLINASLOE, Thursday.

"Amalgamation has been the curse of Galway from every point of view. Not only has the transfer of the County Hospital to Galway City caused inconvenience and hardship, but there has been no saving in the county rates."

This view was expressed by a prominent resident of Ballinasloe, whom I questioned to-day on the need for local hospital facilities.

If a County Hospital case occurred at Banagher Bridge, 17 miles from Ballinasloe, the doctor would have to ring up Galway for the ambulance—which might be engaged for the time being. In that case the ambulance would have to drive a distance of 57 miles, via Ballinasloe, each way, during which time anything might happen.

I believe a similar complaint has been made regarding the lack of hospital accommodation on the western side of Galway City.

Under the Amalgamation of Union Scheme, which came into operation in 1921, both infirmaries and fever hospitals, as well as Poor Houses, were closed. In this county the Union inmates were transferred to the County Home in Loughrea, and the sick cases to the County Hospital in Galway.

Recently a Local Government inquiry was held in Galway, at which the Inspector decided that an infirmary for medical and surgical cases, as well as accommodation for fever or infectious cases, was to be provided.

That decision came before the County Board, who declined to take any action pending the result of the Poor Law Commission, which had then begun its investigations.

HARDSHIP TO THE POOR.

At this Commission, as well as at the previous Local Government inquiry, evidence was tendered from Ballinasloe detailing the inconvenience and hardship to the poor by the present arrangement. This Commission came to a decision similar to that of the Local Government inquiry, and recommended the re-establishment of a hospital here, and also one on the western side of Galway.

The claims of other centres, such as Portumna, Mount Bellew and Loughrea, for similar accommodation were not conceded.

When this decision came before the County Board of Health it was definitely set aside. About three years ago the matter came before the Galway County Council, who backed up the County Board of Health, and refused to move.

GENERAL HOSPITAL SCHEME REFUSED.

Some eighteen months ago the Local Government Department directed the County Council, by Sealed Order, to establish a general hospital at Ballinasloe. This Order the local authority has refused to obey, and there the matter lies at the moment.

There are excellent buildings available here in the old Union premises, the fever wing being completely isolated from the rest of the buildings by a spacious yard and a high wall.

The front portion of the premises is used as a technical school, but a sum of £100 has had to be expended on the main buildings to prevent them from going to ruin. Would it not be better to turn such outlay to advantage by providing much needed hospital accommodation in a town of over 4,000 inhabitants and a very considerable floating population?

There has been an agitation to convert the vacant buildings into workmen's dwellings, and I am told that this could be done at some expense.

As in other parts of the country—including County Dublin—there are in this area two-room cottages, let at 1s. 6d. per week, which have been condemned as unfit for habitation, but the tenants refuse to leave them, and have not been ejected, because there is not sufficient alternative accommodation.

Under the Labourers' Housing Acts, cottages are being erected by the local authority, but these do not really affect the people whose homes have been condemned, because the rents in the case of the new houses are from 6s. to 7s. per week.

I understand that one of the difficulties which local authorities have had to face in connection with building schemes was the terms on which they could borrow money. Under the new scheme for long-term loans the situation promises to be easier, but the fact remains that labourers' cottages cannot be let at an economic rent and effect their purpose. The rents now charged are too high for the very poor, though these may take up places vacated by those who are a little better off.

Mr. White, Town Clerk, Ballinasloe, in the course of an interview which I had with him, pointed out that in the event of an epidemic of fever, the patients would have to be sent to Galway, and that in order to avoid that outbreaks would be concealed, with disastrous results. Local hospital accommodation would enable a serious outbreak to be checked at once.

ACCIDENT ON THE NAAS ROAD.

INQUEST OPENED AT RATHCOOLE.

At Rathcoole yesterday an inquest on the body of Thomas Reilly (60), a carter, employed by the Dublin County Council, who died following injuries sustained when he was thrown off a cart on the Naas road by an L.O.C. omnibus on Wednesday, was opened and adjourned by Dr. Mortimer Walters, Coroner for South Dublin.

Superintendent O'Reilly, of the Civic Guard, was in charge of the case, and Mr. E. H. Burne, solicitor, appeared for the Irish Omnibus Company.

The Coroner stated that his information was to the effect that the 'bus proceeding from Kildare to Dublin at 8.15 on Wednesday morning had just taken passengers at Saggart Cross, and when it was approaching the rear of a cart on the road the steering wheel of the 'bus came off its bearings into the driver's hands. The 'bus, which was then travelling at between 5 and 10 miles per hour, collided with the back of the cart, which was stationary at the time; the deceased man, who was talking to a friend on the roadside, was thrown out on to the road, and when picked up was dead.

Evidence of identification was given by Bartholomew Healy, the man to whom Reilly had been talking before the accident.

Dr. O'Riordan, Rathcoole, who performed the post-mortem examination, stated that death was due to shock and hemorrhage. The deceased man had sustained a fracture of the left temporal bone, and when witness was called he found him dead.

At this stage Superintendent O'Reilly stated that the driver of the 'bus, John Trevaskis, of 164a Capel street, Dublin, had been charged before a Peace Commissioner, and the case had been adjourned to the Kilmainham District Court on 21st October. The defendant was allowed bail. He, therefore, asked that no further evidence be taken.

The Coroner granted the application, and informed the jurymen that they would be notified when their services would be required.

THE WRONG SIDE—OF THE LAW.

KINGSTOWN MAN FINED.

William Murphy, car-owner, Patrick street, Kingstown, was summoned before Mr. Cussen, senior Justice, at Kingstown yesterday for driving his car on the wrong side of the way, not having his badge, and not having his licence displayed on his vehicle.

Guard Law stated that when he directed the defendant to pull on to his proper side of the roadway, Murphy replied that he would drive where he liked.

The defendant denied this allegation, and pleaded that he had only just had his car repainted, and had not had time to affix the plate.

He was fined 5s. on each summons.

RECONSTRUCTION OF BELFAST STREETS.

The application of Belfast Corporation for a loan of £100,000 for street reconstruction and improvement works was the subject of an inquiry yesterday in the City Hall, Belfast, by Mr. John Bates, M.I.C.E.I., Engineering Inspector to the Ministry of Home Affairs.

The TULLAMORE branch of the British Legion at their meeting expressed regret at the illness of the Very Rev. Dean Craig, Dean of Clonmacnoise, and hoped for his speedy recovery.

KETCH ASHORE.
The ketch Rosetta, whose port of registry is Aberystwth, dragged her anchor and went ashore at ISLANDMAGEE yesterday morning. She was bound from Derry to Liverpool with a cargo of bog ore.

FIRST AID EQUIPMENT.
Acting on a report from a factory inspector, the NEW ROSS Harbour Commissioners have made an order to have a fully-equipped first aid cabinet installed at their office on the quay side.

ALLEGED THEFT OF BULLOCK.
William Roche, Parkmore, Carnew, has been remanded at GOREY, on his own bail, charged with stealing a bullock valued at £8 10s., the property of Mr. Robert Connors, Esmonde street, Gorey.

PROPOSED SCHOOLS.
DUNGANNON Education Committee adopted estimates for the erection of public elementary schools at Moy, Eglish, Donaghmore and Tartlaghan at an average cost of £3,500 each. A committee was appointed to select a site for a new girls' secondary school.

RESCUE FROM DROWNING.
Patrick Blanche, Jones's Hill, very pluckily went to the rescue of a sailor, Michael Murphy, of the Mary Jane (Newport), who fell from his vessel in NEW ROSS Harbour. The sailor had sunk, but Blanche dived and brought him to safety.

SCHOOLMASTER'S DEATH.
Mr. Ronald R. Whitcombe, M.A., was found dead in a room which he used as a workshop in Abbey street, COLERAINE, last Wednesday morning. He was about forty years of age, and formerly English master in Coleraine Academical Institution.

DIRECT PIG DEALING.
The live pig marketing has received a fillip in FERMANAGH owing to the falling price of pork and the rising price for pigs shipped direct to England. The Fermanagh Pig Feeders' Association has been able to pay 2s. per cwt. more than the prices ruling for pork in local markets.

DEATH AT BREAKFAST TABLE.
Mrs. Anne Creane, wife of a farmer, John Creane, Ballingarry, GOREY, and aunt of Mr. Peter Sheehan, Rathdrum, Secretary of County Wicklow Health Board, was sitting down to her breakfast when she collapsed and expired. She was exceedingly popular in the district. There was a large attendance at the funeral to Gorey Cemetery.

VICTIM OF LOCKJAW.
At DERRY yesterday, Judge Osborne, K.C., awarded Patrick Brogan, a farmer, residing at Oldtown, Falcarragh, Co. Donegal, £108 compensation in respect of the death of his daughter, Grace Brogan, aged 32, a domestic servant, who, a week after entering the employment of John A. Douglas, farmer, Ardinariff, Dungiven, trod on a rusty nail, and died a few days later in Derry from lockjaw.

THEFT FROM M.P.'S CAR.
At BELFAST Custody Court yesterday, Joseph Thornton was sent to prison for one month, with hard labour, on pleading guilty to the larceny of two motor rugs, the property of Captain the Right Hon. Herbert Dixon, D.L., M.P., Orangefield. William Boyd said that he saw the accused take the rugs out of a motor car standing in Glengall street. He followed and told a policeman in Donegall square, who arrested the prisoner.

FOYLE FISHERY DISPUTE ECHO.
At DERRY Crown Sessions yesterday a criminal injury claim was adjourned, in which the applicant was Captain J. L. Kinnaird, manager of the Foyle and Bann Fisheries, and the respondents the Derry County Council. The claim was for £50, for the malicious plundering, damaging, and destruction of a fishing boat, masts, sails, oars, gear and equipment on the waters of Lough Foyle, on the night of 25th June or following morning.

BOOM IN PORK PRICES.
There was a boom in pork prices in OMAGH market yesterday, and an all round increase of 6s. per cwt. on the previous market prices, with demand keener. Starting at 80s. per cwt., the price rose sharply to 82s., at which the majority of the dead pigs were bought. In Beragh market the price was 80s. per cwt. Live shipping of pigs from County Tyrone to cross-Channel markets has been brisk during the past few days. Young pigs are selling at from £2 to £2 15s. each.

SEQUEL TO HAY BURNING.
At a special Court which was held yesterday at CLONMELLON (Co. Westmeath), before Mr. James Farrelly, Peace Commissioner, John Duncan, Killua, and Michael Tobin, of Clonmellon, were charged with maliciously setting fire, on October 1st at Killua, to a stack of hay and hay shed the property of Mr. W. F. Hackett, and with maliciously injuring gates the property of Mr. W. F. Hackett. Both defendants were remanded in custody to Castlepollard District Court.

WHISTLING ALLEGATION.
"He whistled at me; he whistles at me every day, every hour, every minute," said Peter Conway to District Justice Kenny at BALLYMAHON (Co. Longford) Court, when John Gerety, of Kenagh, was summoned for "conduct calculated to lead to a breach of the peace." Conway, who is an old man, said that he objected to being whistled at. Conway alleged that Gerety fired a shot over his head last January. Gerety said that he did not whistle at Conway, and he did not fire over his head as alleged. Conway brought the summonses against him because he had been a witness for another man whom Conway had summoned some time ago. The case was dismissed.

WATER, WATER EVERYWHERE.
DERRYGONNELLY (Co. Fermanagh), which is to have a water supply for its sewerage system, and also for drinking, seems likely to be disappointed; for though there are lakes in plenty within a few miles and a river flowing past the village, water suitable for use cannot be procured. The analyst has condemned the water from three mountain lakes, which, he states, contain animal matter. This statement the engineer, Mr. Townsend, describes as difficult to understand. In a letter to the Council, he says that he drank the water from one of the condemned lakes while fishing and found it quite palatable. Further samples are to be sent to the analyst.

EX-SOLDIER'S SAD END.
Mr. E. C. Doogan, Deputy Coroner for North ARMAGH, held an inquest on the body of Alfred Cardwell (29), who was found dead last Wednesday in the club rooms of the Portadown British Legion, where he was employed as a barman. Sarah Cardwell, stepmother, said that she had a conversation with him that morning, and he was not feeling very well. He was gassed and wounded in the war. Dr. R. S. Chapman said that death was due to strangulation. Sergeant Beckett said that deceased man was standing in an upright position, with a chain round his neck. His toes were touching the ground, but not his heels. The chain could not have got round his neck accidentally. Joseph Wright, vice-chairman and treasurer of the club, said that deceased was a sober and industrious man, and his stock and accounts were in order, and always had been. The jury found that death was due to strangulation, and expressed sympathy with the deceased man's wife and family.

TIPPERARY PIG MARKET.
At TIPPERARY fat pig market yesterday pork was 56s. per cwt., a reduction of 4s. from last week.

A STOCK EXCHANGE MACHINE.
At BELFAST Summons Court yesterday Edward Holness, of 322 Crumlin road, Belfast, was fined 20s. for keeping on his premises an automatic penny-in-the-slot Stock Exchange machine.

IRISH TEACHER APPOINTED.
COUNTY WICKLOW Joint Technical Instruction Committee, at a special meeting, appointed Mr. Padraig Breathnach, Kiltimon, Wicklow (formerly of Nenagh), as Irish teacher, with headquarters in the county town. There were twenty-two applications.

PRESIDENT COSGRAVE.
LONGFORD Urban Council has decided to present an address of welcome to President Cosgrave on the occasion of his forthcoming visit. A preliminary meeting of prominent people of the town and county will be held this evening to make arrangements.

TOWN SURVEYOR RESIGNS.
Mr. William P. Casey, who has been Town Surveyor in ENNISCORTHY for the past twenty years, resigned his position at the meeting of the Urban Council last Wednesday night, owing to ill-health, and the Council accepted it with regret.

DEBATING SOCIETY.
The opening meeting of the BLACKROCK (County Dublin) Debating Society will be held in the Technical Schools, Blackrock, tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, when the President, Mr. P. W. Joyce, will deliver his inaugural address on "The Optional Clause and the Privy Council."

BARROW WORKERS.
Of the 600 men who were employed on the BARROW, in the Monasterevan, Milltown, and Athy districts, some 200 men have been disengaged. The engineers in charge of the scheme, however, arranged that those who were given notice were farmers' sons, and a number of farm labourers, who could find employment during the harvest season.

WHITE GLOVES FOR JUDGE SHEEHY.
At CASTLEBLAYNEY Circuit Court Judge Sheehy was presented by the Sheriff (Mr. W. H. Swan) with white gloves in token of the absence of crime in the area. The Judge said that it was the first time he had been presented with white gloves since he had the honour of being raised to the Bench.

COUNTY COUNCILLOR'S DEATH.
The death took place last Tuesday of Mr. Michael Hanrahan, County Councillor, LIMERICK, after a brief illness, at the County Hospital, Croom. He represented Bruree division, and was present at the meeting of the County Board of Health on September 25. He was a member of the County Council for six years.

LONGFORD SCHOLARSHIPS.
LONGFORD County Council has ratified the awards of five secondary school scholarships, value £40 a year, and tenable for five years, to Master Vincent Brady, Granard; Misses Annie Killemede, Convent road, Longford; Maura T. Killane, Curriggrane, Ballinalee; Nora McGarry, Rose Cottage, Newtownforbes, and Brigid M. Kiernan, Barrack street, Granard.

CONGRATULATIONS.
TULLAMORE Urban Council has passed a resolution congratulating Mr. H. F. Brenan, LL.B., Law Adviser and Town Clerk, on the able and satisfactory manner in which he presented their case for the provision of housing and sanitation and the relief of unemployment to President Cosgrave on the occasion of the President's recent visit to Tullamore.

NEW BELFAST SOLICITOR.
At BELFAST Recorder's Court yesterday Mr. W. G. Wilson introduced a new solicitor, Mr. John H. G. Majury, who served his time with Messrs. Bigger and Strahan. The Recorder said that he was glad to see Mr. Majury there in connection with such a well known firm, and he hoped that he would often have the pleasure of his appearance in the court. Mr. Majury returned thanks.

NEW SOLICITOR WELCOMED.
At TEMPLEMORE District Court yesterday District Justice Flood, on taking his seat on the bench, said that he desired to take that opportunity of welcoming Mr. J. J. Nash, B.A., LL.B., on his first appearance, and to congratulate him on his distinguished college course. He wished him every success in his professional career. Superintendent Murphy and Mr. Gerald Griffin (Clerk) associated themselves with the Justice's remarks.

BOYS WITH SQUIBS.
Before Mr. Cussen, Senior Justice, at Kingstown Police Court yesterday, two boys, Christopher O'Shea, Adelaide road, Glasthule, and James O'Brien, Glasthule Buildings, were charged by Detective Officer Lawler with pinning lighted squibs to a hall-door in Glasthule road and causing damage. Mrs. O'Brien, resident at the house, gave evidence as to the amount of damage, and the boys were fined 2s. 6d. each and directed to pay £1 compensation.

A DOCTOR'S HOUSE.
At the meeting of the South TIPPERARY County Council a lively discussion centred around a proposal from the Board of Health to borrow £2,200 for a new residence for Dr. McCormack, Medical Officer, Kilpatrick. Mr. Davoren proposed to amend the amount to £1,500. He was reducing the amount because the ratepayers had asked him. A motion to refer the proposal back to the Board of Health for information was defeated, and the motion to borrow £1,500 to build the doctor's house passed by fourteen votes to eleven.

ARMY OFFICER FINED.
Lieutenant Walter Derek Duke, of the Gordon Highlanders, stationed at BALLYKINLAR (Co. Down), was fined £5 and five guineas costs at Brentford, Middlesex, for negligently driving a motor car at London road, Isleworth. He did not appear, but wrote admitting the offence. The evidence showed that about 5.30 in the morning a collision occurred near the canal bridge between a lorry and a car driven by Duke, who was thrown out and cut about the face. When he recovered he said to a constable: "I have been to a ball, and was very tired. I suppose I must have fallen asleep. I know nothing more about it."

THEFT CHARGE FAILS.
At the ENNISCORTHY District Court yesterday, before District Justice Fahy, informations were refused in a charge against Aidan Kenny, an ex-soldier, who won the D.C.M. in the Great War, of Ross road, Enniscorthy, of stealing apples, valued at £1, from the garden of Samuel Buttle, Chestnut Lodge, Enniscorthy. A charge of being in possession of stolen apples was adjourned for a month to give the defendant an opportunity to pay £1 restitution to Mr. Buttle. Defendant denied on oath that he stole the apples. He said he bought them from two boys. Defendant said that he had no Army pension, and was living with his wife on 5s. a week outdoor relief. The Justice said that it was a great pity to see a man having such a record mixed up in such a transaction.

LIMERICK BOROUGH COUNCIL.
At a meeting of the LIMERICK Borough Council last night Alderman Flynn, criticising the "Commissioner system" in the city, and referring to Mr. Commissioner Geraghty's letter which had been sent to the Council in reply to other criticisms passed on his administration in regard to the reduction of home assistance allowances, characterised it as "juggling with figures." Other members suggested that the economies had only been effected at the expense of the destitute poor, who had to be relieved by the St. Vincent de Paul Society, and, following a sharp exchange of words between Alderman Reidy and Alderman O'Flynn, the Mayor had to intervene. Finally, on the proposition of Councillor Dalton, it was decided to form a small committee to investigate the validity of the cases struck out by Commissioner Geraghty.

LIMERICK'S WATER SUPPLY.
The Free State Ministry for Industry and Commerce has written to the LIMERICK Corporation with refard to the construction of a pipe Shannon Scheme new canal at Clonara to the city water works at Clarvelle, which the Ministry propose is to supply the city with a supply of water. It is proposed to pump two million gallons daily, which would require 124,000 units of electricity. As the Corporation was about to close down their Rhebogue plant, which cost them £300 annually to work, the Minister felt that this sum would be an equitable basis for the cost of electricity for the new pumps. The matter was referred for consideration and report to the city surveyor (Mr. Peacocke), and to Mr. Purcell, Dublin, the consulting engineer, engaged to investigate the whole question of interference by the Shannon scheme undertaking with the city water supply.

MICHAELMAS LAW SITTINGS.

A SUBSTANTIAL LIST.

IMPORTANT TURF CLUB APPEAL.

Amongst the large number of cases to be heard in the High Courts, Dublin, during the Michaelmas Law Sittings, which will begin on next Thursday, are several of more than ordinary interest. In the Supreme Court one of the four appeals standing for judgment is that of the Revenue Commissioners from a judgment of the High Court allowing an appeal by way of a case stated by the Commissioners for the Special Purposes of the Income Tax Acts, brought by the executors of the late Earl of Iveagh against the assessment of the late Earl for income tax and super-tax for certain specified years. The issue involved is the domicile of the late Earl of Iveagh during those years of assessment.

SUPREME COURT APPEALS.
There are 32 appeals set down for hearing in the Supreme Court, included in which are 10 new trial motions. The Erne fishery case figures in the list. The plaintiffs in the action are Major R. J. Moore, of "The Cliff," Ballyshannon, and other members of the Erne Fishery Co., and the defendants are a number of local fishermen and the Attorney-General of the Irish Free State, representing the general public. The defendant fishermen filed an appeal from the judgment of Mr. Justice Johnston in favour of the plaintiffs, who sought a declaration that they are entitled to a several fishery in the tidal portion of the River Erne, from the falls of Asseroe, at Ballyshannon, to the bar at Ballyshannon, under a Landed Estates Court conveyance of 11th March, 1869; and the plaintiffs applied for an order directing the defendants to give security for costs before the hearing of the appeal was proceeded with. There is an appeal by the Attorney-General regarding costs.

An appeal which will be of great interest to horse trainers and to the members of the Turf Club is that of the defendants in the case of Mr. John T. Rogers, of Crotanstown, The Curragh, Co. Kildare, against Mr. Charles Moore, of Mooresfort, Co. Tipperary; Mr. Peter Fitzgerald, of Mondellihy, Adare, Co. Limerick, and Major Evelyn Shirley, of Loughrea, Carrickmacross, Co. Monaghan. The plaintiff, it appeared, had been fined £30 by the Turf Club for not making a full return of all the horses trained by him on The Curragh, which he was required to furnish under Rule 25 of the Rules and Orders of the Turf Club, and he brought an action against the defendants in their capacity of Stewards of the Turf Club, claiming a declaration that their order fining him was ultra vires and void; that they had no power under Rule 16 of the Rules of Racing to inflict any fine in respect to the omission to return any horse in the return to be made by him pursuant to Rule 25 of the Rules and Orders of the Turf Club; that they had no power to fine him under the Rules and Orders of the Turf Club in respect of such omission; that they were trustees for him of the £30; and an order for the payment of the £30.

The defendants pleaded that the plaintiff in his transactions with them was subject to the Rules of Racing and the Rules and Orders of the Turf Club, and that they had acted in accordance with such Rules and Orders; that they were entitled to retain the sum of £30 in payment of the fine, and that their decision was final and conclusive and binding on the plaintiff and could not be made the subject of litigation. Mr. Justice Meredith, who heard the action, held that the particular rule which gave the power of imposing a fine applied only to infringements of the Rules of Racing, and that it did not apply to a breach of such regulations as that given in Rule 25 of the Rules of the Turf Club, which were concerned with certain business or trade transactions. He gave a declaration that the order of the Turf Club was ultra vires and void, and that the defendants were trustees for the plaintiff of the £30 received by them to the plaintiff's use. Against this declaration the defendants are now appealing.

SOUTHERN FISHERY CASE.
There is a substantial amount of business for Courts 1 and 2, and also for Court 3. There is an application to come before Court 3 on behalf of John Daly, a fisherman, of Burrane, Knock, Co. Clare, for a conditional order in the nature of quo warranto against Major Cecil Rowland Leslie, of Tarbert, Co. Kerry, and others, to show by what authority they purport to act as conservators for the Limerick Fishery District; and an application to make absolute a conditional order of certiorari and prohibition in an Eastern Circuit Court case.

The jury cases, the hearing of which will not begin until the 21st of this month, number at present eleven, and the non-jury cases also number eleven.

There are four revenue cases in the non-jury list, four in which money is claimed to be due, one for alleged trespass, one in connection with an insurance policy, and an issue.

It is probable that further cases will be added to the lists before the opening of the term.

TEMPERANCE CENTENARY IN BELFAST.

The centenary of the temperance movement in Ireland is being celebrated in Belfast this week-end by an exhibition and pageant in the Assembly Hall, Belfast, which was opened yesterday afternoon by Mr. Robert Crawford, M.P.

KING'S COUNTY MAN'S WILL.

Mr. William Henry Odlum, late of Lodge Farm, Kineton, Warwickshire, and recently of Monterey, St. Saviours, Jersey, and formerly of Kilclare, King's County, Ireland, who died on March 12th last, left estate of the gross value of £17,838 3s. Probate of his will, dated February 4th, 1926, has been granted to his widow, Mrs. Grace Mason Odlum, of the same address, and Rupert John Fetherstonhaugh, solicitor, of Mountmellick, Queen's County, Ireland. He left all of his property to his son Hugh Robert, stating that his wife was already provided for by settlement.

A forty-eight hours' south-westerly gale in the East of Scotland has caused much damage to property. Fishing operations all over that coast have been almost entirely suspended and the movements of shipping seriously interrupted.

FREE STATE MINISTER FOR EDUCATION.

Professor O'Sullivan, T.D., Minister for Education, returned from Geneva yesterday morning by the Holyhead mail service.

No winter plans have yet been made for King George. Statements that it has been decided that His Majesty will spend the whole of the winter on the South Coast are described as being without foundation.

The Earl of Lovelace, who was attacked by pneumonia and pleurisy while stalking at Benmanph Forest, his Ross-shire estate, was reported easier yesterday morning.

NEWS SUMMARY.

IRELAND

The Free State delegates to the League of Nations addressed a public meeting in Dublin last night, and described the work of the League.—(Page 7.)

At the All-Ireland Rotary Conference in Portrush yesterday a paper was read on "Rotary and International Trade Barriers."—(Page 8.)

A conference of Irish grain-growers at Maryborough yesterday approved of a proposal for an admixture of home-grown grain with maize before sale to the public, and appointed a deputation to wait on the Government with a view to legislation on the subject.—(Page 7.)

The inconvenience and hardships caused to the poor by the present hospital arrangements in County Galway are the subject of an article by our special representative.—(Page 5.)

GREAT BRITAIN

In a speech which he delivered at the conference of the Labour Party at Brighton yesterday, Mr. Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer, made an important statement on the Government's financial policy and the effect of the recent increase in the Bank rate.—(Page 7.)

ABROAD.

Three warders are reported to have been killed when 1,000 prisoners mutinied in the Colorado State penitentiary.—(Page 7.)

Dr. Stresemann, the German Foreign Minister, died yesterday morning from heart failure, following a paralytic stroke. His Majesty the King pays a cordial tribute to the dead statesman in a message to the German Ambassador in London.—(Page 7.)

SPORTING

At Listowel yesterday Miss Hilda won the Ladies' Plate, Roman Boy the Fealeview Plate, Calendio the Southern Plate, Orange Grove the Kerry Plate, and Hose Blanc the Killarney Plate.—(Page 10.)

FINANCIAL

London Stock Markets were firmer, with some active features apparent.—(Page 12.)

Loans in Lombard street were more comfortable, new money being offered down to 5 per cent. Discount rates were also easier. The Bank bought £3,094 and sold £12,000 in bar gold.—(Page 12.)

Dublin Market was undecided. Some Great Southern issues declined. National Loan touched 101⅜.—(Page 12.)

Gustav Stresemann.

Gustav Stresemann was a great German; history may regard him as an even greater European. His death, which occurred with startling suddenness yesterday, was the result of a patriot's almost superhuman efforts on behalf of his country. Through years of failing health he had been in constant conflict not only with foreign adversaries, but with the malignant enemies of his policy at home. Two months ago at The Hague his many friends took a grave view of his condition. Even then, however, although he secured the acceptance by the Allies of the Young plan, he would not seek rest. He went to Geneva, whither he was accompanied by his own doctor, but the strain was too much for his wearied body. On return to Berlin he was forced to face the bitter criticism of the Nationalist group, headed by the newspaper magnate, Herr Hugenberg. His rapidly ebbing strength gave way at last, and yesterday morning one of the most remarkable figures in European politics vanished from the scene at a moment when the rewards of his policy were within sight of fulfilment. Gustav Stresemann probably has done more than any other individual to bring about the reconciliation of Europe's peoples; and his task undoubtedly was more difficult than that of any of his contemporaries. During the war he was one of the leading members of the National Liberal Party in Germany, which was less enthusiastic only than the Conservatives in pursuit of the Central Powers' cause. When Herr Bassermann died in 1917 Stresemann was appointed leader of the party, and, although he never was identified with the "All-German" group, he associated himself prominently with those who were determined to continue the struggle to the bitter end. Furthermore, he was a convinced monarchist. When, therefore, Germany lay prostrate in the winter of 1918 he was one of the last men in the country from whom the despairing people might have expected salvation.

Very quickly, however, Dr. Stresemann decided that Germany's only hope of recovery from the grievous wounds of war was a policy of fulfilment of the peace treaties and of reconciliation with her former enemies. Naturally, his adherence to this policy caused him to be reviled by the Nationalists, but, having set his feet on the road of conciliation, he would not turn back. He was mainly responsible for the Locarno Pact, when he voluntarily renounced all Germany's claims to Alsace-Lorraine, with the result that Germany was received as a permanent member of the Council of the League of Nations. Then Stresemann set out to secure the two objects that lay nearest to his heart—namely, the evacuation of the occupied territories on the Rhine, and the revision of the Dawes scheme of reparation payments. He succeeded in both these objects. The last of the Allied troops will have left the Rhine next June, and the adoption by the Allies of the Young plan has given Germany considerable relief. It is safe to say that no other German could have achieved this success; for none other had Stresemann's vision. He realised that Europe could not be rebuilt on the basis of old enmities. He saw clearly that Germany could regain her former position only through the closest possible co-operation with Great Britain and France, and much of his power was due to his personal relations of friendship with M. Briand and Sir Austen Chamberlain. At first his fellow-countrymen had the gravest misgivings concerning the wisdom of the Stresemann policy, and still there are hundreds of thousands of Germans who are opposed to it. The majority of the German people, however, has been converted to the idea of "fulfilment," and, if another man can be found to wear Dr. Stresemann's mantle, all may be well. At the moment, the problem of a successor seems to be exceedingly difficult. All Europe will hope that it may be solved safely.

A Financial Inquest.

Mr. Snowden, in his speech at the Brighton conference, has done much to allay the ordinary man's fear of Labour's fiscal policy, at least in so far as it relates to high finance. He delivered a reasoned address, in which he pointed out to the more fervid members of his party the justice of the Bank of England's recent action. "The rise in the Bank rate," he said, "is, under existing conditions, the only means we have to restore unfavourable exchanges and to regulate the basis of credit"; and later he added: "It is no use railing in this matter at the Bank of England." Eager and, as we suppose, not too well-informed listeners were instructed in the rudiments of those mysteries which govern exchanges. Owing to the monetary conditions in America, Germany and France, people have been selling sterling to buy these currencies. The Chancellor, while he was careful to assure his colleagues that he was not extolling a high Bank rate, quoted unemployment figures and exchanges at various times, by which he proved that a high lending rate, imposed by the Bank of England, did not lack its compensating features. The price of money at short call in New York has fallen from twelve per cent. to seven per cent. since the recent rise in the English Bank rate, with a corresponding improvement in the dollar exchange, while the parities of sterling with the French franc and the German reichsmark show a tendency to revert to their former level. The Chancellor pointed out that it was absolutely necessary to retain gold in the country. By its possession the Bank of England could enable the Joint Stock Banks to give credit—without which faculty they were useless—to their customers for legitimate purposes of commercial expansion.

The Chancellor's announcement that the Government has decided to set up a Committee, with the widest terms of reference, which will investigate all aspects of banking, financial and credit policy, may be received in some quarters with mixed emotions. Nevertheless, few business men will deny that some revision of the company law is desirable. There have been many cases in the past when a more rigid system would have preserved the savings of the small investor from the machinations of the astute, but unprincipled, adventurer. We agree that it is monstrous that a wave of speculation in the United States should be allowed to have deleterious repercussions upon British industry, if such a state of affairs can be avoided. Any premature criticism of the Chancellor after his signal success at The Hague would be ungenerous. At the same time, a realisation of the extreme delicacy of poise which characterises British finance makes us nervous of all experiment in this direction. We take comfort, however, in Mr. Snowden's reassuring statement. "When the constitution of the Committee is announced, I am sure it will command public confidence," he said; and, with no contradictory evidence, we feel bound to believe him. In his claim that, notwithstanding the high Bank rate, British credit stands as high as ever it stood; and in his frank recognition that the Governors of the Bank of England understand their work, and always have deserved well of the nation, we discern no trace of the iconoclast. From the fact that the Independent Labour Party's resolution, condemning the rise in the Bank rate, was not moved, it is manifest that Mr. Snowden's words had their effect at Brighton. We await the names of the proposed Committee with a critical attention; for on its constitution everything depends.

Cheap Motor Cars.

It is expected that, in the coming spring, the Labour Government in Britain will remove the McKenna duties on imported motor vehicles. Those duties saved the British motor industry in the years of difficulty after the Great War. Their removal will throw upon that industry a new strain. American cars at low prices will be offered in the British market in vast quantities, and the British car will not hold its place unless British manufacturers have reached a high pitch of efficiency. America's enormous production, and the readiness of her manufacturers to sell exported goods at lower prices than those which they offer to their own people behind the American tariff wall, will oblige English producers to cut their prices to a narrow margin of profit. There are signs, happily, that the British industry has made such good use of its time of sheltered development that it will be able to face the new situation without dismay. One English firm is challenging the United States in a field which, hitherto, America has dominated—the motor market of the British Empire overseas. The Humber factory at Coventry, reorganised and modernised, has designed and proved a 24 horse-power car which will meet all the demands of the colonial motorist. It will be strong enough for bad roads and powerful enough for "top-gear" work. In India it will be sold at a price £20 less than that of American cars of equivalent performance. In Australia it ought to become the popular vehicle; for, by a new tariff, that Dominion now gives British cars a preference of 30 per cent. Meanwhile, a new phase of United States competition has appeared. A large firm which imports engines and chassis from America and assembles them in England has advertised for skilled mechanics at a wage of £6 a week. The citizen in England beholds in these tendencies the happy prospect of cheaper motor cars, and the English roads are likely, in 1930, to suffer a denser congestion than ever. Sagacious action by the Government of the Irish Free State might open Southern Ireland to cheaper cars, with the result that the practice of motoring would increase largely, to the great advantage of the country's economic life.

Elia.

Yesterday a handsome edition of the collected essays, sketches and miscellaneous papers of Charles Lamb was published. The first edition of "The Essays of Elia" appeared in 1823. Lamb's profit from his masterpiece amounted to only £30, and the sum never was paid over to him. Probably no other essays in the English language ever enjoyed such popularity as came to Elia's when Elia was dead. Probably no other essayist stands so vividly in the mind of to-day as poor Lamb. From his childhood this whimsical genius walked under clouds of grief. Reared by an insane father, and burdened through a long life with the care of an insane sister, he fought a ceaseless battle against madness in his own person. Nevertheless, the marks of all his writings are kindliness, gaiety, good taste and a splendid sanity. He could grieve because the old, familiar faces were gone; but he never would waste his spirit in the more cowardly kind of melancholy. "I am got somewhat rational now, and don't bite any one," he wrote to Coleridge, when released from a mad-house at the age of twenty-one; and the same heroic mirth carried him through an honourable life. His casual puns, his absurd sallies, still amuse us. We cannot doubt that it was his own jest that he put in the mouth of an Oxford scholar. A porter was carrying a hare: "Prithee, friend," asked the scholar, "is that thy own hare, or a wig?" Pity has been wasted on the essayist for his servitude to the commercial desk. A recent historian of the East India House has shown that his servitude was not arduous and was very well rewarded. Those regular duties, we may guess, were Elia's safeguard as he held on his painful way. Duty and cheerfulness made of him the master of letters and the noble spirit that men still admire.

IMPROVED CONDITION MAINTAINED.

It is understood that the Princess Royal passed a good day, and the improvement noted in the bulletin continued last night.

COPYRIGHT IN THE FREE STATE.

PROTECTION FOR UNITED STATES WORKS.

An arrangement recently concluded between the Free State and United States Governments to secure reciprocal copyright was made effective yesterday on the Free State side by an Order of the Governor-General.

The necessity for a special arrangement with the United States arose from the fact that that country is not a party to the Berne Convention, which established reciprocity as between the European countries. Hitherto the works of Irish authors, dramatists and artists have been freely pirated in the United States in face of almost complete helplessness of the authors, while American literary or artistic work was similarly open to piracy here.

According to a prominent Dublin author, to whom an Irish Times representative spoke last night, the arrangement which now has been concluded will not, in fact, change the position very substantially, as far as Irish authors are concerned. "Most of the 'reciprocity' is," he commented, "on our side." Up to this a temporary copyright of one year might be obtained in the United States by the author's filing a copy of his work within a specified time in the Congressional Library, but permanent protection is only secured where the work is printed in the United States.

The American law in this respect, of course, remains unchanged by the Governor-General's Order, so that, in effect, the new "reciprocal" arrangement merely secures the protection of American literary, dramatic, musical and artistic work from piracy in the Free State.

ART ADVISORY COMMITTEE.

RESOLUTION REGARDING CHARLEMONT HOUSE.

A meeting of the Art Advisory Committee of the Dublin Municipal Gallery of Modern Art was held at the Gallery yesterday.

Mr. George Lyons, proposed by Mr. Dermod O'Brien, P.,R.H.A., and seconded by Mr. J. J. Reynolds, took the chair. Mr. Thomas Bodkin, B.L., Director, National Gallery of Ireland, and Sir Thomas Henry Grattan Esmonde, Bart., were also present.

The following resolution, proposed by Mr. Dermod O'Brien, P.,R.H.A., and seconded by Mr. Thomas Bodkin, B.L., was passed:—

"The Art Advisory Committee note with pleasure that the premises at Charlemont House have now been handed over to the Corporation, and that the City Architect is visiting galleries abroad, preparatory to making plans for the erection of the new gallery; and that the Curator be directed to ask the Town Clerk to arrange a conference between the City Architect and the Art Advisory Committee before the plans are passed."

WEATHER FORECAST.

General Inference.—A deep depression centred off North-Eastern Scotland is moving away slowly north-eastward. The northerly or north-westerly current in its rear is likely to spread southward, giving considerable bright periods, especially in the South, and local showers, especially in the North, where they may be of wintry type in places. The temperature will fall generally.

North-West and North-East Ireland.—Moderate north-westerly to northerly winds; cloudy and bright periods; occasional showers of rain or hail; temperature lower than of late; slight ground frost locally inland at night.

South-East and South-West Ireland.—Moderate westerly to north-westerly winds; cloudy and bright periods; occasional showers; temperature lower than of late; slight ground frost locally at land at night.

Irish Sea and St. George's Channel.—Moderate westerly to north-westerly winds; cloudy and bright intervals; occasional showers; sea rather rough to moderate.

SUDDEN DEATH OF DOCTOR STRESEMANN.

LOSS TO GERMANY AND CAUSE OF WORLD PEACE.

MESSAGE FROM THE KING.

WORLD-WIDE TRIBUTES TO DEAD STATESMAN.

After a strenuous day, the greater part of which was spent in striving to avert a Government crisis, Dr. Gustav Stresemann, the German Foreign Minister, sustained a paralytic stroke in his home on Wednesday night, and died after a second stroke at 5.25 yesterday morning.

His unexpected death has evoked from statesmen in many countries warm tributes to Dr. Stresemann's work, not only for his native land, but for the cause of world peace. The German Ambassador in London has received from Lord Stamfordham the following letter from Buckingham Palace, dated yesterday morning:—

"Dear Ambassador,—The King, who is at Sandringham, desires me to express his sympathy with Your Excellency in the great loss sustained by the death of Dr. Stresemann, which His Majesty regards as a loss, not only to Germany, but to the whole of Europe. The King remembers with pleasure meeting Dr. Stresemann when he was last in London, and has received the sad news with feelings of sincere regret, which he knows will be shared by the people of this country."

Herr Mueller, the Chancellor, is provisionally taking over the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, and it is expected that President Hindenburg will occupy the chair at a Cabinet meeting to-day.

The funeral of Dr. Stresemann will take place on Sunday next. In the meantime, his body lies in state in the black-draped Reichstag, the scene of his political activities for so many years.

KILLED HIMSELF WITH OVERWORK.

IGNORED DOCTOR'S ORDERS TO RETIRE.

BERLIN, Thursday.

There is not the slightest doubt that Dr. Stresemann killed himself with overwork. He had been suffering for years from a severe kidney disease, and had been repeatedly warned by his doctor that his life was in danger if he did not retire from politics.

He went to The Hague Conference against the advice of his doctors, and it was noted there, and also at Geneva, that he was looking far from well. It was, in fact, generally a subject of conversation among the delegates and by journalists that the German Foreign Minister looked like a man whom death was preparing to seize.

At the reception given last Friday to foreign journalists Dr. Stresemann gave the impression of being a very tired and sick man, who ought to be in bed rather than in the maelstrom of politics.

A VERY BUSY DAY.

Yesterday was a particularly busy day for him. He was on his feet the whole time conferring with the Chancellor and other politicians and attending a meeting of the German People's Party, of which he was the chairman, in an effort to avert the Government crisis which was threatened owing to the dispute among the parties on the question of the reform of unemployed insurance law, which is to come up for a vote in the Reichstag to-morrow.

Dr. Stresemann at a party meeting made a long statement on the situation, recommending that his party should yield on the question, and it was remarked that he was only able to speak slowly and feebly.

DOCTORS' VIGIL.

In the evening he was with friends at his home, and seemed in quite good spirits, when suddenly, at 10.30, he had a stroke which paralysed his right side.

Doctors were at once summoned, and realised the gravity of the case. They stayed at his beside all night, trying to restore him to consciousness.

Their efforts were, however, in vain, for at 5.20 a.m. a second stroke came, and Dr. Stresemann passed away without having recovered consciousness and without recognising his wife and this two sons, who were at his bedside throughout the night.

DEATH LONG EXPECTED.

Professor Zondek, who has been Herr Stresemann's medical adviser in the last few years, says the kidney disease from which he was suffering had improved recently, but the general condition of the patient was unsatisfactory, owing to the high blood pressure that was consequent on Herr Stresemann's active life.

He repeatedly warned him, and did not want him to go to The Hague Conference.

Moreover, he bid him yesterday to remain in bed, but Herr Stresemann refused to do so, and rushed into the political fray, stating that he felt quite well.

Dr. Zondek says that he had expected the Minister's death any time in the past two years.

GERMAN CABINET SUMMONED.

DEATH CAUSES POLITICAL CONFUSION.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Thursday (Later).

The death of Dr. Stresemann has brought confusion into German politics; for he was the strong man of the Government, which, without him, is like a ship without a helmsman.

Herr Mueller, the Chancellor, is provisionally taking over the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

It is believed in political circles that the most likely new Foreign Minister is Herr Rudolf Breitscheid, the well-known Socialist authority on foreign affairs. He is 54 years of age.

President Hindenburg is returning to Berlin, and probably a Cabinet meeting will be held to-morrow under his presidency.

REICHSTAG TRIBUTES.

The Reichstag assembled this morning at 10.15. The seat which was always occupied by Dr. Stresemann on the Ministerial bench was draped in black, and a wreath was laid upon it, while a bunch of white chrysanthemums adorned the place where the late statesman sat as a deputy.

All the members of the Government and all the deputies, with the exception of the Communists and extreme Nationalists, who hated Dr. Stresemann and his policy, were in their seats, and rose as the Vice-President, Herr Esser, opened the sitting with a review of Dr. Stresemann's career as a parliamentarian, and eulogised his work as Foreign Minister, saying:

"What he did in this difficult post for Germany should be written in letters of gold in the history of our country. The German nation thanks him for continuing to tax his strength in the task of liberating Germany, and for having done so much for the political restoration of the Fatherland."

LIVED AND DIED FOR GERMANY.

The Chancellor, Herr Mueller, eulogised his dead colleague, who, he said, had used up his strength for his people and his country. It was a tragic event that he had not lived to see the result of his work, to which he had devoted his strength and the last years of his life. It had always been his aim to achieve the liberation of Germany, but inexorable death has taken him away just after The Hague Conference, which was devoted to the settlement of war debts and the evacuation of the occupied regions.

Dr. Stresemann, added Herr Mueller, was a fighter who enjoyed a fight, and, like all fighters, he had many enemies and opponents. The Government was convinced that history, which would be less influenced by party strife, would recognise Dr. Stresemann as a man who worked with success for his people, and who lived and died for his country. Not only his widow and children would mourn him, but the great majority of the German people.

The Reichstag then adjourned.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR OBSEQUIES.

SPECIAL FUNERAL MARCH COMPOSED.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Thursday.

Dr. Stresemann will be buried on Sunday in a Berlin cemetery, where members of his family already rest. His remains are now lying in state in the Reichstag, the scene of his political activities for so many years.

The Memorial Service will be attended by President Hindenburg, the members of the Government and the Reichstag.

It is anticipated that large crowds will assemble in the streets to see the funeral procession on its way to the cemetery. A special route is being followed, in order to give people an opportunity to pay a last tribute to the dead statesman.

The funeral itself will be conducted in the presence only of members of the family and a few personal friends.

A special funeral march has been composed by Professor Lederer.

HINDENBURG'S MESSAGE.

President Hindenburg has sent a telegram to Frau Stresemann expressing his deep sympathy in the sudden death of Herr Stresemann, who, says the President, "worked up to his last breath for the Fatherland."

The various foreign diplomats here have called at the German Foreign Office and expressed their sympathy.

FREE STATE SYMPATHY.

PRESIDENT COSGRAVE'S MESSAGE.

President Cosgrave has telegraphed the following message of sympathy to Herr Hermann Mueller, Chancellor of the German Reich:—"I have learnt with very deep regret of the death of your esteemed and distinguished colleague, Herr von Stresemann, and I offer the German Government the sincere sympathy of the Government of the Irish Free State."

PRIME MINISTER'S TRIBUTE.

"I CAME TO ESTEEM HIM AS A FRIEND."

PRESS ASSOCIATION'S SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

ON BOARD THE BERENGARIA, Thursday.

On learning of the death of Dr. Stresemann, Mr. Ramsay Macdonald said to me: "I am deeply grieved; for Dr. Stresemann was not only one of those upon whose work the peaceful evolution of Europe depended, but, in my various contacts with him, I came to know and esteem him as a friend.

"His memory is secure. I cannot believe that the great services he has given for pacification with such patience and faith can now be undone.

"When I met him first the outlook was grey and forbidding, but, though evidently unhappy, he showed the enduring stuff of which he was made. When I saw him last, a few weeks ago, I think that both of us thought that our good-bye might be farewell. Yet he was content, and trusted that Germany would see to it that his work, which had done so much for her, would be carried on when he was no longer there.

"On behalf of the British Government, I send his relatives and country our deepest sympathy."

AT THE LABOUR CONFERENCE.

At the Labour Party Conference in Brighton yesterday, both the Chairman, Mr. Herbert Morrison, M.P., and Mr. Snowden paid tributes to Dr. Stresemann, and the delegates stood in silence for a minute as a mark of respect.

Mr. Snowden said that he was brought much into contact with Dr. Stresemann at the recent Conference at The Hague. It was painful to all who met him to see that the hand of death was already upon him, and it was touching and pathetic to see the heroic way in which he struggled against the pain he was constantly suffering.

"It would be impossible to exaggerate the seriousness of the loss which not only Germany, but Europe, and the cause of international peace, has suffered by the loss of Dr. Stresemann. He has not lived to see the full fruition of the great contribution he has made in recent years to

GRAIN-GROWERS' CONFERENCE.

ADMIXTURE SCHEME APPROVED.

DEPUTATION TO THE GOVERNMENT.

A conference of Irish grain-growers at Maryborough yesterday approved of the scheme of the Irish Grain-growers' Association for an admixture of home-grown grain with maize before sale to the public.

A deputation of five members of the Dail was appointed to approach the Government with a view to legislative effect being given to the proposal.

Mr. James Dwyer, T.D. (Leix-Offaly), presided.

Mr. J. J. Bergin, the Secretary, said that, as most of them knew, they had a deputation to Mr. Cosgrave and Mr. Hogan on the previous day. A lot of people asked why they did not go there long before, but they had been in communication with the department on this subject since January last.

Mr. Bergin then read correspondence which had taken place with the Department of Agriculture, and said that on the previous day a deputation of six was received by President Cosgrave and Mr. Hogan, and the matter was discussed for three hours. The newspapers that morning had given a very fair outline of what had happened. He was satisfied that they had made considerable progress; but they were also convinced that unless more pressure was brought to bear on the department from other directions, nothing would be done. They were now present in that conference to consider what they could do to further advance the scheme.

SUGGESTED TARIFF.

Mr. J. W. Young, Stradbally, said that he had no doubt whatever in his mind that the only thing that they could do to get an increased price for their barley, in view of competition and cheap transit from every part of the earth, was to get protection. They could not compete against countries where there was cheap labour, and a better climate to grow wheat and barley, and cheap transit. If they did not get a tariff, farming would go down and labourers would be thrown out of employment.

Mr. Frank Aiken, T.D., said that they should find out the views of those present as regards the admixture of home-grown grain with foreign grain. He did not believe in sending four million pounds a year out of the country for foreign grain, while they could produce as good stuff at home. Every acre of tillage produced about £10 worth, while an acre of grass only produced £4 worth, so that they were losing £6 an acre by letting the land go back to grass. At present they were sending out seven millions a year for wheat and four millions for maize, while they could produce grain at home which would give employment in the country and help the people in cities and towns also.

He proposed that they approve of the scheme of the Irish Grain-Growers' Association for an admixture of home-grown grain with maize before sale to the public.

Mr. D. Allen, T.D., seconded the resolution.

THE NEXT BEST THING.

Mr. T. Derrig, T.D., supported the resolution. He said that Mr. Bergin's efforts in persisting in this work deserved appreciation. However, Mr. Bergin was not able to assure them that the interview with the Government representatives was satisfactory. The only thing that came out of it was a kind of a half-promise to examine the question further. It seemed to him that that might be an effort to shelve the whole thing. It was a good thing that they had the co-operation of all parties there trying to advance the welfare of the farmers and labourers. The scheme was not perfection, but it was a step in the right direction. If they could not get a tariff on barley—which the Government would not impose, because they were afraid of Messrs. Guinness—this was the next best thing. He was prepared to support the scheme, but the necessary steps to put it into effect lay with the Government in power.

Mr. W. Davin, T.D., supported the resolution. In the past, he said, that he had supported the demand for tariffs, but he had always held that tariffs, unless accompanied by a minimum price, were useless. He also held that unless the scheme had the support of grain-growers all over the country it was not going to be the success that people thought. Unless the grain-growers delivered their barley in bulk and got people to handle it for them, he thought that legislation would be useless.

THE NEED FOR UNITY.

Mr. Morrissey, T.D., supporting the resolution, said that the proposal was a practical step in the right direction, and if given effect to would have useful results. Even if they had a tariff on barley Messrs. Guinness and other brewers could fix their own prices. He thought that the real reason why grain growers were getting a poor return for their produce was that they were not all combined and united.

Mr. Aird, T.D., said that he believed that the proposal was a useful one. The admixture would make a very good feeding article. Without the institution of a minimum price the tariff would not be effective.

Mr. Buckley, T.D., said that the amount of corn imported should be restricted. He favoured the resolution.

Mr. Gorry, T.D., said that the suggested solution of the problem was not a complete solution, but it was the best solution they could put forward. It was a scheme that the farmers and the people wanted. If it came before the Dail after it reassembled, and there was no opposition, it would influence the price of corn this season.

PRESIDENT COSGRAVE'S VIEWS.

Mr. Bergin, dealing with reference to the fixing of a minimum price, said that the scheme made no attempt to fix the price. The price would go up and down. If German oats were exported to England it would be almost as bad as if they were sent to Ireland, because it would destroy the market in England for Irish oats. During the proceedings between the deputation and President Cosgrave and Mr. Hogan, the President said that the deputation had not convinced him that the Minister was wrong in his action on the proposed scheme. The President said that he was not convinced that the food value of the mixture would be as good as that of maize unblended, and that the prices would be equal, and he asked could the Government of twenty-six counties introduce legislation that would benefit only the people of nine counties. To these objections he (Mr. Bergin) replied, giving facts and figures in support of his contention, that the food value and prices would be at least equal, and on the third point he reminded the President that legislation had been passed for the benefit of five counties.

The resolution was unanimously adopted.

DEPUTATION TO THE GOVERNMENT.

On the motion of Dr. Ryan, seconded by Mr. Davin, a committee of five deputies, with power to add three others, was appointed to approach the Government with a view to legislative effect being given to the proposal of the Irish Grain-Growers' Association to have 15 per cent. of home-grown grain mixed with maize before sale to the public, and, failing such action by the Government, the committee to draft the necessary bill. The names of the committee are:—Deputies Dwyer, Aird, Dr. Ryan, Aiken and Davin.

WORLD'S SAFEST MONEY MARKET.

MR. SNOWDEN AND BRITISH CREDIT.

NEW LIGHT ON THE BANK RATE.

FINANCE INQUIRY TO BE SET UP.

Mr. Philip Snowden, the Chancellor of the Exchequer and Acting Prime Minister, delivered an important speech on the Government's financial policy and the recent increase of the Bank rate at the Labour Party Conference at Brighton yesterday.

Mr. Snowdon gave a detailed and technical explanation of the causes of the increase, and, in referring to the possible consequences, said that during the last week the effects had been very much better than anyone had any strong reason to hope for.

The effect of the rise of the Bank rate upon British Funds had been negligible, and the credit of the British Government stood to-day as high as it did before the rate was raised a week ago.

Mr. Snowden announced that the Government had decided to set up a committee to investigate all aspects of banking, financial and credit policy, the effect of the present policy upon industry, and to put forward suggestions for improving those relations.

At the close of the discussion following Mr. Snowden's speech, there were some noisy and violent scenes. Two young women who had handcuffed themselves to the balcony had to be forcibly ejected.

CROWDED GALLERY.

MR. SNOWDEN'S SPEECH.

Great interest was taken in Mr. Snowden's speech, and the demand for seats in the public gallery was even greater than on the two previous days, when Mr. Arthur Henderson and Mr. J. H. Thomas addressed the delegates.

Dealing with the Bank rate, Mr. Snowden said:—It has been quite clear for months that a financial situation was developing which would require some measures to be taken in order to avert certain otherwise unavoidable consequences. When speaking to a gathering of London bankers about three months ago I expressed the hope that a rise in the Bank rate might be avoided, particularly because of its psychological effect, and I made a strong appeal to people who have some influence in this matter to avoid foreign lendings, as far as possible, especially to those countries where the exchanges were unfavourable to ours.

THE ONLY MEANS.

Since that time, three months ago, matters have not improved, and it has become clear that we were approaching a very menacing situation which threatened to inflict considerable damage upon the basis of our general credit. The rise in the Bank rate is, under existing conditions, the only means we have to restore unfavourable exchanges and to regulate the basis of credit. Naturally this increase has caused a considerable amount of comment, and has stimulated an amount of adverse criticism; but in no quarter where opinion is informed has there been any suggestion that, in the circumstances, any other course was possible.

It is no use railing in this matter at the Bank of England. The action in applying this corrective to the drain of gold which has been going on has, I want to assure you, been delayed as long as possible.

THE RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE RISE.

And the time of the greatest strain upon our exchanges is approaching, when it will be necessary to meet the payments for a huge volume of raw material, food and cotton, wool, hides and other things from abroad, and if, at the time that these payments have to be met, sterling is at a discount, then the cost of this raw material will be considerably increased, and that, of course, will find its reflection upon our export trade.

I want to assure you that the Treasury have no influence in this matter, and they have no responsibility for it. This is a matter which rests entirely with the Bank of England, and may I add this, that in every country in Europe—I mean in Continental Europe—with the exception of Germany, the Central Bank is either a wholly State institution or is very largely under the control of the State, and in these countries they have not been immune from having to impose a high Bank rate, and in many of them for a considerable time back the Bank rate has been higher than it has been in this country.

THE GOLD STANDARD.

The Bank of England is the Government's Bank. It conducts colossal financial operations on behalf of the Treasury. It has to place every week something like forty millions of Treasury bills upon the market. It has to conduct conversion operations, and these operations by the Bank necessarily involve constant conversations and constant co-operation between the Bank and the Treasury. I repeat that in regard to the matter of the Bank rate the Treasury has no more control than any individual whom I may at the moment be addressing.

This country has a gold standard. There were some of us who, at the time the change was made five years ago, doubted whether that step was not a little too precipitate, but it was taken, and since then practically every country in the world is now upon the gold standard, and there is no one, not even the advocates of what was known a year or two back as managed currency, who does not admit that, now that the gold standard has been universally re-established, it must be maintained until the wisdom of man has devised some better substitute for it.

CREDIT MACHINERY AND GOLD.

The whole credit machinery depends upon gold holdings and the reserves at the Bank. The ability of the joint stock banks to supply credit is the balance of their reserves of cash; but their reserves of cash are related to the Bank of England reserves, which in turn are regulated by the Bank's holding of gold. Therefore, the loss of gold by the Bank of England contracts the basis of credit.

Owing to the monetary conditions in America and Germany and France, there has been a great demand for dollars marks and francs, and people have been selling sterling in order to buy these other currencies. This has raised the exchanges in these countries against us and depreciated our own exchanges. The results are to be seen in the depreciation of sterling as against the currencies of other nations, and sterling has recently reached a point where it is profitable to take gold.

AN ORGY OF SPECULATION.

All that, of course, has greatly reduced the gold holdings at the Bank of England, with the further result of a contraction of the basis of credit. The high rates which have obtained in America and in Germany have naturally attracted money from other

LATE NEWS.

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH "THE TIMES."

STRESEMANN, THE REALIST.

ACCEPTANCE OF THE WIDER NATIONALISM.

In a leading article to-day The Times says:—By the death of Herr Gustav Stresemann, the remarkable Minister who controlled her foreign policy for the last six years, Germany has lost her ablest statesman. Stresemann lived and worked without stint. For the internal reconstruction of his shattered country, as for peace and co-operation abroad, he laboured with magnificent courage and immense energy. Even when he knew that he was doomed by the disease from which he suffered, he worked on recklessly with the large-minded man's impatience of caution, and his devotion undoubtedly brought him to a premature death. He was not allowed time for all he wanted to do, but in its essentials his work was done. The task he took up when he became Chancellor and Foreign Minister in 1923 would have frightened a smaller man.

The understanding begun at Locarno involved responsibilities and the loyal acceptance of obligations, and, though an enraged minority screamed its opposition, Stresemann was able to make most of his countrymen take a more realist view. He himself had been an ardent supporter of the old régime; he had long clung to the belief that in principle Germany should have a monarchy, but he had the adaptability of the realist and accepted the Republic. Abroad his practical mind equally accepted the facts. He remained intensely Nationalist, but the necessities of Europe and the inter-dependence of its States led him to the wider nationalism that sees in co-operation the only escape from chaos.

MR. SNOWDEN'S SPEECH.

CLEAR AND CONSTRUCTIVE

In a leading article to-day The Times remarks:—Mr. Snowden's clear and instructive speech to the Labour Party Conference yesterday came as a curious contrast to Mr. Henderson's deliberate obscurity of the previous day. There was, certainly, nothing obscure about the courage with which the Chancellor of the Exchequer defended the action of the Bank of England in raising the bank rate last week, and administered a well-timed rebuke to the loose and ill-informed criticism of the central institution, which has made itself heard here and there ever since.

His energetic defence of financial orthodoxy can hardly have been agreeable to some of his audience—not to mention two or three of his colleagues—but it certainly seems to have been effective.

Meanwhile the announcement of an inquiry into the relation of finance to industry is, perhaps, of more immediate interest. Neither the Bank nor the City has anything to fear from an inquiry of this nature conducted by competent experts. Indeed, such an investigation will certainly be welcomed by the best-informed opinion as an educative measure of the highest importance.

HIGH COMMISSIONER FOR IRAQ.

It is understood, says The Times to-day, that the post of High Commissioner for Iraq, left vacant by the death of Sir Gilbert Clayton, has been offered to Sir Francis Humphrys, till recently His Majesty's Minister at Kabul.

Sir Francis, it will be remembered, was the last British subject to leave Kabul by aeroplane on February 25, when he arrived at Peshawar, with the Union Jack of the Legation under his arm. He had previously organised, in concert with the R.A.F., the evacuation by air of the British and fore gn residents in Kabul.

NEW EGYPTIAN PREMIER.

In a despatch from Alexandria yesterday, The Times Correspondent says:—Adly Pasha Yeghen has accepted the Premiership, and is now forming a Cabinet, which he is expected to complete by to-morrow evening. A decree will then be promulgated for the elections. They will be held on the direct suffrage law, and are not expected to take place before the end of November. Parliament will meet about mid-December.

EXPLORERS' DEATHS IN THE ARCTIC

POLICE OFFICER'S LETTER TO CAPTAIN HORNBY.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

CORK, Thursday.

In connection with the deaths recorded in the Irish Times to-day of Mr. John Hornby and two companions, in a lonely cabin in the wilds of North-West Canada, Captain Albert H. Hornby, of Nettleville, Macroom, County Cork, brother of the one of the victims, showed me to-day the letter that he had received from the Commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

The letter shows the utter confusion in and around the little cabin. Rusty traps and other pieces of equipment were found scattered in all directions, and even the pelts of animals killed by the trio have been ravaged and torn into shreds by wolverine. Some silver fox and white fox skins and caribou antlers have remained uninjured, and these, together with papers, photographs and other personal belongings, are being sent home. Many geological specimens have been rendered valueless, including a number of tubes, whose contents has been lost, together with photographs of life and conditions in the area.

Very largely all that has withstood the ravages of time are personal effects—cuff-links and studs, a cigarette case, silver watch, one barometer, a Kodak camera, together with a pocket book, diary and envelope of photographs.

THREE WILLS.

There were also wills, signed by the three men, which, with Mr. Hornby's diary, were found in the store. All traces of clothing had virtually disappeared from the skeletons, which were only identified by the police through the initialled pieces of jewellery adhering.

I am in a position to state that Mr. Hornby's adventures were to have formed the subject of a story, on which he had already made a beginning. As a matter of fact, two chapters of the work, entitled "In the Land of Feast and Famine, or a Lifetime in the Arctic," had been written before his death. Such a book by Mr. Hornby would have been a valuable contribution to this interesting topic of life in the North-West of Canada. He was undoubtedly a victim of the Wanderlust, and despite several visits home, had spent close on thirty years in this area.

NOT A WEALTHY MAN.

Captain Hornby has asked me to contradict the statement that appeared in one cross-Channel paper to-day, that his brother was a wealthy man, having inherited £14,000 on the death of his mother in 1898.

"I have no knowledge of his private affairs," he told me, but Mrs. Hornby did not die until November, 1927, six months after Jack had perished unknown to her in Canada."

GENERAL DAWES GOING TO AMERICA.

General Dawes, the United States Ambassador, is leaving for America next Wednesday on a visit to Chicago. He will go to Washington before he sails from New York for England on October 30th.

WORK OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

ADDRESSES BY FREE STATE DELEGATES.

CLAIM FOR SEAT ON COUNCIL.

DIFFICULT POSITION IN REGARD TO UNITED STATES OF EUROPE.

Addresses on "The Tenth Assembly of the League of Nations" were delivered by Mr. Patrick McGilligan, Free State Minister for External Affairs, and Professor J. M. O'Sullivan, Free State Minister for Education, at a public meeting held in the Mansion House, Dublin, last night, under the auspices of the League of Nations Society of Ireland.

Professor O'Sullivan said that every year the League became more and more part of the international machinery of the world, and in another decade it would be practically impossible for any Power to ignore it.

Mr. McGilligan referred to the Free State's claim for membership of the Council of the League, and said that they would be disappointed if their ambitions were not realised. The Free State delegates, he said, were in a difficult position in regard to the proposal for a tariff barrier all over Europe. It was one of the features of the Economic States plan that, for the first time at the League, an Irish delegate found himself speaking, not merely for Ireland, but for Australia, New Zealand, Canada and South Africa, against Great Britain.

THE OPTIONAL CLAUSE

SEAT ON LEAGUE COUNCIL SOUGHT.

Senator J. T. O'Farrell, who presided, said that, in view of the great importance of some of the questions dealt with at the recent meetings of the League of Nations, the League of Nations Society of Ireland decided that it was desirable that the public should get the earliest opportunity of hearing a statement from the principal representatives at the League Assembly at Geneva.

In regard to the incidents at Geneva, he thought it was desirable to say that he personally, and, he believed, the vast majority of the people, irrespective of party, were eminently pleased and gratified that Mr. McGilligan, on behalf of the Free State, signed the Optional Clause of the Permanent Court of Arbitration without reservation—(applause)—and they were pleased that he indicated his intention in the coming session of Parliament to ask permission for the Free State to accept the general act to the extent that the present Government, or any Government that might succeed them, would maintain and emphasise the status of this State as an international unit in the fullest sense of the word.

A DECIDED ADVANCE.

Professor O'Sullivan said that a very decided advance towards international peace had been made by the League of Nations. One of the ways in which a people could show they were a nation was not by shouting, but by doing the things a nation does—(applause)—and, so far as relations between nations were concerned, he knew no place in which that could be better done than in the League of Nations. For that reason—if for no other—he thought that merely for the strengthening of the best national sense and strengthening their national status, the League of Nations was, for them, a place of very great importance, indeed.

He wished, Professor O'Sullivan continued, that in this particular matter they could have unity. The Irish delegations had been determined that anything they did, either in respect of the optional clause or any other matter, would not make the position of their successors any more difficult in asserting the Irish national position.

It was an enormous task, and was a great tribute to the League that in its short ten years of existence it had travelled a not inconsiderable distance along the path to its ultimate goal. There were many things being done at the League that ten years ago nobody would have though possible or would be a matter for general discussion between the nations of Europe. Certain advances had been made in disarmament, but it must be acknowledged that the task of the League when boldly stated seemed so big as to be impossible.

"I can say," said Professor O'Sullivan, "that every year I go to the League I am more convinced of the staying qualities of the League, of the importance of it, and of its ultimate success. Every year that it remains in existence, every year in which a catastrophe does not occur, is a strengthening of the whole League's position, and more and more does it become part of the international machinery of the world. I am convinced that at the end of the next decade the League will be such a part of the machinery of international politics that to ignore it, on the part of any Power, will be practically impossible."

It was because the Irish delegation were convinced of the importance and growing strength of the League that they felt it necessary to criticise some of the activities of the League, because they felt that certain points of view were likely to be forgotten. If they believed the economic policy of the League would [illegible] here, and that the economic interests of different nations of Europe could never come together, it would not have been worth their while to try to modify that policy along the lines they considered necessary. It was because they did believe it was necessary, and that whatever the League did in a thing of that kind was bound to affect every country, that they felt bound to oppose, in the direction of modifying, that line of policy.

HELPFUL CRITICISM.

The criticisms that they made were in no sense hostile to the League, but sprung from their belief in the effectiveness of whatever policy the League adopted. The League was a reality, and hence it would be absurd to think that any small Power was as important as a big Power, but he knew nowhere in which the small Powers counted for so much as in the League of Nations.

Among the tasks undertaken by the League was the suppression of the traffic in women. Incidental to that, it thought it well to abolish what were known as "licensed" houses.

The opium traffic was a much more difficult one to deal with, and it was anticipated by many that it would lead to quarrels. Those prognostications were altogether unjustified, and from the beginning there was evident in the discussions of the problems a desire—and he believed it was a genuine desire—to do everything possible to abolish the illicit traffic in opium. The question of the control of the manufacture of opium was felt to be the solution, and although it was at first thought that it would be impossible to secure agreement on a plan to limit the manufacture of narcotics to what would be recognised as the legitimate needs of the medical profession, agreement on such a plan had been reached.

THE LATE DR. STRESEMANN.

Speaking on the economic problems of the League, he referred to the late Herr Stresemann, and said that everyone interested in the political peace of Europe had read of the death of Herr Stresemann with great regret. Very few people worked so hard in the League for international peace, although he was not always in agreement with the League or always a member of it. The late German Minister had a difficult task. He was not a man in good health, but those who knew him agreed that his ill-health only became fatal because his devotion to duty was so strong. Those who followed his career knew what a critical task he was faced with, and only those could appreciate the importance of his death. Herr Stresemann pointed out that tariff barriers were higher than ever before since the war, and not only impeded transport considerably, but were an undoubted menace to the peace of Europe. France, Great Britain and Germany put forward a plan for dealing with this problem, which the Free State delegates and representatives of many other small nations agreed was undesirable, because they held that the big Powers, in their anxiety to deal with the problem, had forgotten the existence and requirements of the small undeveloped countries. France, Britain and Germany agreed, in response to their representations, that at the final conference of the nations of Europe an instruction would be issued to the Conference to pay special attention to the peculiar needs of undeveloped countries.

It was important that the people all over the country should realise the importance of the essential portion of the work that was being done, for if wars came again all countries were going to suffer.

"We escaped comparatively from the last war," said Professor O'Sullivan. "As to how far civilisation can escape from another is open to doubt. If a person to be accused of undue [illegible] when he hopes to get means to escape from this very hell?"

In conclusion, Professor O'Sullivan quoted a speech by Dr. Stresemann in which the progress towards the ideal of peace was acknowledged and it was stressed that the laborious task of the League could only be performed by the very hard patient work. It was necessary too that the nation should realise that the cure must be slow and patient. (Applause.)

FREE STATE'S AMBITION.

Mr. McGilligan, Minister for External Affairs, said that he proposed to deal with what happened at the tenth Assembly as distinguished from any previous Assembly. "To me," said he, "the success of the tenth Assembly was this—that it became known, and was generally well received, that the Irish Free State was going next year to put forward a claim for membership of the League of Nations Council. (Applause.) We found that that claim was recognised and was well received. It was well received because our delegations in previous years had created a certain impression at the League. It was recognised that we were not going merely to be a nuisance, but had a contribution to offer, and that when we had no contribution to offer we did not want to make speeches. (Applause.) Now, we are going for the Council of the League next year, and we found that our representations were so well received that I shall be sadly disappointed if we do not achieve our ambition. When we have achieved our object and take our part in the work of the Council, it will be necessary to have in this country a well-informed public opinion on all world political matters." (Applause.)

Referring to the part which small nations could play at the League, Mr. McGilligan said he went to the League this year after an absence of five years, and he found that certain small nations, especially the Scandinavian countries, were lending great weight to the Assembly and to the Commissions of the League, because they had a contribution to offer, and never intervened unnecessarily when the matter did not concern them. There was a wide field of activity in the League. One wondered if there was anything that a speaker could be prevented from discussing at the Assembly, and when it divided up into its six groups they saw how far-flung were the activities of the League.

WORK OF THE COMMISSIONS.

Mr. McGilligan then referred to the matters dealt with by each of the six Commissions, and said that the first, second and third Commissions this year were the most important for this country. At the first Commission there came up the question of the appointment of two judges in the place of two who had died. Two candidates were put forward, and there was controversy over the two names. The delegate of this country on the first Commission had to cast a vote on one occasion as to whether the Court should not in fact be enlarged, so as to have a type of person different from those who had previously acted as judges, and they agreed that the field should be enlarged, so that the Court could include professors of law or the type of legal man who was associated with a Government Department. The controversy over the two names arose because it was recognised that these two representatives had certain characteristics, in that they had been connected with the foreign affairs of these two countries, and that their election might weaken the authority of the Court.

THE NEW CONVENTION.

The second point that arose was an important matter that related to an amendment which was being made in the permanent Court of International Justice—an amendment which was declared to be necessary if the adherence of the United States was to be secured. Terms were drawn up and presented in the form of a new Convention. He mentioned the matter for the reason that one might have thought that America could have signed with certain reservations. That was not the course adopted. The course adopted was that certain things were taken out of the Convention and put into a new draft Convention, and that was presented for signature as a new Treaty. In this case an American reservation was more or less out of the question, and hence the new Convention. The United States' point of view of a new Convention was approved, and had been signed by the majority of the nations present at the League. There was this big result to be looked for from what had happened—that the way was now clear for America to adhere to the statute of the permanent Court, and once that happened one obstacle, at least, would be removed from the path of America signing the Optional Clause. If America did come in, and adhered to Article 36, it would require very little imagination to realise the big change in the world when they got the United States, Germany, France, Japan, Great Britain and Italy, to name no others, agreeing that if certain matters arose which were likely to cause dispute, and if they were such that might be referred to the Court, they bound themselves to refer them to the Court, and carry out its decision, rather than go to war. If America saw fit to add its moral weight by adhering to the statute, and finally adhering to the Optional Clause, a bigger step forward would have been taken at this League's Assembly than had ever been taken, even in the whole period of the ten years since the League was established.

He had signed the optional clause, and in a particular way he claimed that he had not gone beyond, or fallen short of, the course he set out in the Senate previously.

On the question of disarmament generally, there could not be said to be any great advance, but he thought he should report a phrase that he heard one night at the League, a phrase that was caught up, and seemed to have the approval of people who had been attending the League meetings for years. That phrase was, that the more and more that Governments became imbued with what were called Labour politics the more and more would the cause of disarmament progress. (Applause.)

THE GENERAL ACT.

As well as signing the optional clause, said Mr. McGilligan, he had announced that he would seek during the next Parliamentary session approval for what was known as the General Act. The General Act had been referred to by many delegates as a complementary item to the optional clause, and if the General Act were passed, and accepted without reserve by the nations, it would mean that before there could be recourse to war there should be an appeal to arbitration or conciliation. The General Act was going to be an item around which the nations would swing, so far as world politics were concerned, for the next two or three years, and it might be that there would be such an urge given to the signing of the Optional Clause that the progress towards signing the General Act would be speedier, and that within the next two or three years they would get the nations of the world agreeing to sign, without many reservations, the General Act leading to arbitration, a court, or conciliation, as the means of reconciling all disputes, and abolishing, or limiting, the occasions on which war was likely to break out.

UNITED STATES OF EUROPE.

Mr. McGilligan went on to speak of the second Commission, which, he said, had a tremendous importance for this country, and of the question of a united states of Europe. The Irish delegates, he said, were in a very difficult position in relation to what was proposed in regard to this question of a united states of Europe and the general resolutions before the Assembly on certain points. The proposals for a tariff barrier all over Europe, so far as the position that Ireland was asked to agree to, were, as anybody recognising the state of this country would realise, impossible for any Irish delegate to agree to. Their problems were going to be considered at the League of Nations. There was no reason to quarrel with the plan for the economic unity of Europe, so long as that unity recognised a certain diversity in this country, and as it have its place. It was one of the good features of the economic State's plan that for the first time at the League an Irish delegate found himself speaking not merely for Ireland, but for Australia, New Zealand, Canada and South Africa, against Great Britain. (Laughter.)

Votes of thanks were accorded.

A GENEVA CONFERENCE.

MARITIME QUESTIONS.

A special conference of the International Labour Organisation to consider maritime questions will open at Geneva next Thursday. The names of the Irish Free State workers' and employers' delegates will be announced later.

The conference will deal with hours of labour aboard ships; provision for seamen in case of sickness and health insurance for seamen; the welfare of seamen, and the professional competence of masters, navigation officers and chief engineers.

DUBLIN TRAFFIC.

AN INFORMAL CONFERENCE

At a special meeting of the Executive Committee of the Irish 'Bus-Owners' Association held on Saturday last it was decided to issue an invitation to the Great Southern Railways, the Great Northern Railway, and the Dublin United Tramways Company to an informal conference for the purpose of having a general discussion on the traffic problem. Copy of the invitation was sent to the Minister for Industry and Commerce, with the request that he would arrange to nominate a chairman to preside over the conference.

DISAPPOINTING PRICES.

At recent sales in the Argentine of high-class imported bulls exporters experienced heavy losses. At Buenos Aires the champion bull at the Aberdeen Spring Show, belonging to Mrs. Smyth, of Pittodrie, which was bought for 3,000 guineas, sold at £1,750. A bull bred by Captain MacGillivary, sold at Perth for 1,950 guineas, only made £1,166, and one bred by Lady Cathcart that was secured at Perth for 1,250 guineas was sold for 1,333 guineas.

One bred by Joseph Parker, County Armagh, sold at £800.

COMMUNIST ARSENAL DESTROYS TOWN.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
WARSAW, Thursday.

Almost the entire township of Slupia Nowa, near Kielce, was destroyed by fire yesterday, and 1,500 people are homeless. Two synagogues were burned down.

One of the most important consequences of the fire was the explosion of a number of hand grenades and ammunition stored in several Jewish houses, the inhabitants of which were known to be Communists. The police arrested a number of Communists after a struggle.

The town served apparently as a centre for the supply of arms and ammunition to militant Communists in South Poland.

The annual public meeting to mark the opening of the winter session of St. George's Young Men's Christian Association will be held to-night in the Parochial Hall, George's place, Dublin.

the pacification of Europe and the establishment of good international relations, and we send to the German people our condolences in their irreparable loss." (Hear, hear.)

OTHER COMMENTS.

Mr. Lloyd George, upon learning of Dr. Stresemann's death, said:—"His death is a disaster to the peace of Europe. He was a great conciliator."

Lord Brentford (formerly Sir William Joynson-Hicks) said:—"Dr. Stresemann's death is an international loss. I was much impressed by his sense of character and his determination to work for the improvement of Germany and for the peace of the world. One can join Germany in mourning the loss of one of the greatest men she has produced since the war."

MESSAGE TO GERMAN GOVERNMENT.

MR. HENDERSON'S DEEP SYMPATHY.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
BERLIN, Thursday.

The British Ambassador in Berlin has been instructed by the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs to express to the German Government his deep sympathy at the loss they have sustained by the death of Herr Stresemann. The message contains the following passage:

"Herr Stresemann has been an essential factor in the work of the consolidation of peace in the last year, and the example he has set will stand for all times and act as an encouragement to those who desire to bring that work to final success. I experience a sense of real personal loss, and I shall always remember my happy collaboration with Dr. Stresemann at The Hague and Geneva."

Mr. Henderson has also sent to Frau Stresemann an expression of his deep sympathy.

Sir Horace Rumbold has been instructed to convey to the German Government, on behalf of His Majesty's Government, an expression of their deep sympathy in the lamented death of Dr. Stresemann.

"A REAL HERO OF PEACE."

Mr. Arthur Henderson, the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, in a message to the London Correspondent of the Vorwaerts, says that Dr. Stresemann was a great European statesman, and a leader in the struggle for the peace and conciliation of Europe. The work which he accomplished in recent years was work not only for Germany, but for entire humanity. He was a real hero of peace, whose death was hastened by overwork. The message concludes: "His name will live in history as one of the greatest architects of European solidarity and co-operation."

"TRAGEDY FOR EUROPE."

SIR A. CHAMBERLAIN'S SORROW.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
BAROLONA, Thursday.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, who is on a visit here on board the yacht Dolphin, was deeply moved on learning of the death of Dr. Stresemann. After asking for details of the sad event, he said:—

"Dr. Stresemann's death is a tragedy not only for Germany, but for Europe. To his bold initiative we owe the Treaty of Locarno, and to him and Monsieur Briand, before all others, we owe the progress which in the last few years the world has made towards peace. To me his death is a great personal sorrow. In him I have lost a true friend."

THE NEWS AT GENEVA.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
GENEVA, Thursday.

The death of Dr. Stresemann has produced a profound impression in League of Nations circles. It is regarded as a great loss to the League of Nations and to international understanding.

In the absence of Sir Eric Drummond, M. Avenol, the Acting Secretary General to the League, has sent to the German Chancellor a telegram expressing deep regret and respectful sympathy to the German Government and people for the great loss they have suffered by the death of an illustrious statesman, whose "powerful action in the League of Nations was admired by all who had the honour to collaborate with him at Geneva."

M. Albert Thomas, Director of the International Labour Office, has also sent a telegram of sympathy to the German Chancellor.

At this morning's meeting of the Committee of Coal Specialists deep regret at the death of the German statesman was expressed by Sir Sydney Chapman and Sir Arthur Salter, who emphasised the great part that Dr. Stresemann had taken in the economic work of the League of Nations

UNITED STATES SYMPATHY.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
WASHINGTON, Thursday.

Colonel Stimson, Secretary of State, has sent the following message of condolence to the German Government:—"It is with profound regret that I have learnt of the untimely death of Dr Stresemann, which deprives Germany of a great statesman and the world of an untiring worker in the cause of international peace."

SPANISH DICTATOR'S REGRET.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
MADRID, Thursday.

The news of the death of Dr. Stresemann has been received here with much regret, and in political circles the opinion is expressed that it means a great loss for Germany, for Europe, and for the ideals of peace.

General Primo de Rivera, who is at Seville, declared that he had heard the sad news with deep emotion. He then referred to the meeting of the Council of the League of Nations in Madrid last May, when, he said, he got to know Dr. Stresemann personally, and had discovered in what a delicate condition of health he was. He had on that occasion invited him to stay for some time at the Escurial in order to recuperate, but Dr. Stresemann had replied that he must sacrifice his health to the accomplishment of his duty.

DEAD STATESMAN'S CAREER.

"HE DESERVED WELL OF HIS COUNTRY."

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
BERLIN, Thursday.

In Doctor Gustav Stresemann Germany has lost a statesman whom history will acclaim as the man who by his clever and cautious policy as German Foreign Minister brought Germany safely through the perilous years which followed the Great War. Five times he held that post, while he was twice Chancellor.

Gustav Stresemann was born on May 10th, 1878, the son of a Berlin restaurant proprietor with very little money, who managed, however, to send his son to the Universities of Berlin and Leipzig, where he studied Economics and Political Science.

In 1903 Stresemann obtained a post as secretary-general of the Association of Saxon Industrialists, and it was at this period of his life that he entered the political arena by joining the National Liberal Party, and being elected to the Reichstag in 1907.

From that year until his death he was a member of the Reichstag, becoming Chairman of the National Liberal Party in 1917 on the death of Herr Bassermann.

During the World War Dr. Stresemann was not a particularly prominent figure in German politics, and was merely one of the numerous Reichstag Deputies who believed Germany would win the war, who was in favour of

BARRIERS TO TRADE.

ROTARIANS AND TARIFFS.

DR. LIVINGSTONE AND HISTORIC BUILDINGS.

When the All Ireland Rotary Conference was resumed at Portrush yesterday, under the chairmanship of Mr. David S. Irvine, Derry, a paper on "Rotary and International Trade Barriers" was read by Mr. F. M. Summerfield, President of the Dublin Rotary Club. Tariffs, he said, were generally regarded as most formidable barriers, preventing the free development of trade between nations. While it was easy to understand any country, or national unit imposing a tariff to protect industries capable of economical developments within its own borders, it was not so easy to defend the practice of imposing tariffs for purely revenue purposes.

THE LINEN TRADE.

Taking the case of Irish linen and the American market, the speaker said that here they had an article for which this country, and particularly Ulster, was deservedly famous, and for which there was no satisfactory substitute in America or elsewhere. The import duty on Irish linen going into America was so heavy as to place it beyond the reach of thousands of people who would otherwise buy it. America gained little from her linen tariff; she could abandon it without real loss to herself, and give a big filip to industry here. It would be a friendly gesture, and bound to create important reactions of a harmonious nature.

Rotarians could and should do something towards securing the removal of unnecessary barriers, which were preventing full friendly trading intercourse between the nations.

Mr. Charles White, Belfast, said that he had no doubt that eventually trade barriers would be broken down, and that as old institutions of the past had been the subject of ridicule and laughter by posterity, so probably future generations would speak in ridicule of the trade barriers that existed to-day.

Mr. W. Alexander (Belfast) said that it was not to their disadvantage to discuss this subject. If politicians had it in their power to create barriers, Rotarians had in their hands the making or unmaking of politicians.

Major Bryan Cooper said that he did not oppose all tariffs. A country should be at liberty to impose any tariffs that fitted its particular needs.

Sir Charles Mander and Mr. Charles McLaughlin, Dublin, and several others also spoke.

HISTORIC BUILDINGS.

Dr. R. W. Livingstone, M.A., D.Litt., Vice-Chancellor, Queen's University, Belfast, in the course of an interesting paper, said that their public buildings ought to be beautiful as well as efficient. In Ireland they were rather poorly off in respect of fine and historic buildings, but they had some—Derry was richer for its old walls, Dublin for the noble buildings which the eighteenth century bequeathed to it, and Belfast for its City Hall, and, he might add, the front of its University. This was a form of wealth, and they ought to have lots more of it, because it belonged to poorer as well as richer citizens.

No movement was more interesting in England to-day than that to preserve the beauty of the countryside, and to make the buildings in the city and country what they should be. They in Ireland had many advantages over England. He knew of no industrial city in England to compare with Belfast, and who could wish for more attractive surroundings in which cities like Dublin and Cork and Derry were placed? He urged them not to fall behind the ancient Greeks or modern English.

In the afternoon the annual competition for the Irish Rotary Golf Cup was played on the links of the Royal Portrush Club. Many Rotarians visited the Giants' Causeway, where tea was served at the Causeway Hotel. After dinner in the Northern Counties Hotel at night, there was a meeting of the Irish Council, followed by a whist drive, music and dancing.

STRANGE EMBASSY INCIDENT.

ARMED SOVIET SECRET POLICE AGENT.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
PARIS, Thursday.

A sensational story of how he was held up this morning at the point of the revolver by two men acting upon the instructions of a member of the Cheka (the Soviet secret police) is told by M. Bessedowski, First Counsellor of the Soviet Embassy here.

M. Bessedowski states that for some time he had found himself at variance with the views of his Government. Recently M. Roisenmann, a member of the Cheka, interviewed him, and ordered him to return to Moscow to give an account of himself. He refused, but when he attempted to leave the Embassy was stopped by two doorkeepers, who said that they had received strict instructions from Roisenmann to detain him. One menaced him with a revolver. Pretending to go back to his room, he escaped over the back garden wall. He brought the police to the Embassy, and secured the freedom of his wife and son, as well as getting possession of his luggage.

The Matin, in its account of to-day's occurrence, says that the police considered that, as the Ambassador, M. Dovgalévsky, was absent in England, the First Counsellor was entitled to ask for the raising of the extra-territorial privilege of the Embassy, so that the police could enter the premises.

annexations if she did, and who was a staunch adherent of the Monarchy.

FOUNDER OF PEOPLE'S PARTY.

It was only after Germany's complete military collapse that his chance came. He founded a new political party, the German People's Party, recruited from the ranks of "Big Business," and was chairman right up to his death, making it a power in the country.

It was in 1925 that the world began to take note of Gustav Stresemann, when he succeeded Wilhelm Cuno as Chancellor, and promptly put an end to the policy of passive resistance against the French and Belgian occupation of the Ruhr, which was costing Germany enormous sums in paper marks, and, in fact, ruining the country.

Dr. Stresemann was the first post-war German statesman who had the courage to inaugurate of policy of reconciliation and understanding with Germany's former war enemies, instead of carrying on a hopeless policy of defiance and distrust, and this undoubtedly constitutes his chief claim to fame.

It was as Foreign Minister from the end of 1923 till the day of his death that Dr. Stresemann became an international figure, and his name will always be remembered in connection with the Treaty of Locarno, for which he was mainly responsible. The Treaty was signed by him and the then Chancellor (Dr. Luther) on Germany's behalf in October, 1925, and it resulted in a great improvement of the relations between France and Germany.

MADE GERMANY JOIN LEAGUE.

Despite the violent opposition of the Nationalist parties, he also secured Germany's entry into the League of Nations, and finally her acceptance of the Dawes Reparations Scheme.

Throughout his career as Foreign Minister Dr. Stresemann managed to maintain good relations with all foreign Powers, not excepting Soviet Russia, with whom the Treaty of Rapallo had been concluded by his predecessor, Walter Rathenau.

No unpopular was Dr. Stresemann at times that his life was in danger from fanatical Nationalists, and he received many threatening letters, which he treated with contempt, continuing to follow the path which he had marked out for himself, and which he was certain was the right one for his country.

Germany has lost her most outstanding political figure in Dr. Gustav Stresemann, a man who certainly deserves to have inscribed on his tomb the epitaph: "He deserved well of his country."

MR. SNOWDEN.

countries. There has been a perfect orgy of speculation in New York during the last twelve months. Call money has been high, because all call money has been as high as 12 per cent. If 10 or 12 per cent. can be got for money in New York, that is an attraction to people who have money to lend in all countries in the world. Therefore, where rates are lower, the drain begins to flow from this country to the market where it can receive higher remuneration.

Although the case of Germany is not quite comparable with that of the United States, Germany, for the last ten years, has been carrying out enormous works of reconstruction. Germany has been practically rebuilt during the last ten or a dozen years. That means that Germany has had to attract foreign capital into Germany to a very large amount. Therefore, we have been between these two countries, Germany and the United States, each making drains upon our own gold, upon our own resources, contracting the basis of our exchange, and resulting in the turning of the exchange unfavourably against us.

THE CASE OF FRANCE.

The case of France is somewhat different. A great part of the gold which has left the Bank of England during the last four weeks has gone to France. There is no very clear explanation of the reason why that has happened, but I am very glad to say that yesterday there was a very marked improvement in the French exchanges in our favour. The ordinary rate in France has been five and a-half per cent., which means that commercial accommodation has been paying six and a-half per cent. and seven per cent., a higher rate than was paid in this country before the rise in the bank rate a week ago. That is, as clearly as I can put it, the explanation of the rise in the bank rate.

Now, I want to say something of what the effect is likely to be. The object, of course, is to draw money back to this country and to stop the drain of gold, and when this is done then the exchanges will improve in our favour, and the purpose of the rise in the bank rate will have been achieved. It was too early to be in the least dogmatic as to what the results of the rise in the bank rate would be, but he thought that during the last week the effects have been much better—very much better—than anyone had any strong reason to hope for.

BRITISH CREDIT.

The American exchange has turned very strongly in our favour, so has that of practically all European countries with the exception of France, and, as I said just now, we saw a very welcome announcement in the papers this morning, that yesterday there was a move in our favour in the French exchange. I may add this, that the effect of the rise of the Bank rate upon British Funds has been negligible.

A rise in the Bank rate makes practically no difference whatever upon long term loans and investments. The credit of the British Government stands to-day just as high as it did before the Bank rate was raised a week ago.

TRADE AND EMPLOYMENT.

Mr. Snowden then turned to the effects of a higher Bank rate on trade and employment. Do not, he said, assume from what I am going to say now that I am either advocating or defending a high Bank rate. In this matter we have past experience to guide us. In February last—the 7th of February, I think—when the Bank rate was raised from four and a half per cent. to five and a half per cent., we had then all those terrific prognostications as to what the effects would be upon trade and industry. We must confine ourselves to the facts which are available.

Take employment. Three days before the Bank rate was raised the number of unemployed registered was 1,369,000. Two months later it had dropped to 1,178,000, and it continued to fall, with a slight seasonable increase in August, down to the present time. A week ago the number of unemployed was two hundred thousand less than it was at the time the Bank rate was raised in February. May I turn to something else regarding employment which, I think, is even more conclusive, and that is the volume of employment.

MORE WORK AND BETTER TRADE.

The Chancellor said that for five months before the Bank rate was raised in February the volume of unemployment had been constant at 104. After the Bank rate was raised it began to rise, and has continuously up to the present time, standing last month at the index figure of 107. Another good test was foreign trade. In February the export of domestic production was £55,665,000; in August the figure was £63,000,000. He did not wish to convey the impression that he had produced these figures to show that this improvement was due to the rise in the Bank rate. On the other hand, they showed that the disastrous results which were then foretold certainly did not appear to have been realised. There was one other effect the Bank rate might have, and he was confirmed in that by the news from the United States this morning, that the price of call money in New York had fallen to seven per cent., one of the lowest points he believed which had been touched for a long time. The point he wished to make was that if they had a high Bank rate it tended to discourage speculative adventures.

There must be something wrong, and something which needs attention, Mr. Snowden said, when an orgy of speculation in a country three thousand miles away should dislocate the financial system here, and inflict grave sufferings upon the workers in practically every country in the world. This is a matter to which our serious attention must be directed. We must try to see whether it is possible to prevent such disastrous things, and possibly for human wit and human knowledge to devise a system where finance will be the hand-maiden and the servant of industry, and not its master. (Cheers.)

THE INTERNATIONAL BANK.

I doubt if anything very effective can be done except by international co-operation, and I am hopeful that the International Bank, which is to be set up under the Young Plan will be able to carry out what was intended in the Geneva resolution—to devise international co-operation for the purpose of economising the use of gold, and some machinery for preventing the unnecessary trans-shipment of gold. I hope it will be able to fulfil that function, but we cannot wait for that. We must see if anything can be done within our own control.

We must see whether our present methods of credit are the best, or whether they are serving the interests of industry, as well as possible, or whether some better means must be devised. After all, that is of paramount consideration.

A COMMITTEE OF INQUIRY.

The relations of industry and finance—I think it is necessary to have a full inquiry into these matters. It is no use going on airing our views. We shall never arrive anywhere by that means. If it is possible to get authoritative knowledge, then we ought to have it. There is a large amount of public support for such an inquiry. Industrialists, many financiers, bankers, economists and labour organisations have all asked that such an inquiry should be set up. In granting this inquiry, I want to say that it does not arise out of recent events. It does not arise out of the increase of the bank rate a week ago, and it has no connection with certain sensational happenings which have recently taken place on the Stock Exchange.

When the constitution of the Committee is announced I am sure it will command public confidence. The Committee will have wide terms, and it will be able to investigate all aspects of banking, financial and credit policy, particularly to find out what are the aspects of the present policy, and what are the effects of the present policy upon industry, and to put forward suggestions for improving those relations. The setting up of this Committee implies no reflection whatever upon British banking and financial institutions. Whatever improvements may be possible in their methods and their constitution, the fact still remains that these institutions are pre-eminent in the world for their soundness and their probity. British credit to-day is the best credit in the world, and the British market is the safest market for investment of those who want a genuine investment, and do not crave for speculative properties.

COMPANY LAW.

Referring to the Hatry case, Mr. Snowden said—That, of course, is sub-judice, and I cannot discuss it. The only thing I can say is that the Board of Trade and the Treasury are looking into this matter. We shall have to wait until all the facts and the regulations are known, and then as soon as we know the facts we shall see in what respect the present company law can be amended and strengthened, so as to assure a larger measure of public control for the security of the genuine investment. I want you to understand that this has nothing at all to do with the Committee which I have been describing to you.

I believe that the Committee which I am going to appoint will be able to throw some light on our darkness. I think it will be able to garner wisdom from practical experience, and I believe its recommendations when applied will do much to bring close co-operation and to serve the common interests of our financial institutions and laymen; and I am hopeful that the welfare of the common interests at large will be very greatly enhanced. (Cheers.)

EMERGENCY RESOLUTION.

On the suggestion of the Chairman, an emergency resolution, in the name of the Independent Labour Party, calling attention to (1) the disastrous effect of the raising of the Bank rate upon trade and employment; and (2) the recent evidence of the wasteful misuse of capital, with its consequent losses to great municipalities as well as to industry, and urging the Government to take immediate action, with a view to the application of the declared policy of the party of bringing currency, banking and finance under national control, was not formally moved.

It was agreed to have a general discussion.

A LIVELY SCENE.

Shortly afterwards the Chairman applied the closure, and the most lively scene of the Conference followed.

Mr. David Kirkwood, M.P., rose and shouted: "I want to make a public protest. This is the second debate in which the Chairman has deliberately cut me out."

There were insistent cries from delegates all over the hall of "Sit down." Mr. Kirkwood continued to speak and shouted: "I have not very much to say."

The Chairman—Please resume your seat. Mr. Kirkwood has no right to make that statement. Neither he nor anybody else has privileges in this Conference.

Mr. Kirkwood (angrily)—I have never had privileges from you or anybody else.

There were renewed cries of "Order," and "Sit down."

The Chairman—I saw various delegates anxious to speak, and I chose the speakers I thought would make the most useful contribution to the debate.

This brought Mr. Kirkwood to his feet again, and he shouted, "My record and contribution to the Labour movement will bear comparison with anybody's. You have no right to make a statement like that."

The Chairman—Mr. Kirkwood can be quite happy that the head-lines will be all right. (Laughter.)

A delegate sitting near Mr. Kirkwood shouted to the Chairman: "You filthy cur, you dirty dog, to say a thing like that."

MR. MAXTON'S PROTEST.

Mr. J. Maxton, M.P. (Chairman of the I.L.P.)—On behalf of my party I want to make my protest against the Chairman's studied offensiveness towards one of my colleagues.

The Chairman—I think Mr. Maxton would be much better engaged in keeping his delegation in order.

The incident then closed.

MAN EJECTED FROM THE GALLERY.

There was a scene in the public gallery while Mr. Arthur Henderson was speaking on the question of representation on the committee. A man, afterwards found to be Mr. Wal. Hannington, the Communist, suddenly rose and shouted: "Will you tell us whether the Labour Government is going to stop this persecution." The remainder of his remarks were drowned by cries of "Order, order," and "Put him out."

For several minutes Mr. Hannington continued to shout at Mr. Henderson, but the volume of protest grew, and it was impossible to hear what he said. He threw a batch of leaflets, charging the Labour Government with persecuting the unemployed, down on to the heads of the delegates. Four or five stewards then approached and removed him.

WOMEN CREATE A SCENE.

This was followed a little later by a scene of much greater violence. Two young women dressed in deep mourning began to shout, "Down with the Socialist Government; down with Clynes, the persecutor. Release the Nine Mile Point miners." This was greeted with general uproar, and when stewards rushed to eject the women they found that they had handcuffed themselves to the railings of the balcony.

A number of stewards struggled for several minutes with the women in their attempts to release them. All the while the women shouted, and the stewards had to gag them to keep them quiet.

In one case it was fairly easy to uncouple the handcuffs, but the other woman hung on desperately until it was seen that blood was streaming from her mouth on to the handkerchief which was being used as a gag. Eventually she was released, and as she struggled with the stewards along the balcony, one of the delegates protested against the stewards using so much violence.

"Nobody is being hurt," replied the Chairman.

"It is a great deal to be condemned," the Chairman added, "that the Communist Party, instead of letting men do this job, which must mean a rough and tumble, should put women into the firing line."

The two ejected women were taken to the police station, but it was understood that they would be released later.

1,000 PRISONERS MUTINY.

THREE WARDERS KILLED IN FIGHTING.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
CANON CITY, COLORADO, Thursday.

A thousand prisoners confined in the State penitentiary here mutinied this afternoon, and gained access to the prison arsenal. Three warders are reported to have been killed in the fighting which followed.

Only meagre reports have circulated outside the prison walls so far, but it is understood that the convicts are still holding the prison guards at bay, and have complete control of the institution.

The artillery company of the Colorado Militia and all the members of the Fire Department of Canon City have been called out to aid in quelling the outbreak.

Forces of police and sheriffs and their deputies are being rushed from Colorado Springs.

WEDDING IN LONDONDERRY.

A pretty wedding took place in Derry Cathedral yesterday, the bride being Miss Madelaine Waller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hardress E. Waller, of Troy, Londonderry, and Tynte Park, Dunlavin, Co. Wicklow, and the bridegroom Mr. Robert M. Helme, the Royal Sussex Regiment, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Helme, of Hurst Pierpoint, Sussex.

The bridesmaids were Miss S. Bowen, Miss F. Cooke and Miss H. Cooke, and the train-bearers were Miss P. O'Mahoney and Miss M. Harte. The bridegroom's attendant was Mr. E. G. Macnab, the Royal Sussex Regiment.

The bride wore a long dress of white and silver brocade on princess lines, with a long train. Her tulle veil was held in place by five ropes of pearls, one other row passing under her chin. Her bouquet was a sheaf of lilies. The bridesmaids wore chiffon frocks and coats, the latter with fur Medici collars and big fur ruffs in gladioli colourings. They each carried a sheaf of gladioli. The train-bearers were in petal frocks of the same shades, and they carried Victorian posies.

The Right Rev. Dr. Peacocke, Bishop of Derry and Raphoe, officiated, being assisted by the Rev. R. C. S. King, M.A., Dean of Derry, and the Rev. L. R. Lawrenson, M.A. The full choir of the cathedral attended, and the hymns sung were "Praise, My Soul," and "O, Perfect Love." The reception took place in the Synod Hall, and was attended by over 120 guests. Afterwards the happy pair left for their honeymoon, which is to be spent abroad.

HEAVY LIQUIDATIONS.

STOCKS CLOSE WEAK.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.)
NEW YORK, Thursday.

Stocks opened firm, but the unexpectedly large increase of nearly $670,000,000 in Stock Exchange member loans last month aroused widespread uneasiness, and resulted in very heavy liquidation, which carried U.S. Steel and many other Industrials, Utilities and Railroads to new low levels on current decline. The losses in active issues ranged from 10 to 20 points, while declines of 5 to 10 were quite common. Many hold to a theory that the current decline will not culminate until the volume of trading reaches "record"-breaking proportions on the decline. Several efforts to rally the general list were frustrated by increased offering and bear attacks. Apart from the huge gain in loans there was nothing in the day's news to explain the liquidation, call money being decidedly easy and declining successively from 7½ to 6 p.c. Commercial Solvents broke 40 points, Auburn Auto 27, American and Foreign Power 19, American Water Works 24, Westinghouse Electric 20, and A. M. Byers, U.S. Steel, General Electric, Simmons Company, Johns Manville and Du Pont 10 to 15 points. International Combustion, North American, Union Carbide, Anaconda Copper, Canadian Pacific, New York Central, and Atchison Topeka declined 5 to 8 points. The market closed weak, and the "ticker" was forty minutes late. Government Bonds steady; Railroad Bonds dull.

Money on call closed easy at 6 p.c. bid and 6¼ p.c. asked. Business done during the day ranged from 6 to 7½ p.c., with 7½ p.c. the ruling rate. The last loan was transacted at 6 p.c.; prime mercantile paper 6 to 6¼ p.c. Sterling exchange firm. Silver ¼c. lower at 50.

The day's sales amounted to 4,742,000 shares.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE

CYCLONIC WINS.

BOSWORTH BEATEN ON THE POST.

ELTON'S PROSPECTS.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT

NEWMARKET, Thursday Night.

There are some people who like parallels, and they can draw one from the result of the Jockey Club Stakes here this afternoon, in which Bosworth was beaten a short head by Cyclonic. In the St. Leger Trigo beat Bosworth by a short head, then went to Ireland, and in the Irish St. Leger only just got home by a short head from a moderate sort of horse like Visellus. Bosworth then comes on here to run, and Cyclonic beats him by exactly the same margin as Trigo beat him at Doncaster, while another moderate horse, Plymouth Hoe, is only a short head away third.

The fact that Bosworth was beaten to-day seems to dispose of these statements repeated ad nauseam in the endeavour to belittle the value of Trigo's victory, that if Frank Butters only had another fortnight, or even a week, with Bosworth, or if there had been another hundred yards to go in the race itself, Bosworth would have won the St. Leger. I am afraid I am at a loss for an explanation of why Bosworth was beaten to-day.

BLAME THE JOCKEY!

The first person, of course, to blame is the jockey, and reproaches were cast on Weston for having gone to the front on him just about where the rails on the Rowley mile begin. He did not, however, push him to the front. Defoe and Plymouth Hoe, who held a slight lead of him, fell back a little, and he let the horse go on, for he was just taking a nice hold of his bit and was going very easily and smoothly. So they came down Bushes Hill, Bosworth still in the van.

In the dip Weston shook him up and he drew out, but coming up the hill the others were drawing out, too, and very soon Plymouth Hoe loomed up as a danger, and in a fraction of time Cyclonic was becoming a menace. Then Weston had to ride his hardest, and when he had Plymouth Hoe contained, as the Generals say, Cyclonic, most powerfully ridden by Elliott, got up to beat him on the post.

PERHAPS NOT A TRUE STAYER.

Perhaps, after all, Bosworth is not at present a true stayer. This would be ridiculed in some quarters, but a personal impression of the race at Doncaster was that Bosworth could not have found another ounce, and this afternoon's result goes some way to confirm it. Cyclonic was third to Fairway and Palais Royal in the St. Leger last year, beaten a length and a half and a length. He has never been so well as he was this afternoon, and the classic form of the two seasons comes fairly closely into line, with a slight advantage in favour of that of last season.

Plymouth Hoe is a six-year-old, owned by Mr. Reid Walker, who was meeting Bosworth on 17lb. better than weight for age terms, and he came very near to bringing off a nerve-shattering surprise After the race, I may say, that several bets were taken about Friendship for the Cesarewitch, where he has 7st. 11lb. He has never shown a scrap of form before, but he ran well now.

ELTON'S DEFEAT.

The Lincolnshire winner, Elton, did not make his Cambridgeshire chance look any the better when he was beaten a neck and a head by Negnac and Busy Sue in the Clare Welter, for which he was greatly fancied. He was going well and practically in front until they came out of the dip, where he seemed to be a little cramped for room on the rails. I thought his stride shortened as if he were not liking the hard ground too much, and he failed to get up.

An interesting runner for this race was the Cesarewitch favourite, Arctic Star, who looked sound and well in the paddock, and, considering the distance was only a mile, he ran well, for he was making up ground at the finish, and his staunch admirers think that he would have won had there been another quarter of a mile to go. A bet of 900 to 100 was taken about him after the race. The triumphs of Blandford continue, and a consistent filly by him, Blandishment, won the Bentinck Fund Nursery by three parts of a length from Alkali, who used to be known as the Ashe Cosh filly, and ran a good race under top weight. Indeed the experienced Fox thought he had won on her. Third, a head away, was Mr. George Hartigan's Lochy, a colt by Vencedor.

A VETERAN WINS.

The veteran, Oak Ridge, gave another of his good performances when he won the Snailwell Stakes, overhauling Doch and Doris, who had gone away with a long lead, and beating him easily The gelding by Zria's Charm, out of Marie Rose, whom Mr. J. C. Sullivan sold at Doncaster last year for 400 guineas, won the Wicken T.-Y.-O. Selling Plate by a length from Grande Dame, who, when she was lengths in front, went away from the rails to the centre of the course.

The Whatcombe stable keeps on winning two-year-old races. In the Triennial Produce Stakes, Theresina, with long odds laid on her, beat Pegasus, with ease. This winner, whose second appearance it was, was bred by the Aga Khan from Diophon and Teresina.

SELECTIONS.

To-morow's racing will fall off a good deal. There will be very few runners for the Norwich Handicap, which MARA should win. The Ditch Mile Nursery is open, and PRINCE PARADISE may be the best. TOTALISATOR should win the Newmarket St. Leger, while nothing is likely to bother ANN GUDMAN in the last race of the day, the Rous Memorial Stakes.

At Thirsk SNOOPS should win the North Yorks Nursery.

The highest price paid for a yearling at Doncaster this year was reached at the sales this morning, when Mr. Fred Straker sold his Irish-bred colt by Tetratema, out of Brack Buie, to Mr. Lambton, bidding for Mr. Edward Esmond, for 8,000 guineas. Many lots were sent out of the ring unsold, but when a really good-looking yearling came there was good competition.

LISTOWEL.

SUCCESSFUL WIND-UP.

The Listowel Meeting yesterday wound up on a high note of success, the attendance, as on the preceding afternoon, being of the most gratifying dimensions.

After winning the Ladies' Plate, with which sport was resumed, Miss Hilda had to run the gauntlet of an objection on the grounds that she had not jumped the last flight of hurdles. The objection was overruled, but the Stewards expressed the view that it was a case in which the deposit should not, if possible, be estreated. Roman Boy gained a very easy victory in the Featherview Steeplechase, in which Laudamus, upon whom odds were laid, never seemed to settle down to his work, and was in a hopeless position before the straight was entered.

Calendio, who had run second to Denis Orb in a hurdle race on the opening afternoon, now reversed the placings in an exciting finish for the Southern Plate, a flat race. Wednesday's winner, Orange Grove, gave another test of his quality in the Kerry Steeplechase, in which he set his 10lb. penalty at defiance, and scored comfortably from Wild Edgar and Swanee II., the latter of whom had bolted on the way to the course earlier in the day, and covered some distance before being caught. Absent Denis, who was made favourite, got rid of his jockey at the regulation fence the second time round. Mr. H. J. Tully, the Western owner, kept up his useful winning average with the aid of Hose Blanc, who ran Good Thing out of it in the closing stages. Details:—

2.0—LADIES' PLATE of 60 sovs. A hurdle race for maidens. 14 m

Mr. J. J. Parkinson's b. m. MISS HILDA, by Knight of Kilcash—Lady D'Arcenberg, 6, 10-7 T. McNeill 1

Mr. E. J. Hope's HELENA'S GEM, a. 10-7 J. Costello 3

Mr. M. M'Donogh's Thistle Lass, a, 10-7 J. McNeill 0

Mr. A. Rodgers's Double Ben, 5, 10-2 D. Kieley 0

Mr. G. P. Gilpin's Coolebar, 4, 10-2 ...D. Ward 0

(Winner trained by Owner.)

Betting—Even Miss Hilda, 7 to 4 agst. Atlantic Flier, 8 to 1 each Coolebar and Thistle Lass, 10 to 1 Helena's Gem, 100 to 1 Double Ben.

Double Ben was slow to begin, and Coolebar went on from Helena's Gem. Miss Hilda, Atlantic Flier and Thistle Lass until half a mile from home, when Atlantic Flier was slightly in front of Miss Hilda and Helena's Gem, with Coolebar last. At the last hurdle Thistle Lass fell, and Miss Hilda, heading Atlantic Flier, won by six lengths; nine lengths divided second and third. Double Ben was fourth and Coolebar fifth.

An objection to the winner on the grounds that she missed the last hurdle was overruled.

2.30—FEALEVIEW PLATE of 60 sovs. Second 5 sovs. A weight for age steeplechase. 2 m.

Mrs. S. Lyon's bg. ROMAN BOY, by Romus—Mary Honour, a. 11-7 Mr. F. T. M'Keever 1

Mr. E. J. Kieran's LAUDAMUS, 5, 11-5 D. Ward 3

Mr. M. J. Hyde's Mollie Brown, 6, 10-4 Mr. W. Kidney 0

(Winner trained by M. Cunningham.)

Betting—7 to 4 on Laudamus, 2 to 1 agst. ROMAN BOY, 10 to 1 Dagda, 50 to 1 Mollie Brown.

Laudamus went on with a slight lead of Roman Boy, with Dagda and Mollie Brown next, until half a mile from home, when Laudamus made a mistake, and Roman Boy, drawing clear, won by thirty lengths; a neck divided second and third.

3.0—SOUTHERN HANDICAP of 60 sovs. A flat race. 1 m. 2 f. 20 yds.

Mr. J. Harle's ch. g. CALENDIO, by Count Anthony—Cardinella, 6, 8-5 C. McQuillan 1

Mr. P. Behan's Louisa, 3, 8-0 ...Jno. Doyle 0

(Winner trained by J. Kirwan.)

Betting—Even Denis Orb, 5 to 1 agst. Ballyfrenn, 4 to 1 Poledip, 6 to 1 CALENDIO, 20 to 1 Louisa.

Calendio and Ballyfrenn went on from Poledip, Denis Orb and Louisa, until a quarter of a mile from home, when Calendio drew to the front, and, resisting the challenge of Denis Orb, won by a neck; twenty lengths between second and third. Poledip was fourth.

3.30—KERRY HANDICAP STEEPLECHASE of 70 sovs. 3m.

Mr. D. O'M. Leahy's b. g. ORANGE GROVE, by Kroonstad—Violet Bank, a. 11-5 D. Ward 1

Mr. M. M'Grath's WILD EDGAR, a. 11-3 C. McCarthy 2

Mr. Peter O'Neill's SWANNEE II., a. 9-8 Mr. C. H. Lane 3

Mr. C. H. Lane's Absent Denis, 6, 10-8 M. Lane 0

Mr. John Gleeson's Let Me Go, a, 10-7 M. Hynes 0

Mr. H. M. Ryan's Misfire, a, 9-7 ...Sir E. Goff 0

(Winner trained by G. Gilpin.)

Betting—6 to 4 agst. Absent Denis, 3 to 1 ORANGE GROVE, 4 to 1 Let Me Go, 7 to 1 Saucer, 8 to 1 Wild Edgar, 50 to 1 Misfire.

Orange Grove settled down from Wild Edgar, Misfire, Swanee II., Let Me Go and Absent Denis, for a mile, when Orange Grove was leading from Misfire and Absent Denis, with Swanee II. next, and Let Me Go last. At the half-way stage Absent Denis unshipped his rider, and Misfire was pulled up, and, holding Wild Edgar at bay, Orange Grove won by three lengths; two lengths divided second and third. Let Me Go was fourth.

3.55—KILLARNEY PLATE of 60 sovs. A weight for age flat race. 2 m.

Mr. H. J. Tully's ch. f. HOSE BLANC, by Thistleton—Patria, 3, 10-9 ...Jno. Doyle 1

Mr. C. Blackmore's GOOD THING, a. 11-12 Mr. F. Clarke 0

Mr. J. O'Sullivan's The Vagabond King, 3, 10-4 Mr. J. Foley 0

(Winner trained by Owner.)

Betting—Evens Border Knight, 3 to 1 agst. The Vagabond King, 5 to 1 HOSE BLANC, 6 to 1 Good Thing, 20 to 1 Ballynoe Cherry or any other.

The Vagabond King set the pace to Ballynoe Cherry, Lukeswell and Hose Blanc with Barrackton Boy last. A quarter of a mile from home Good Thing was in advance of Hose Blanc, The Vagabond King and Border Knight, and Hose Blanc, challenging inside the distance, won easily by three lengths; twenty lengths divided second and third. The Vagabond King was fourth.

BOXING.

ENGLISHMEN BEATEN IN GERMANY.

At Cologne last night Joe Croxon (Notting Hill) lost on points to Franz Duebbers in an eight-round feather-weight contest. The middle-weight, Teddie Parker, was knocked out by Hein Domgorzen in the fifth round; and Jakob Domgorzen was awarded the decision on a foul against the Belgian, Godard. Hein Mueller (Germany) beat Don Shortland (Sheffield) on points in a ten-round heavy-weight contest.

Mr. Isidore J. Blake has joined the directorate of the Metropolitan (Baldoyle) Race Company.

NEWMARKET TO-DAY: PROBABLE STARTERS AND BETTING.

A CAMBRIDGESHIRE POINTER.

SELECTIONS.

The final stage of the First October Meeting at Newmarket has the Norwich Handicap as one of its chief features. This race, which is run over the Cambridgeshire course, is not likely to shed much light on the more important event to be decided at the Houghton Meeting at the end of the month, as there will not be a very large field. It is expected that Playboy will be saddled for this, and on his second to Pictoralas in the Cambridgeshire Trial Stakes at York a good case can be made out for him. Mara has run very well this season without, however, having raised a winning flag. At the recent Doncaster Meeting she was far from disgraced when failing by a head to concede 2lb. to Burnside. Although he has failed in his two last outings, the claims of Lanson cannot be overlooked There is little encouragement to fancy Totalisator or N.P.B., while the distance may be just a trifle too far for Great Scot. Butters holds a very strong hand here with Candlemas and Pauli engaged, and as both can be well fancied on past running I think whatever beats the Stanley House representative will be returned the winner.

The Bretby Welter Handicap has a very open appearance, and should prove a good wagering medium. Of those in the top half of the handicap nothing appeals to me more than Queen Scotia, who is a very speedy filly, while in the lower division Early Summer stands out as one likely to trouble the best, and I regard the filly as the danger to Queen Scotia.

Some smart juveniles will sport silk in the Rous Memorial Stakes, but in view of the past record of Ann Gudman I fail to see anything likely to beat the Aga Khan's filly.

Scutter colt, who is at the head of affairs in the Ditch Mile Nursery, may not prove equal to conceding 14lb. to Prince Paradise, who finished third in the Prince of Wales's Nursery at Doncaster. Barrowby is well spoken of, but I think this will prove to be the turn of Fart Four.

Hadleigh Selling—Golden Heritage.

Bretby Welter—Queen Scotia (nap).

Ditch Mile Nursery—Part Four.

Norwich Handicap—F. Butters's selected.

St. Leger—Modder.

Rous Memorial Stakes—Ann Gudman.

Plymouth Hoe forced the pace from Bosworth, but in the straight Weston got on clear of Defoe, Ganga Singh, Quarter Sessions, Plymouth Hoe and Friendship. The last-named, together with Defoe and Quarter Sessions, raced up to the leader at the bushes, but shortly afterwards Friendship dropped away and Bosworth went on again. As he raced into the dip Plymouth Hoe and Cyclonic began to move up, and in a fine finish the last-named won by a short head; the same distance separated second and third. Friendship was fourth, Ganga Singh fifth, Defoe sixth, and Hartford last. Time—3 min. 4-5 sec.

M'NEIL'S SUCCESS.

THIRD GOLF TITLE FOR THE NORTH.

IRISH PROFESSIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.
NEWCASTLE, Thursday.

Hugh McNeill, of Portrush, achieved his first success in the Irish Professional Championship this evening with a total of 317 for the 72 holes, beating Charles Pope, of Fortwilliam, by 3 strokes, third place being taken by John Sullivan, of Bray, with 322. Sullivan had a lead on each of the first three rounds, but he missed his chances in the evening, when he required 85.

SEVERE CONDITIONS.

If anything, the conditions were more severe than on the first day, though there was no rain whatever, the wind was stronger, and even players of the calibre of Pat O'Connor were blown off the course on the high tees. Rarely, indeed, has championship been played in circumstances which put to such a test the physical and hitting powers of the men, and a remarkable feature of the results was that the three first places were taken by veterans of the game.

For many years McNeill has been fighting hard for the title. The time was up for it—in 1920-21-24—and it is worthy of note that only twice before was the championship been won by anyone which won for him as the champion secured the cup at Portmarnock in 1919 with 326, and James Martin, with 325, successful at Portrush in 1922 with 317.

Taking the championship as a whole, the scoring was extraordinary, it was worse to-day than on yesterday, the greens had dried up as the result of a harsh wind, and the balls had merely to be touched to send them far past the hole if the hole in the morning happened to be missed. scores of 90 ing we had no fewer than those over 90 or over, while in the evening, a state of exceeded that number by anything things which reflected better of the condi- else could the extreme severe- tions.

HOLE IN ONE.

The day's golf was featureless to some extent by Tom Gaffney holing one at the tenth, which was played with the wind blowing with the strength of a gale, but I saw one player take as many as 13 for the thirteenth. Another had a ten at the tenth, and a well-known championship competitor required 9 at the 14th, while many escaped running into double figures by a stroke. It was freak golf sometimes, and incidentally a lesson to the Association not to run their championship so late in the year.

On his second round McNeill played very steadily, knowing what he had to accomplish. He reached the turn in 38, and his supporters a fright, for he finish gave a stroke here which might have been disastrous to his prospects, by taking 5, the result of three putts.

Sullivan went badly on the round, and, with 42 for the first nine, set himself a lot to do. On the way in he was quite unable for the task, and finished in 85, which deprived him even of second place, Pope having effected a fine recovery on his last round with a splendid

THREE FOR THE NORTH.

Thus the Cup followed the Irish Open Amateur Trophy to Royal Portrush, and, with the Irish "Close" also going to Fortwilliam, the South may be said to have fared badly in this year's championships.

The championship introduced us to a few very promising young players, but I have no hesitation in saying that the best of the young school by a long way is Sinsella, who plays all his strokes beautifully, getting excellent length with the woods and hitting the irons with the skill and sureness of the experienced professional. He is sure to be our coming professional. There is a further young lad, who was formerly apprentice to Shannon at Milltown, as now with the Enniskillen Club.

AMERICAN LADIES' CHAMPIONSHIP.

BIRMINGHAM (MICHIGAN), Thursday.

Miss Glenna Collett (Rhode Island), the holder, easily won her second round match in the American Ladies' Golf Championship on the Oakland Hills course here. She defeated Miss Orcutt (White Beeches) by 7 and 6, and is now a strong favourite for the title.

Mrs. Hurd (née Dorothy Campbell), a former British title holder, beat Miss Hunter (Stanton Heights) by 9 and 8. Miss Van Wie (Chicago), runner-up last year to Miss Collett, was beaten by Mrs. Federman (New York) by 2 and 1.

MISS COLLETT EXTENDED.

Miss Glenna Collett (Rhode Island), the holder, was extended in the third round, when she was taken to the 19th green before she could beat Mrs. Higbie, of Detroit.

Mrs. Hurd was beaten by Mrs. L. Pressler (Los Angeles) by 3 and 1. In the other matches Mrs. Hill (Meadowlake) beat Mrs. Hanley (Detroit) by 2 and 1, and Miss Wall (Oskkosh) beat Mrs. Federman (New York).

The semi-final matches are—Miss Collett v. Mrs. Hill, Mrs. Pressler v. Miss Wall, and will be played to-morrow.

RUGBY.

ROWLAND HILL MEMORIAL MATCH.

BIG CROWD EXPECTED.

The Rowland Hill memorial match, to be played at Twickenham to-morrow, has attracted widespread interest throughout the four countries, and the booking of seats has, we understand, equalled that at the best of international games. On the only other occasion a similar match was played the public were, to an extent, deprived of the opportunity of witnessing it. It was played in the grounds of Rugby College, and only the privileged few were able to see it. England and Wales then won by two goals, two dropped goals and one try (21 points) to two goals and two tries (16 points). To-morrow's match is open to everyone, and it is expected that there will be an exceptionally large crowd.

The composition of the sides suggests a match of exceptional interest. For instance, one is anxious to see how George Stephenson will fit in to the Scottish three-quarter line composed of Ian Smith, P. Macpherson and W. M. Simmers. Will Sugden and Davy hit on one of those days of thorough understanding which at times credited them as being the best pair of half-backs of the day; and how will the four Irish forwards fit in with the Scotsmen? This back division, with T. G. Aitchison in the last line, on paper at least, reads as formidable an attacking combination as could be got together, provided all the men are fit. There has been but very short time for practice, and what practice there was had to be curtailed owing to the hard state of the various grounds.

The English and Welsh side, of course, will suffer just as much in this respect. The selection of the forwards to represent this combination does not seem to have given general satisfaction, and questions are asked as to why Stanbury and Sparkes were not included. Still, the pack is a solid one, and, no doubt, will give the Scots-Irish eight all they can do to hold them. Behind the scrummage there is more youth on the English-Welsh side. J. S. R. Reeve, C. D. Aarvold, Guy Morgan and J. Morley are a fiery quartette, with plenty of initiative, and, provided Powell hits it off well with F. Williams, we should see some brilliant movements between the opposing back combinations. The match will be largely a test of experience against youth, and at so early a stage of the season one is inclined to favour the experience of the Irish-Scottish side.

The Irish players, at least those of them from Leinster—namely, James Farrell, E. O'D. Davy, M. Dunne and P. Murray (Wanderers), who travels as substitute back—leave by this morning's mail boat, and will be joined at the Hotel Russell, London, by George Beamish, C. T. Payne, George Stephenson and M. Sugden. The Scotsmen, who will provide the substitute forward, will also stay at the Hotel Russell. To-morrow night the sides will dine together at the Metropole Hotel.

George Stephenson, who captains the Irish side, is the only remaining member of the Centenary match.

T. W. Brown (Bristol), being unable to play, J. Bassett (Penarth) will take the full back position for England and Wales. So far as is known at present, there are no other changes in the sides already announced. Teams:—

IRELAND AND SCOTLAND.

Full Back—T. G. Aitchison (Gala).

Three-Quarters—(L.W.) I. Smith (Edinburgh University), (L.C.) G. P. Macpherson (Edinburgh Academicals), (R.C.) G. V. Stephenson (North of Ireland), captain; (R.W.) W. M. Simmers (Glasgow Academicals).

Half-Backs—Scrum, M. Sugden (Wanderers); E. O'D. Davy (Lansdowne).

Forwards—J. W. Allen (Melrose), G. R. Beamish (R.A.F.), M. J. Dunne (Lansdowne), J. L. Farrell (Bective Rangers), H. A. McIntosh (Glasgow H.S.), C. T. Payne (North of Ireland), R. T. Smith (Kelso), W. B. Welsh (Hawick).

ENGLAND AND WALES.

Full Back—J. Bassett (Penarth).

Three-Quarters—J. S. Reeve (Harlequins), C. D. A. Aarvold (Headingley), Guy Morgan (Swansea), and J. Morley (Cardiff).

Half-Backs—F. Williams (Cardiff) and W. C. Powell (London Welsh).

Forwards—H. Rew (Exeter), J. S. Tucker (Bristol), captain; T. Arthur (Neath), D. Parker (Swansea), R. Barrell (Cardiff), E. Coley (Northampton), C. D. A. Gummer (Plymouth Albion), and Ivor Jones (Llanelly).

Referee—Mons. B. C. Muntz, President, French Rugby Federation.

WEAK PALMERSTON TEAM BEATEN.

DROGHEDA, 14 POINTS; PALMERSTON A, NIL.

The home team fielded a weak side against Drogheda yesterday at Clonskeagh, and suffered defeat by two goals (one from a mark) and two tries to nil.

Palmerston were at a further disadvantage in playing a man short, and they finished with thirteen men, owing to a forward retiring hurt. Drogheda, playing uphill, attacked, and, after J. O. Collins had run and kicked, C. Murdock put in a fine dribble, to score between the posts, five minutes from the start, for Thompson to convert. After Thompson had sent wide from a free and Condon had been grassed on the line, Horgan picked up to score at the left, Thompson's kick missing.

In the second half a good Drogheda passing bout, in which Jr. O. Collins, Wright, and Braid took part, ended in J. M. Collins scoring at the left, after twelve minutes, Braid failing with the kick. Palmerston lost a forward, through injury, and Thompson, heeling, dropped a fine goal. Palmerston were pressing at the end, but failed to score.

Palmerston A—H. Massy; L. Mulroney, E. A. Hipwell, F. Colthurst, A. W. Haggard; N. Falkiner, J. Stafford; C. N. Kirwan, M. J. Kane, P. E. Hession, W. J. Mahony, A. J. Fisher, V. E. Kerr, H. Conlan.

Drogheda—J. McEneaney; A. Donnelly, H. G. Thompson, E. M. Wright, J. J. Horgan; J. O. Collins, J. Smith; F. W. Condon (captain); C. W. Murdock, R. Murdock, J. Dwyer, A. Maginn, J. M. Collins, J. P. Braid, A. Carthy.

Referee—Mr. Carthy.

SUNDAY MATCHES.

RESOLUTION BY CARRICK CLUB.

The following is a copy of a resolution passed at a special meeting of the committee of the Carrick-on-Suir Club:—

"That the committee of this club deplore the action of the Irish Rugby Union in permitting the subject of Sunday Rugby in Munster to come up for discussion at their annual general meeting. The subject is one that can only lead to much controversy, and tend to place an undue strain on the loyalty of the clubs affiliated to the Munster Branch, and, no matter what decision is come to at the meeting, if the Munster junior clubs stand firmly together, they can face the future with equanimity."

DROGHEDA C.S. v. HIGH SCHOOL.

Drogheda Grammar School opened their season on Wednesday, when they defeated High School 1st XV. by 6 points to 3 in a fast game, played at Drogheda. The scorers were O'Farrell, a try, and Pike a penalty goal, for Drogheda; and Boucher a try for High School.

RAILWAY UNION F.C.

This club has vacant dates for home and away matches on Saturday, 12th October, for their 1st and 2nd XV.'s. Clubs please communicate with Hon. Secretary, M. A. Veale, Bute House, Kilmainham.

SWIMMING.

GIRL GUIDES' GALA.

The Iveagh Baths were crowded last night for the annual gala of the Dublin Girl Guides' Association, when an excellent programme of eighteen events was provided.

Glengarra Park were successful in both the team events, but in the senior their victory was assisted by a technical infringement by one of the Zion Rangers' team.

The graceful diving handicap produced a generally high standard, Miss Jameson, of Glengarra Park, being first by a narrow margin over Miss H. Smith, Zion Rangers. Mrs. E. E. Benson presented the prizes.

Beginners' Race (two widths)—Heat 1—K. Browne, Glengarra Park, and J. Hutchinson, Howth (dead heat), 1; P. Grey, Clontarf, 3. Six competed. Time—91 4-5 secs. Heat 2—D. Fitzpatrick, Glengarra Park, 1; M. Corke, Zion, 2; J. Walsh, Leeson Park, 3. Eight competed. Time—21 2-5 secs. Final—K. Browne, 1; J. Walsh, 2; D. Fitzpatrick, 3; J. Hutchinson, 4. Time—21 4-5 secs.

44 Yards (under 14)—Heat 1—N. Coughlan, Glasnevin, 1; S. May, Sandford, 2; L. Pearson, Howth, 3. Five competed. Time—49 4-5 secs. Heat 2—P. Kellett, Mariners H., 1; S. Dunlop, Monkstown, 2; B. Shea, Sandford, 3. Seven competed. Time—53 4-5 secs. Heat 3—E. O'Sullivan, Mariners H., 1; P. Strain, Glengarra Park, 2. Five competed. Time—50 1-5 secs. Final—Dunlop, 1; Kellett, 2; May, 3; Coughlan, 4. Time—59 secs.

66 Yards (Smalley Cup)—Heat 1—R. Jameson, Glengarra Park, 1; D. M'Lachlan, St. Bart.'s, 2; S. Cheetham, Mariners H., 3. Four competed. Time—58 4-5 secs. Heat 2—R. Ewen, Zion, 1; K. Burke, Mariners H., 2; T. Browne, Sandford, 3. Four competed. Time—57 2-5 secs. Final—R. Jameson, 1; R. Ewen, 2; S. Cheetham, 3. Time—57 3-5 secs.

88 Yards (Rangers' Cup)—N. Brooks, Rathgar, 1; M. Myles, Leeson Park, 2; E. Smith, Zion, 3. Six competed. Time—87 secs.

44 Yards (under 16)—Heat 1—B. Hinchcliffe, St. Margaret's Hall, 1; M. Ashenhurst, Monkstown, 2; M. Garbutt, Clontarf, 3. Five competed. Time—38 2-5 secs. Heat 2—H. De Courcey, Howth, 1; R. Dalton, Drumcondra, 2. Five competed. Time—37 3-5 secs. Heat 3—M. Thompson, St. Margaret's Hall, 1; S. Cheetham, Mariners H., 2. Five competed. Time—38 4-5 secs. Final—H. De Courcey, 1; M. Ashenhurst and B. Hinchcliffe, dead heat, 2. Time—37 secs.

66 Yards (16 and over)—Final—H. Smith, Zion Rangers, 1; L. Clinch, Adelaide Road Rangers, 2; M. Flynn, Rathgar Rangers, 3. Six competed. Time—62 1-5 secs.

Life-Saving—E. Smith and H. Smith, Zion, 1; L. Clinch and A. Byrne, Adelaide Road, 2. Eight competed.

Junior Inter-Company Team Race—88 yards—Glengarra Park, 1. Five teams competed. Time—72 secs.

Senior Inter-Company Team Race—176 yards—Glengarra Park, 1. Five teams competed. Time—2 mins. 45 secs. Zion Rangers, who finished first, were disqualified for a technical infringement.

44 Yards Breast and Back Stroke—Final—H. De Courcey, Howth, 1; L. Ross, St. Bart.'s, 2; R. Rosenthal, Glengarra Park, 3. Seven competed. Time—46 secs.

Graceful Diving—R. Jameson, Glengarra Park, 1; H. Smith, Zion Rangers, 2; R. Ewen, Zion, 3. Seven competed.

ST. ANDREW'S COLLEGE GALA.

The annual swimming gala will be held in the Iveagh Baths to-night at 7 o'clock. In addition to the usual school events, the programme includes the Leinster Schools Squadron Championship, a relay (open) 88 yards, a boys' (open) 66 yards, a polo match—Old St. Andrew's v. Old Leinster Schools, and a 50 yards old boys' race.

ASSOCIATION.

NEWRY'S NEW BACKS.

Newry Town, which so far this season has had only one victory in the Irish League, have strengthened their defence by signing on two full-backs, Kelly and Walsh, of Coatbridge, Glasgow. The new men will play against Ards to-morrow at Newry.

DENT JOINS NOTTS FOREST.

Dent, the Huddersfield Town centre forward, who played in twenty League matches last season, has signed on for Nottingham Forest, who also secured the transfer of Scott, an outside right from Kettering Town.

M'INROY LEAVES SUNDERLAND.

The Sunderland F.C. have transferred Albert McInroy, their international goalkeeper, to Newcastle United. McInroy, who joined Sunderland from Leyland seven seasons ago, appeared for England against Ireland in 1927.

BILLIARDS.

NEWMAN V. DAVIS.

BIG BREAK BY DAVIS.

At the end of the first session yesterday, 410 points separated Newman and Davis, Davis scored 696 for an average of 65 and Newman 625 for an average of 57. The former resumed play with an unfinished break of 322, but he lost the white at 565 and 5 points later failed at a red winner. Davis, however, gave a good display in his later play, marking up 259, 91 and 239 (unfinished). Newman made runs of 114, 115 and 260. Interval:—Davis (in play), 13,042; Newman, 12,632.

Davis played splendid billiards at night, and recorded the highest break of the season with a run of 979. This included 43 and 29 close cannons, and his breakdown came about when he missed a red winner. Newman had breaks of 154 and 88, and his average was 36 against Davis's 126. The latter scored 1,158 for the session. Closing scores:—Davis (in play), 14,180; Newman, 12,953.

COST OF LIVING BONUS.

LATEST REDUCTION STIRS PROTEST.

POSITION OF POST OFFICE WORKERS.

In a statement to an Irish Times representative yesterday on the recent reduction in the cost of living bonus on civil servants' salaries, Mr. W. Norton, General Secretary of the Post Office Workers' Union, said that, undoubtedly, there was grave discontent among civil servants, and especially among Post Office officials, whose basic wages were notoriously low, at the recent reduction in the cost of living bonus. Post Office workers on low basic wages had reached a point where no further reduction was possible without imposing grave hardship, and many Post Office officials were struggling desperately from week to week to make ends meet on a wage which was utterly inadequate to maintain a decent standard of living. The State, he said, should be a model employer, but when one examined the wages paid in the Post Office it would be found that the State in its treatment of Post Office officials was far from being a model employer, and, in fact, was far behind many private employers in its wage standards.

When the cost of living bonus came into operation in March, 1920, Mr. Norton stated, the cost of living index figure was 130, but that figure was only applied to basic salaries not exceeding £91 5s. per annum (35s. per week). Where salaries exceeded that amount only 60 per cent. was applied on the excess over £91 5s. and up to £200 per annum. Where the basic salary exceeded £200 only 45 per cent. was paid on the excess over £200. He quoted the case of a Post Office assistant on a pre-war wage of 61s. The present cost of living bonus to that officer based on an index figure of 75 was 35s. 3d. per week; but if the index figure of 75 was applied in full to his basic wage he should receive a cost of living bonus of 45s. 9d. per week.

A glaring defect in the cost of living bonus machinery, Mr. Norton said further, was that it provided only for measuring unaltered the pre-war standard of living of average working-class families, and made no allowance whatever for an improvement in the standard of living for the past fifteen years.

TO STOP REDUCTION.

On the initiative of Mr. Norton's Union, a Committee of Service organisations has been set up to inquire into the cost of living bonus, and the Union proposes to co-operate with other Civil Service organisations in a strenuous compaign to stop the reduction in the cost of living bonus for those on low basic salaries, and to demand the application of the full cost of living index figures to basic wages and salaries up to £200 per annum.

MODERN METHODS IN ICE FACTORIES.

ITALIAN AND IRISH CO-OPERATION.

A pleasant function marked the opening of a factory by the Modern Ice and Cold Storage, Ltd., yesterday at Island Bridge, Dublin. Mr. Finian Lynch, Minister for Lands and Fisheries, was present, and several prominent members of the Italian Community, including Signor G. Silenzi, Royal Italian Consul-General; Signor Avelini, Secretary to the Consul, and Signor Sante Staffieri.

An interesting demonstration of the methods of the manufacture of ice and general working of the factory was given by Signor Tito Giusti.

Mr. Ernest Cullen, Chairman of the company, presided at the reception, and said that the idea of starting the factory emanated from a few Italians in the city. It was an up-to-date factory, and, with the exception of two Italian engineers, the labour employed was local. The enterprise was a splendid example of Italo-Irish co-operation, and he hoped and believed that it would be very successful. (Applause.)

Mr. Finian Lynch, Minister for Lands and Fisheries, said that he was very grateful for having been invited to be present. It was very pleasant to have an Italo-Irish combination in that company. Any enterprise which provided additional cold storage in this country was very welcome.

Signor G. Silenzi spoke of the very cordial relations which existed between the Italian and Irish races, and created laughter by remarking that the ice was not meant to cool those relations.

DUBLIN CHILD KILLED.

KNOCKED DOWN BY 'BUS.

Another fatal motor accident occurred in Dublin yesterday afternoon.

Annie Carroll, the three-year-old daughter of Mr. Peter Carroll, 42 Patrick street, was playing in the street opposite St. Patrick's Cathedral when she was knocked down by a 'bus which was being driven towards the centre of the city. She was taken to the Adelaide Hospital, but was dead on arrival.

Patrick O'Brien, Summerhill, the driver of the 'bus, was arrested, and later was allowed out on bail.

STORE CATTLE SALES.

MESSRS. R. AND J. WILKINSON.

The poor trade in the beef market had an unfavourable effect on the demand for store cattle. There was a fair show of cattle, including some very good lots from the South and West, but Eddings were on a lower scale than last week, and some lots failed to change hands. Some useful lots of polled bullocks made top price of the sale at £21 15/-. £18 15/-, £18 10/- and £17 15/-. Aberdeen-Angus crosses at £17 and £16 17/6 were 38/- and 37/- per cwt., whilst the horned and polled cattle were from 37/- to 34/- per cwt. Young cattle of nice quality made from 38/- to 35/-. Secondary quality animals in very indifferent demand.

MESSRS. GAVIN LOW, LTD.

There was a further increase in the entries for yesterday's store sale. Buyers were numerous and included several from across Channel, who purchased extensively, and notwithstanding the depressed tone of the beef market, trade was brisk for all lots showing quality and condition. Aberdeen-Angus cross-bullocks, which were forward in large numbers, attracted considerable attention, and made £19, £18 10/-, £17 17/6, £16 15/-, £16 10/-, £14, £13 15/-, £13 10/- and £13, or from 43/6 to 50/- per cwt. With the exception of a few lots of rough and thin cattle a very good clearance was made. Horned bullocks and heifers made from 39/- to 52/- per cwt.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

TONE AND COMMENT.

DUBLIN UNDECIDED.

MARGARINES FLUCTUATE.

There was only a very poor volume of dealing current on 'Change yesterday, and settlement influences were dominant in curtailing dealings and helping to keep the prevailing trend of prices on balance adverse. To-day will be the latest dealing day for the settlement. The rise in Government National 5 per cent. Sterling Loans was continued, with sharp gains and a higher price, for the moment, current than War Loan 5 per cent. Stock. Banks were idle, with Bank Stock alone dealt in. Guinness Shares were still offered, and eased a little, but Power and Son Pref. were a harder market. Steady prices were current for Steam and Canal issues. Great Southern Rail issues nearly all show a weaker tendency, with fresh declines of ½ to 1 point. Great Northern Debs. also eased. Dublin United Tram 3½ per cent. Debs. were wanted at or over last prices in some cases. Parent Trust Shares appeared more settled, while remaining largely a nominal market. British-American Tobaccos closed over lowest, and Imperials were steady. Coats Ord. slipped a few pence further. Courtaulds were a firm market. Helys Ord. were moved up 1s. Imperial Chemicals were irregularly disposed. Margarine Union Shares, after initial weakness, turned active and closed higher.

LONDON FIRMER.

GILT-EDGED RALLY.

Rather more interest was displayed in the London Stock markets as a whole yesterday, while here and there active and firm individual features were apparent. The British-American Tobacco Company's offer of 6 p.c. Second Pref.-shares proved an immediate success, and the lists were closed five minutes after the official opening owing to very heavy over-subscription. Dealings in the New Zealand Loan are expected to begin to-day at a small premium, despite the fact that the underwriters were left with about 30 p.c. of the issue.

No further alteration was made in the Bank rate yesterday, and, while no change had been anticipated, this exercised a reassuring influence, and a rather firmer tendency developed during the afternoon, the final quotations being higher in several directions. Irregular conditions ruled in Foreign Government stocks, business remaining on an extremely small scale. Home Rails encountered fresh support and further improvements were recorded. Idle conditions prevailed in Colonial and Foreign Rails, while the tendency was irregular, Americans, on the other hand, recorded an all round recovery.

Dealings were on a somewhat wider scale in the Industrial sections, and while the general tone remained irregular, a number of strong and active features were evident. Among Tobaccos, Carreras came into favour on a revival of bonus rumours, and Breweries strengthened in several instances. News, following the overnight set-back, opened on a rather dull note, but there was some improvement later.

DUBLIN BUSINESS DONE.

NATIONAL LOAN 101¼. GUINNESS, COATS, "BATS," RAILS LOWER. STAGNANT MARKETS.

Government National 5 per cent. Sterling rose ⅜ to 101¾, and the Deed Stock, not recently quoted, 2½ to 101¼, while do. 5 per cent. Second Loan repeated 97 x.d.; but Land Bonds 4½ per cent. shaded off a fresh ¼ to 88½.

In British Funds, War Loan 5 per cent. hardened ⅛ to 101½, but Victory Bonds fell ⅛ to 91⅛.

Dublin Corporation 3½ per cent. repeated 78. In Banks, Bank of Ireland Stock repeated 304.

In Breweries and Distilleries, J. Power and Son Pref. hardened 3d. to 13s. 3d., but Guinness Ord. fell 6d. to 89s. 9d., 9s. 6d., and the Pref. ⅛ to 10⅞

In Steam, etc., British and Irish Pref. repeated 16s., while Grand Canal Pref. were bid for at 72s. 6d., the last price. Coast Line 5 per cent. Debentures changed hands at 72.

Home Rails were weaker. Great Northern Pref., without so quoting, fell ½ to 48, the Debs. ½ to 65½. Great Southern Ord. ½ to 17½, the Pref. 1 to 37, and the Guaranteed 1 to 49, while the Debs. repeated 57.

In Trams, Dublin United 3½ per cent. "A" Debs. were bid for at 50 x.d., or ⅛ over previous price.

Parent Trust Def. realised 6s.

Among Manufacturing Shares, British-American Tobaccos opened 1s. 3d. lower at 122s. 6d., but later recovered to 123s., and Imperials were steady at 96s. 6d. Coats Ord. fell 3d. to 66s.-65s. 9d., but Courtaulds held firm at 67s. 6d. Imperial Chemicals rose 3d. to 32s. 3d., but the Def. fell 3d. to 12s. 10½d., 12s. 9d. Margarine Unions opened 9d. lower at 93s. 6d., but recovered to 94s. 6d., and at the later market to 95s. 3d. Helys Ord. rose 1s. to 32s.

Gas, Bakery and Drapery Shares were idle.

In Trading, etc., Irish Times 2nd Pref. repeated 16s., and Central Hotel Shares 6s., while J. G. Mooney and Company Pref. rose 7d. to 78s. for a few shares. McKenzie Shares remain bid for at 17s. 6d., but did not offer.

Nineteen Twenty Nine Investment Trust 5 per cent. Pref. realised 8s.

INDUSTRIAL MARKET.

UNCERTAIN TENDENCY.

MARGARINES STRENGTHEN.

Although moderate support was given in places a general disposition was shown to even-up commitments in the Industrial Market yesterday owing to the near approach of the settlement. Most of the speculative favourites were marked down, and with Wall Street in a selling mood during the late dealings such shares as Brazilian Tractions, Hydro-Electrics, International Nickels, and Radio Corporations all trended downward. A weak tone also developed in most of the Swedish issues, due, it was reported, to liquidation from the Continent. Among the few firm spots were Margarine Unions and Unies.

The Canadian-American descriptions reflected American tendencies, sellers predominating after hours in the "street." Brazilian Traction Common fell back 2 to 72½, and Internationals left off 1⅛ down at 56⅜. Hydro Electrics lost a point on balance at 76, after being up to 80 in the early dealings. International Holdings were offered around 11, Radio Corporations relapsed 6 to 87, but further support was given to Cables and Wireless, the "A" stock improving ¼ to 82½, and the "B" stock a point to 56.

Columbia Graphophones lost the best part of Wednesday's late rally, the final quote of 11½ showing a net decline of ⅞. H.M.V.'s ruled dull around 6½. Metropoles were offered at 3s. 3d. Electricals gave a mixed display.

Most of the interest again centred around the Supply shares. Isle of Thanet were favoured at 41s., but Folkestones reacted 2s. 6d. to 65s. Among the Equipments Associateds rallied smartly, touching 40s., and closing 1s. 9d. to the good on balance at 39s. 6d. General Electrics hardened to 52s. 3d. and Siemens to 26s. 6d., but British Insulated and Callenders were unchanged.

A welcome feature in the Shipping group was the better appearance of Royal Mail issues. The 5 p.c. Deb. Stock changed hands in good numbers, and, after being dealt in up to 69, against the previous day's best of 65, were finally called 67½. The 5 p.c. and 6 p.c. Pref. Stock were also a firmer market around 52½, as were the Ords. in the neighbourhood of 40. Cunards strengthened to 22s. 9d., but falls of 6d. occurred in Elder Dempster 6 p.c. Prefs. at 10s. and Lamport and Holt 6 p.c. Prefs. at 3s. 6d.

Among Banks, Lloyds gained 6d. further to 62s., while Agricultural of Egypt hardened fractionally to 7¼, but one or two losses were shown. In the Insurance group fractional losses occurred in Prudential "A" at 24½, Eagle Stars at 11¼ and Guardians at 10¼.

Allied Cements continued to attract support and gained 6d. to 3s. 4½d., while Cement Products added ⅛ to around 15s. Associated Portlands were moderately active near 26s. Anglo-Atlantics changed hands in fair numbers, and were finally without variation around 9s. 3d.

Motor shares generally remained on the dull side. Little disposition was seen to infuse fresh life into the Coal and Engineering section. Vickers closed a few pence better at 8s. 9d., but sellers appeared for Babcocks around 63s. 9d., B.S.A. Ord. at 12s. 3d. and Swan Hunter at 21s. 9d.

In the absence of supporting orders, the Celanese group trended downward. American Celanese Common reacted to 6, and Canadian Celanese gave way further to 4½, with British Celanese Ord. sellers for choice around 1⅛. Branston Defd. sagged to 5s. 3d. Courtaulds maintained a steady front at 3⅜, while Snia Viscosa remained around 15s. 6d.

Apart from Bleachers, which stiffened a few pence to 29s., there was little doing among Textiles. Both Fine Spinners at 53s. 6d. and Calico Printers at 19s. 3d. came on offer, and J. and P. Coats lost the turn at 66s. 4½d.

With the exception of Margarine issues, few variations occurred in the Food Supply and Catering sections. A moderate inquiry assisted by a little "bear" closing was quickly reflected in both the Unions and Unies, the former finishing ½ to the good at 4⅛ and the latter ⅛ up at 5.

Carreras "A" rose ⅛ further to 15⅜, although business was not of large proportions. "Bats" at 6½ were the turn harder, being helped by the success of the Pref. issue. There was a good turnover in "Imps," which were maintained at 4⅛.

Among Brewery issues, Watney Defd. were wanted and rose 1s. to 54s. There was a moderate business in Distillers and Guinness, which were without change at the close. Newspapers proved less active, but steadier.

In other directions some liquidation from the Continent caused renewed weakness in the Swedish group. Kreuger and Toll fell 1½ to 31, and Swedish Match "B" shares ⅛ to 17⅜. United Molasses were subject to end-account sales, the price dipping to 7⅛, and closing with a net loss of ⅛ at 7½. Imperial Chemical Ord. firmed up to 32s. 6d., and the Defd. to 13s. 1½d. Dunlops were 1½d. easier at 16s.

OIL SHARES MORE HEALTHY.

Although business in Oil shares yesterday was on only a moderate scale, a distinctly firm tendency prevailed among the leading counters, with Shells and Royal Dutch particularly prominent. The strength displayed by these shares was attributable to the receipt overnight of favourable advices in regard to the course of Oil shares in New York on Wednesday. A further favourable factor was the decline in production of crude oil in the United States last week. New York was a buyer of Royal Dutch in the late dealings here on Wednesday, and some orders were left over until to-day, so that, following the rise in America, a further improvement took place here. New York was also buying Shell bearer. Support continued to be received from Paris for the Eagle issues, that section also purchasing Shells and Royal Dutch. A little selling was in progress of Anglo-Persians and Burmahs. Realisations by "House" speculators were responsible for a loss in British Controlled Pref'd., the Common weakening in sympathy. Otherwise Vens. were uninteresting. Apart ture among Trin. issues was the weakness which developed in United British Oilfields on rumours that the directors may decide to pay no dividend for 1928. As a result the shares were freely offered and gave way sharply, although they made a partial rally towards the close.

RUBBER SHARES WEAK.

Interest in the Rubber Share market remained on an extremely small scale, and, despite the recovery in commodity values, share quotations went off further, some of the losses being of a substantial character. In the raw material section, spot and October sold 9¾d. to 9¼d. and 9¾d. per lb., while November closed at 9¾d. after commencing at 9⅞d., and December finished at 9¾d. after 9⅜d. per lb.

PRODUCE AND FOOD MARKETS.

Dublin—Cattle slow and prices lower; Sheep and Lambs dull trade; Dairy Cattle steady; Pig trade more active. York—Irish Stores late rates; Dairy Cattle pound per head dearer. Birmingham—Pigs quiet. Butter 2/8 up at Copenhagen. Cork—Butter rising. Tin recovering. Rubber better.

CATTLE.

DUBLIN (Metropolitan).—The smaller supplies of stock put forward to be dealt with here this week were apparently again more than enough, and failed to influence any corresponding difference in the tone of trade or values. The beast gathering continues to embrace a large proportion of raw or roughish animals, which previously were mostly to be seen in store sale dispersals. However, as the cross-Channel trade for store cattle is now partially suspended, or, at all events, unattractive and unremunerative to export dealers, these storish animals are coming in this way, and tend to small weekly offerings on our market considerably beyond the usual seasonable dimensions. It appears, too, that most of these are being taken by shippers for slaughter, not further feeding, and cattle here on the whole may now be graded as 1st, 2nd and 3rd quality beeves; anything with pretension to meated usefulness can also be sold inside a price for the butcher, there being little disposition to buy cattle for winter keep. Altogether the market worked out in a slow, cautious routine for cattle at a further more or less sharp depression in values. Really good bullocks could be readily purchased inside 38s. to 40s. per cwt., while best run of heifers and oxen figured about 41s. 6d. to 42s. 6d., and occasional extra nice sorts for leading Dublin trade 43s. to 44s. per cwt.—a biggish carry-over of unsold cattle, including many useful drafts. There was little real change experienced in sheep market, but lambs were decidedly worse, and after the nicer small fat sorts rated irregular, butchers perhaps showed less hesitancy in paying previous full terms for prime wethers of both small and medium heavy-weight from, say, 60s. to 75s., and 80s. Shippers were more in quest of hoggets from, say, 52s. to 65s., and 70s. per head, t'lack-faced sorts being looked for.

	Numbers on sale this week	as compared with last.	Corresponding weeks of 1928.	1927.
Beasts	5,413	Decrease 169	4,845	4,681
Sheep and lambs	7,465	Decrease 1,019	7,395	6,804
Veal calves	12	Increase 4	16	15

The beast trade has lapsed into a more accentuated groove of sloth and depression. Choice small weights of heifers and oxen placed early to Dublin victuallers averaged 42s. 6d. to 43s., and for occasional fancy beasts 44s., but perhaps not even ten per cent. of entrants (bar some fancy blacks) realised latter quotation. Best average run of exhibits figured from 41s. to 42s., and really good trading types of bullocks 38s. to 40s. In fact, around £2 per cwt. may be accepted as current value of average meated cattle. Inferior sorts, perhaps, in 35s. to 37s. 6d. zone. There was a good demand for prime fat heavy cattle for Scottish markets, preferably polled blacks. Lancashire, Yorkshire, etc., buyers secured considerable drafts at pear their own terms. The London trade, however, was not so good, not that there was any real diminution in want, but unfavourable rumours concerning the position of certain connections seemed to curtail the usual volume of business thence. Beef cows not so satisfactorily negotiated. After selections of best fat young cows by local feeders, Belfast men, and a few shippers at from 32s. 6d. to 35s. and 36s. 6d. per cwt., there was a veritable dry up in the energy of buying. Inferior old cows down, say, to 25s. 6d. per cwt.

For prime qualities of Dublin mutton there was a fair trade around previous values. Choice wethers, say, 9½d. to 10½d. per lb., fancy cheviots 10¾d. to 11d. per lb. Other classes 7½d. to 9d. per lb. Wethers of 60s. to 75s. and 80s. value figured much as before, a few pens up to 82s. and 84s. Shippers keener buyers hoggets inside 52s. to 56s., but one or two dealers paid up to 70s., 75s., and over in some special commissions. Black-faced hoggets much looked for. Lamb trade more disappointing and irregular, prices anywhere from 25s. to 55s., 60s., and 65s., but sales tedious and uncertain.

DUBLIN DAIRY.—Although market looked much larger than last week, official return of entries proved practically a repetition of previous numbers—viz., 415 exhibits. There was a stronger representation of English buyers and correspondingly keener trade for suitable young well-bred cows, but particularly heifers of good promise in either milk or springing condition. Heavy capacity middle-aged milchers suiting Scottish purposes were also in good demand, but previous values were harder to reveal in the main, as many shippers had already drawn to some extent on country fairs. Choice big capacity milchers, £25 to £30 each; young cows and heifers of prime class, £22 to £25 and £26 each; ordinary, £15 to £21; others down to £12 per head.

DUBLIN PIG.—Supplies here this week showed some further expansion, and totalled about 854 head of pigmeat. Trade all round for stores, porkers and baconers indicated a healthier and more active tone. A few Yorkshire and Manchester shipping men operating made home buyers keener to secure requisite supplies, and in the opposition existing for earlier selections of hogs prices took a decidedly dearer turn, which was subsequently fairly well maintained to the wind-up. In live-weight test prime hogs averaged 70/- and 71/- per cwt. on foot, and secondary 67/6 to 69/-; approximate dead reckoning choice baconers, 86/- to 90/-; porkers, 90/- to 95/-, and fancy small weights 96/ to 100/-; sow pigs, 68/- to 75/-, or 10 per cent.

YORK.—Fewer Irish store cattle than last week, and mostly of poorer quality. Trade slow at late rates. Very few English stores, and at most were unsold. Light show of dairy cattle, best ones making £1 per head more money. Big entry of North Country ewes, which made late rates. A few down lambs sold well.

BRISTOL.—A moderate supply of beef at 90/- to 92/-. A fair supply of mutton sold at 1/1 to 1/2, and lamb at 1/2 to 1/3. 400 store cattle were offered, but the demand was slow at late rates, and some remained unsold. Milch cows, £24 to £38, and up to £34 for exceptional quality.

BIRMINGHAM PIG.—Improved supply, and trade quiet to medium, with bacons an easier tendency, and smalls barely maintaining late rates. Quotations—Sizable bacons 16/- to 16/6, cutters about 17/- to 17/6, and sows 14/6 per score dead weight.

GRAIN.

FLOATING GRAIN CARGOES—BALTIC.—WHEAT—The cargo market displayed firm features, following steady Argentine and North American cables, sellers being more reserved in face of improved inquiries; a part cargo 5,000 quarters Western Pacific and half-white Western Pacific and half-white sold 45/-, Rosafe 63½lb. afloat 42/6, Oct. 44/-, South Australian part cargo afloat 44/6, Oct. 44/-; South Australian part cargo afloat 44/6, Oct. 44/-; South Australian part cargo afloat 44/6, Oct. 44/-; Bessarabian do. 46/-, per 480lb. BARLEY quiet but late rates were repeated in most cases. OATS inactive. Plate afloat 20/-, Oct.-Nov. 21/3 new Jan.-Feb. 22/3, Jan.-Oct. 21/-, German 21/3 per 320lb.

LIVERPOOL.—WHEAT—Overnight cables were very disappointing, and with offerings made freely here during early trading prices gave way considerably, though later improved sharply on good buying, then fluctuated moderately according to the offerings, rapidly declining during late afternoon, with cables disappointing and marked a decided loss on the day. C.i.f. parcels of wheat Rosario-Santa Fe (63¼lb.) December sold at 44/-, (64lb.) shortly due 41/6 per quarter. C.i.f. parcels Plate River Plate November-December sold at 43½ per quarter. Wheat on the spot steadily held. MAIZE—Spot parcels quiet at 7/7 to 7/7½ per cental for River Plate. FLOUR quiet at unchanged prices. Graded wheat futures, after giving way 1½d. to 1¾d. per cental during early trading rapidly advanced, and 2d. over Wednesday night was paid for December delivery; then prices receded, the market eventually closing quiet at 1d. to 1½d. under Wednesday night; December delivery least affected.

MANCHESTER.—English wheat again plentiful. Prices easier at 41/- to 41/6 per qr. on rail.

SAVE MONEY

by feeding Emerald Concentrated Nuts with home-grown foods; 9 per cent. oil, 33 per cent. albs. Appetising, digestive and low in price. Sample and name of merchant from the Manufacturers.

PAUL & VINCENT, Ltd., DUBLIN

Old Cheshire oats quiet, but steady, at about 10/-; crushing, 7/3 to 7/9; best seed, 8/- to 8/6 on rail.

PROVISIONS.

LIVERPOOL.—BACON—This market remains in the same strong position for Continental and Irish owing to the extreme scarcity, and prices are quite nominal, the limited quantity of Danish available again making a considerable premium on the official quotations. Buyers, in consequence, turn their attention to American backs and Cumberlands moving moderately at higher prices of 90/- to 98/- and 87/- to 95/-, respectively, per cwt. HAMS meet a moderate demand, but no improvement in values reported. Shoulders scarce and firmly held. LARD on the spot 3d. per cwt. easier in sympathy with lower c.i.f. quotations. Prime steam reduced to 58/3 to 59/3, and American refined 59/9 to 61/9, but buyers still operate merely for their actual needs. CHEESE firm at full prices for Canadian, while New Zealand is raised 1/- to 96/- and 100/- per cwt. for both white and coloured. BUTTER firm at recent currencies, though demand somewhat restricted. EGGS steady at 19/- to 19/6 for extra selected Irish hen, 18/3 to 18/6 selected, and 15/9 to 16/- medium, per 120.

LONDON CENTRAL MEAT.—Supplies to market yesterday, 2,157 tons—597 British and Irish produce and 1,560 tons imported. BEEF—Poor trade for fresh killed; chilled in steady demand. Scotch short sides 6/4 to 7/-, ditto long sides 6/- to 6/4, English long sides 4/4 to 5/-, Irish (Birkenhead killed) 4/4 to 5/-. MUTTON—A dragging trade; Scotch 6/8 to 7/8, ditto tegs 7/- to 7/8, English 6/- to 7/4, ditto tegs 7/- to 7/8, ditto ewes 4/4 to 4/4, Irish 6/- to 7/-, New Zealand wethers 4/- to 5/-, ditto ewes 3/- to 3/4. LAMB—Scotch 7/4 to 8/-, ditto hill 6/- to 7/8, Irish 6/8 to 7/4, ditto English killed 6/8 to 7/4, New Zealand 5/6 to 6/4, Australian 5/- to 5/8. PORK in better demand. VEAL—Dragging trade; English fat, 5/8 to 7/8, ditto specials 8/- to 8/8, ditto bobbies 6/- to 6/4. POULTRY—Moderate trade. Surrey chicken, per lb. 1/4 to 1/7, country 1/1 to 1/3, Irish fatted 1/1 to 1/3, lean 10d. to 1/-, Belgian 1/3 to 1/4, Dutch yellow 1/- to 1/1, white 1/2 to 1/3, English hens (old) 8d. to 9d., Irish 6d. to 9d., country ducklings 10d. to 1/-. EGGS (per 120)—English, packed to national mark, specials 29/- to 30/-, standards 28/- to 29/-, pullet standards 21/- to 22/-, ordinary packing, grade 1 24/- to 25/6; Belgian, 15½lb. 17/- to 18/-.

CARDIFF.—Owing to the usual shortness of supplies at this time of the year the tendency of prices is upwards, with butter and bacon most affected. Wholesale quotations, delivered in Cardiff district:—BACON—Irish baled 110/- to 116/-, Danish 109/- to 113/-, Canadian Wiltshires and American not offered. HAMS—Irish 160/- to 175/-, American 106/- to 125/-; shoulders 71/- to 83/-. BUTTER—Irish creameries 182/- to 186/-, separators 176/- to 180/-, factories 166/- to 174/-, and Danish 209/- to 213/- per cwt. EGGS—Irish best 18/6 to 19/6 per 120. POULTRY—Chickens 1/1 to 1/3 and hens 7d. to 10d. per lb.

BRISTOL.—BACON met an improved demand during the past week, and with supplies somewhat lighter values all round have displayed a firmer tendency. Gammons and streaks continue to move off at a good pace. HAMS—Short cut sold quietly at about previous rates. LARD—With buying of a hand to mouth character and easier American advices, prices have moved in buyers' favour. CHEESE—Demand for Colonial descriptions has been quite active, and prices generally ruled firm. Finest English sold at recent full rates. BUTTER was a firm market, with values fully upheld.

DUBLIN VEGETABLE.—Apples slow, 1/6 to 2/6 per tray, etc.; barrels 8/- to 15/-, and selected 20/-. Vegetables in large supply. Good sale for leading commodities, but prices uneven. Cauliflowers, 2/9 to 3/3, 3/6 and 4/- dozen; York cabbage 25/- to 40/- and 60/-; small and inferior loads, 15/- to 20/-; Swedes, 1/10 to 2/2 and 2/4 per cwt.; sprouts, 4/- to 4/6 per float; lettuce, 2d. to 6d. per dozen; white turnips, 5d. to 8d. per bundle; scallions, 6d. to 8d.; mushrooms, 5/6 to 3/6 dozen; carrots, 1/4 to 2/- per dozen bundles, parsnips, 1/3 to 1/6 ditto, and 4/6 to 5/6 per bag; parsley 4d to 6d. per tray; tomatoes, 4d. to 6½d. per lb.

DUBLIN POTATO.—Supplies of potatoes continue more than enough to cover present comparatively moderate consumptive wants. Dublin trade call at previous values—viz., 5/3 to 5/9 per cwt. for best quality table tubers, a few holders asking 5d. more for extra selected stuff. Terms ex rail show a slightly bending trend, unless for Northern potatoes, which are quoted rather stiffer

CORK BUTTER.—Demand continues active. Prices advancing. Creameries, 175/- to 177/- per cwt., f.o.b.

COPENHAGEN BUTTER is quoted at 344 kroner per 100 kilos, which is equivalent to 29 12s. 4d. per cwt.—an increase of 2/8 on the previous week.

DUBLIN FISH.—Moderate supplies of fish came to hand yesterday, stormy weather around the coast interfering with fishing. Two steam trawls and but 240 boxes to offers. Lobsters only gave seven chests to deal with, the pick of which went clear—viz., 20/- to 27/6 per 13; average mediums 12/- to 15/-, and others 5/- to 5/-, and 7/6 per lot. Good sale for white fish around Wednesday's values. Turbot 2/- to 12/6 and 15/-; brill, 6d. to 4/- each; best soles, 40/- to 50/- per lot; mediums, 20/- to 30/-; ships, 10/- to 17/6 per dozen; half boxes plaice, 40/- to 70/-; whiting, soles, 7/- to 70/-; whiting, 8/- to 40/- and 50/-; codfish, 17/- to 30/-; hake, 35/- to 80/-; pollock, 20/- to 30/-; ling, 15/- to 20/-; conger eels, 12/6 to 20/-; ray, 12/6 to 22/- and 25/-.

BILLINGSGATE FISH.—Soles 21d. to 24d., slips 18d. to 21d., lobsters 12d. to 21d per lb.; live eels 18/- to 27/-, deal 14/- to 26/- per draught; turbot 11/- to 14/-, brill 9/- to 11/-, plaice 14/- to 16/-, halibut 15/- to 17/-, lemon soles 9/- to 14/-, witches 8/- to 10/-, cod 5/- to 7/-, whiting 3/- to 5/-, hake 9/- to 11/- skate 4/- to 6/-, haddocks 3/- to 6/- per stone.

PURE-BRED CATTLE.

PRICES AT COOKSTOWN SALE.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

COOKSTOWN, Thursday.

The average prices at the thirteenth annual sale of pure-bred shorthorn and Aberdeen-Angus cattle organised by the Mid-Ulster Shorthorn Breeders' Association, and held in the Market Yard, Cookstown, to-day, were higher than at the Balmoral sale in Belfast on Wednesday. There was a large attendance of breeders and buyers from all over Northern Ireland and many parts of the Free State, and some from across the Channel.

The catalogue contained seventy-two head, most of which were young cows and heifers and the remainder bulls and bull and heifer calves, all representative of the best breeds in Ulster.

A feature of the sale was the disposal of a herd of twenty-seven animals, the property of the late Messrs. W. and J. Ekin, Ultimo House, Coagh, Co. Tyrone. Before the sale the animals were judged by Mr. Cochrane Welsh, Smithborough, for cups.

The Stevenson Cup for the best shorthorn cow or heifer calved before January, 1929, went to the representatives of the late Messrs. W. and J. Ekin for Augusta Mayoress 2nd, and the Association's cup for the best shorthorn bull or heifer calf was won by Mrs. William Ekin, Rockspring, Moneymore, with Augusta Belle.

Mr. William Parke, secretary, had charge of the arrangements for the sale, which was very successful. The auctioneer was Mr. Joseph Allen, Cookstown.

BRADFORD WOOL.—Business is confined to the covering of current needs. Quotations for fine tops are irregular, and whilst 31½d. is quoted for sixty-fours, average lower prices have been taken for forward delivery. Medium and coarse crossbreds show more stability, but are barely steady, with forties prepared selling at 20d.

MANCHESTER HAY AND STRAW.—Moderate supplies of both hay and straw, more steadily into consumption at firm figures. Lincolnshire rye grass and clover, £7 10/- to £8; Cheshire, £6 10/- to £7; oat and wheat straw up to 70/-; all delivered Manchester. Canadian mixed Timothy and clover up to £6 per ton, ex quay.

LONDON METALS MARKET.

TIN—At the first session the standard market displayed firmer features in face of improved inquiries, though Eastern cables were again on a lower basis. Cash on balance ruled 55/- to 57/6, and forward 52/6 to 55/- per ton higher. Standard cash quoted £198 17/6 to £199, three months £202 15/- to £202 17/6; settlement price £199. 1,000 tons sold; cash at £198 to £199 and £198 17/6, three months £201 to £202 17/6. English ingots quoted £199 10/- to £200 10/-. In the East 325 tons sold on the basis of £204 15/- c.i.f. terms. COPPER inactive and slightly irregular, cash being 1/3 per ton lower and forward 2/6 dearer on balance. Standard cash quoted £73 17/9 to £73 16/3, three months £74 8/9 to £74 10/-; settlement price £73 15/-. Sales only 25 tons; three months at £74 8/9. ANTIQMONY easier; English regulus £47 10/- to £52 10/-; Chinese do. spot £32, October-November £30; China crude October-November £20 10/- c.i.f. Antimony Oxide October-November £29 5/- to £29 10/- per ton c.i.f. Antimony Ore Oct.-Nov. basis 60 p.c. nominally 4/6 to 5/- per unit c.i.f. WOLFRAM sparingly offered, with a good demand for prompt shipment; Chinese October-November 35/6 per unit c.i.f. ALUMINIUM, QUICKSILVER, also TIN PLATES unaltered. Second Session—Tin again firmer; 170 tons sold; cash £199 5/-, three months £202 15/- to £203 5/-. Copper, Lead, also Spelter unaltered.

GLASGOW IRON AND STEEL.—Conditions are quite stationary, although generally works are satisfactorily employed on current contracts. There is, however, no increase in view, and the tone of the market is not so good. There is no change in prices to record.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT

PRISON FOR ASSAULT ON CIVIC GUARD.

ANOTHER MAN FINED.

(BEFORE MR. COLLINS.)

Patrick Kelly and James Doyle, middle-aged men, were charged by Guard 168 A with having assaulted him in Francis street, where they reside, last Wednesday night. There were, said the Guard in evidence, three men on the roadway using bad language. When Doyle was arrested for refusing to refrain from using bad language he turned on the witness and knocked him down. Witness, however, succeeded in arresting Kelly, too, and he held on to both, while the third man made his escape in the confusion. Witness had to use his baton to get his prisoners on the move, and Doyle tripped him and Kelly assaulted him.

The Justice remarked that the Guard had a rough time of it. There was, he said, a time, not long ago, when the public were disposed to assist the Guards, but that spirit seemed to have faded away. He hoped that there would be a speedy return to the former state of things

Kelly denied that he assaulted the Guard, and Doyle said that he went quietly to the station.

Doyle was sentenced to a month's imprisonment with hard labour for the assault and to a fine of 5s. for the bad language. Kelly was fined 20s. for the assault and 5s. for the bad language.

MIDNIGHT STREET SCENE.

TWO MORE MEN SENTENCED FOR ATTACK ON GUARD.

Christopher Doherty, of Coppinger's row, upholsterer, and David Brown, of Clarendon row, described as an ex-lieutenant of the Free State Army, were charged by Inspector Ryan with having assaulted Guard 165 B while in the execution of his duty in South William street last Friday night. They also were charged with having used bad language, and Doherty was further charged with rescuing Brown, but that charge was withdrawn by the Inspector.

Guard Halloran, 165 B, stated that when he was on duty in South William street, shortly after midnight, he noticed a number of corner-boys at the corner of Johnston's place. When he asked them what they were doing another party came up and joined them. He advised them to disperse and go home, and Brown said: "The cheek of you to order me about. I am an ex-lieutenant of the National Army." Brown then indulged in obscene language, and he was arrested on that charge. Brown gave witness a blow of his fist on the body.

KNOCKED DOWN.

As he was moving with his prisoner towards the College Station, Doherty seized Brown and tried to release him, saying, "You will not take him away." Brown got away, and Doherty then knocked him (the Guard) down, and shouted to the crowd to come and kick him. At this juncture Guard 77 B arrived, and the mob dispersed. When subsequently witness arrested Brown, he said: "I beat the Black

BULBS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Garden Correspondent says:—
To the regret of many, the dainty, sweet-scented white Roman Hyacinths are still at prohibitive prices, and probably but few of our bulb vendors have dealt with them in but very limited lots. However, there comes compensation in the French-grown and the dainty little Cynthellas, which, we are assured, with other bulbs, especially Tulips, have been going like hot cakes. We particularly mention this now as not only is the weather ideal for planting, but a lady who consulted us anent varieties of early Tulips said that two of the varieties we particularly wished her to get she found "sold out," and were now not likely to be had for love or money. That bulbs left in the ground from last spring are already rooting—and, in fact, Scilla Peruviana, the Peruvian Squill, in our dry mixed border, is at the moment nearly six inches above ground—tells its own tale in nature's ways, which are not wisely to be ignored.

A COPY of Drummond's bulb catalogue will be posted free on application.—Sutton's Spring Flowering Plants, Hyacinths, Tulips, Narcissus, Iris, Crocus, Liliums, Anemone, Ranunculi, Gladioli, Scillas, Snowdrops, etc.—Drummond's, Limited, 57 and 58 Dawson street, Dublin.
